REDS DRIVE BACK ALLIED PATROLS

Costello Walks Back To Probe But Won't Talk

Racketeer Bows To "Ultimatum" To Return And Escapes Arrest

NEW YORK, March 16 (AP)—To avoid arrest, Racketeer Frank Costello walked back into the Senate crime hearing today. But he solemnly, stubbornly again refused to talk.

The Senate crime committee put three questions to him but he refused to answer any of them. The first was:

"Mr. Costello, did you have a meeting with Mr. O'Dwyer in 1942?"

The dapper racketeer, who left his bed to appear, said he wasn't answering "until I'm fully well and able to."

Costello defiantly walked out on the all-star hearing yesterday, complaining that he was too ill to testify and was going home to bed.

He had laryngitis and his voice today was little more than a hoarse croak that carried poorly.

Wide-Open Gambling

The committee treated him with kid gloves but still got nowhere. So they let him go until a committee physician can look him over and see just how sick he really is. Costello said he was going back to bed.

Costello's about-face return to the hearing came in its fifth day—a day highlighted by state police testimony that gambling ran wide open in Saratoga Springs all through the 1940's.

State police said they did nothing about it because for years it has been their policy not to interfere in Saratoga Springs.

State Police Superintendent John A. Gaffney testified "anybody knows what's going on in Saratoga—it's been going on for 25 years to my knowledge."

In Albany—30 miles from Saratoga—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey ordered a study of all of the testimony relating to upstate gambling.

Costello came back to the hearing on his own two feet to escape being dragged back under arrest.

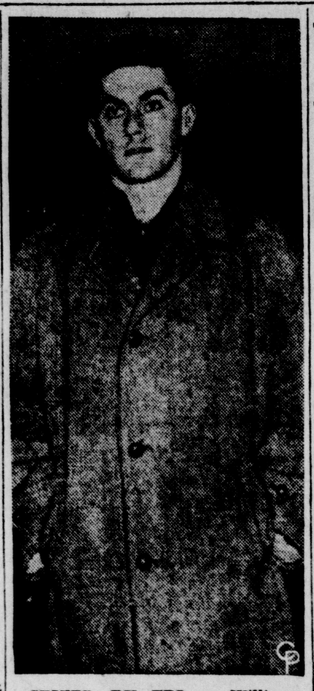

Hearing Resumes Monday

His own doctor told the committee early in the day that there was no reson why Costello couldn't testify for a limited time despite his bad throat.

The committee then sent an investigator and a U. S. marshal to Costello's penthouse apartment on Central Park west to order him to come in or be brought in.

The committee has labeled Costello the head of one of the nation's top crime syndicates—a charge that Costello says he bitterly resents as untrue.

The Senate investigators will not sit tomorrow so the hearing was adjourned until Monday morning.

SEIZED BY FBI — William Perl, 32, a physics instructor at Columbia University, leaves Federal District Court in New York following his arrest by FBI agents on a sealed indictment charging perjury. Perl is charged with having denied before a federal grand jury in New York that he knew members of the atom spy ring now on trial for conspiracy to supply atom secrets to agents of Soviet Russia.

West Still Has Time To Arm, Connally Says

Can Survive A-War By Pooling Defense

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP) — Sen. Connally (D-Tex) said today the United States and its allies can survive an atomic war with Russia if they join now in building their defenses.

Opening a momentous Senate debate on the nation's security policy, the veteran Democratic leader declared there is still time to arm while American atomic superiority protects Western Europe from attack.

If the Allies seize this opportunity to consolidate their military strength, he said, "we need not fear the day when the Soviet Union has a stockpile of atomic weapons large enough to threaten the peace."

"Because by that time," he predicted, "atomic weapons will not be enough to crumble the defenses that we and our allies will have erected. We will have the strength and confidence and assurance that freedom will not be lost because of weakness."

Backs Troops For "Ike"

Sen. Connally, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, spoke in support of sending four more divisions of American ground troops to Europe to reinforce Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's international army.

The Senate is debating a resolution which approves President Truman's plan to dispatch these troops, but which declares it to be the sense of the Senate that Congress authorize all future troop assignments abroad.

Connally said he did not approve of the limiting section of the resolution.

Sen. Wiley (R-Wis), ranking Republican member of the Foreign Relations Committee in the absence of Sen. Vandenberg of Michigan, supported the resolution in its entirety.

In its final version, he said after Connally had finished, he believes the measure would constitute a victory for "common sense" in three ways:

Opposes "Psuedo-Gibraltar"

"1. A victory for the sound idea that America simply cannot sit back and attempt to make a psuedo-Gibraltar of her own continent while she ignores the fate of Europe and Africa."

"2. A victory for the common sense notion that this issue of troops-for-Europe is too big for any one single man to decide all by himself, even together with his advisers.

"3. A victory for the common sense idea that the Congress cannot attempt to spell out in the most minute detail the precise nature of troops to be sent abroad; but neither can the military authorities take executive control over a question which is in part political and diplomatic just as it is military."

Marine Air Ace Dons New Uniforms

Col. Joe Foss (right), who as a Marine air ace in World War II was awarded the Medal of Honor, reported for Air Force duty with the Central Air Defense Command at Kansas City yesterday. With him are Brig. Gen. George Acheson (center), commanding general of the CADC, and Col. F. H. Robinson (left), vice commander. Col. Foss was discharged from the Marine Corps in 1946 and later organized an Air National Guard unit at Sioux Falls, S. D.

Enemy Forces Apparently Set To Make Stand

All-Out Defense Of Chunchon Seen

TOKYO, Saturday, March 17 (AP)—Chinese Communists, throwing in fresh troops and artillery along the Korean front, today repulsed Allied patrols probing defenses of the vital Red Base of Chunchon.

The Allied offensive ground ahead less than 20 miles from the 38th parallel. But the Communists showed every indication of being ready, after days of retreat, to stand and fight.

A heavily-censored field dispatch said Allied patrols moving north of captured Hongchon, 15 miles southeast of Chunchon, were forced to retire.

An intense enemy artillery barrage also suggested Red determination to hold Chunchon, their last big base below the 38th parallel.

Red Pocket Wiped Out

Around Hongchon, entered Thursday by the Allies, the last pocket of "no surrender" Chinese was wiped out Friday, the dispatch said.

Gen. MacArthur's communique, covering operations Friday reported "pressure by U. N. ground troops continued across the entire front as we attempted to maintain contact with the withdrawing enemy."

An Allied intelligence officer in re-occupied Seoul said between 200,000 and 250,000 Reds were believed to be in hill positions defending Chunchon. Four Red armies were reported in reserve farther north.

"The enemy withdrawal has been made with a definite purpose," the officer said.

"That is to establish new defense lines to delay the United Nations forces. However, there are indications that the enemy feels he cannot hold this line in view of our superiority of equipment and he may withdraw to the 38th parallel."

The officer said that about 12,000 truck loads of supplies have been sent into Korea from Manchuria, sufficient for the Reds to "put up a stiff resistance."

Censorship Blackout

Good defensive high ground just south of Chunchon may be their choice for an attempt to half the advancing Allies.

The U. S. Eighth Army estimated that 95 Reds were killed or wounded and 77 captured in Friday's ground actions.

A censorship blackout was thrown abruptly over Allied operations. Units smaller than the Eighth Army itself could not be identified.

The Reds threw their heaviest artillery fire of the war at Allied forces advancing north of Hongchon toward Chunchon. Allied artillery thundered back with 50 shells for one. Fighter planes raked the Red-held ridges with fire bombs.

AP Correspondent William C. Barnard, on the central front, reported the Chinese were throwing reserves into the line.

Red resistance crumbled elsewhere on the front.

New Tax Charge Is Filed Against "Bottles" Capone

CHICAGO, March 16 (AP) — The government went after Ralph "Bottles" Capone today with a new income tax evasion charge — the only major offense that ever tripped up members of the notorious Capone family.

A complaint was filed before U. S. Commissioner Edwin K. Walker. A warrant was issued immediately for Capone's arrest.

The brother of the late gang leader, Scarface Al, was accused of three violations — making a "false offer in compromise involving unpaid income taxes of approximatey $100,000, attempting to evade taxes and concealing assets."

The charges could produce a maximum penalty of 16 years imprisonment and a $30,000 fine.

Army, Air Force Plan $1.5 Billion In Improvements

$112,905,985 Will Be Spent In Alaska

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP)—A $1,501,140,585 military construction program was disclosed today by the Army and Air Force.

Some of it is already under way; for some of it contracts are still to be let. The money comes out of the regular and supplemental appropriations made by Congress for the fiscal year ending June 30.

Air Force construction amounts to $1,191,876,000. Much of the money is for improvements of existing air fields. The Army program totals $309,264,585.

A list of Air Force construction projects made available tonight totaled $976,700,000. Those projects were provided for with funds from the two supplemental appropriation bills. Previously the regular money bill had provided another $215,476,755. Of the money from the two supplemental measures, $575,071,000 is tagged for projects in the United States and $401,629,000 for work overseas.

Of the Army's $309,264,585 outlay, one third is for strategic Alaska.

Another substantial part of the Army money is being devoted to projects connected with developing "unconventional weapons" such as radiological and biological types.

Alaskan expense totals $112,905,985, much of it for facilities at existing airfields. The biggest contract there is $55,281,445 for improvements at Fort Richardson.

The largest one in continental United States is $23,995,300 at Dugway Proving Ground, near Ttooele, Utah, where tests are conducted on biological and radiological weapons, as well as conventional ones such as high explosive.

A $10,489,900 share is given Camp Detrick, Md., center of the biological warfare project, for laboratory buildings and other work.

Senate Group Slashes Defense Housing Fund

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP) — The Senate Banking Committee today tentatively approved a $1,500,000,000 fund for insuring defense housing mortgages — just half the amount asked by President Truman.

Chairman Maybank (D-SC) told reporters — "we believe in economy."

Final committee action was set for Tuesday.

U. N. Delegate Dies

NORFOLK, Va., March 16 (AP) — Robert Gerald Riddell, Canada's permanent delegate to the United Nations, died of a heart attack today at a Virginia Beach hotel shortly after arriving for a vacation. He was 42.

Beer Drinking Led To Capture, Fugitives Say

One Of Trio Killed In Fight With Posse

ST. JOHN'S, Ariz., March 16 (AP)—Beer drinking caused the capture of two Omaha jailbreakers and the death of a third, the young survivors of a gun battle with a sheriff's posse said today.

Clifford Battershaw, 17-year-old cop-hating brother of Dewey Battershaw, who was killed in the fight, did most of the talking in describing their cross-country flight and their capture last night. His companion, Victor Sweet, 24, sullenly declined to answer most questions in an interview.

Their story still left many gaps in the tale that began March 4 with an escape from the Omaha jail but they were getting along all right, they contended, until they started drinking.

Clifford helped release his brother and Sweet from the jail, where they were being held for investigation of robbery.

"I went to the back of the jail and overpowered two guards," he said. "I got the two boys out."

Took Pair As Hostages

He said he used a German Luger to subdue the guards. Then the trio made their way to the street, taking an attorney and a deputy sheriff with them as hostages.

They found a Ford car nearby, drove into the country until they came to a farmhouse. They forced their way in against the will of a woman and her little girl.

"We drank coffee and waited for the farmer to come home," the young desperado said.

When he did, the farmer, the lawyer, deputy sheriff and two other men they had taken as hostages after commandeering their cars, were tied.

Clifford said they took the farmer's car and headed west.

The three fugitives kept to side roads, by-passed large towns and ate in the car. They also changed license plates as often as possible.

Their big mistake came when they started drinking beer in Arizona, Clifford indicated. By the time they reached St. John's each had consumed six cans. They were driving fast. Highway Patrolman Ray Dahm and Undersheriff Emmett Wilhelm gave chase as they sped through town. The three accelerated

Jap Treaty Talk Bid Given Russia

WASHINGTON, March 16. (AP)—Secretary of State Acheson extended a new invitation to Soviet Russia today to rejoin the discussions on a peace treaty with Japan.

Two weeks ago Soviet Ambassador Jacob Malik unexpectedly broke off the talks on treaty terms he had been carrying on for months with Ambassador John Foster Dulles.

Moscow at the same time heatedly attacked the United States for seeking a "separate" peace. That appeared to end any idea that Russia would have any part of the treaty, especially when Dulles responded with a denunciation of Communist aims in Asia.

Acheson told his news conference that while Malik's action was very disappointing he hoped it would not continue to be the attitude of the Soviet government.

Six Navy Men Feared Drowned

NORFOLK, Va., March 16 (AP)—A 10-foot dinghy from the USS LSU 1330 was found capsized a mile west of Watts Island in Tangier Sound today and the Navy said six men aboard the boat were missing.

Late today, two Navy vessels were dispatched from Hampton Roads to search for the missing men. They were expected to reach the scene in Chesapeake Bay about 8 p. m.

Meantime, spokesmen said a communications foulup prevented the reception of any clear information fom the LSU 1330, a Navy landing-ship (utility) concerning the boat accident. It was hoped additional details would be available when the two rescue vessels reached the scene.

The landing ship had been on an operational training exercise in the bay. It was believed the six men may have been returning to the ship from a "liberty" excursion when their boat capsized about 11 p. m. last night.

Truman To Wind Up Vacation On Thursday

KEY WEST, Fla., March 16 (AP) — President Truman decided today to bring his Florida work-and-play vacation to an end next Thursday in order to spend the Easter weekend with his family.

Presidential Secretary Joseph Short made the announcement at a news conference in which he disclosed that the President's singing daughter, Margaret, will visit the Blair House Good Friday through Easter.

U. S. Navy Plans To Salvage Sunken Japanese Warships

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP)—The Navy today disclosed plans to salvage some of the Japanese warships sent to the bottom of the Pacific in World War II—for the scrap metal they contain.

It called for bids from private companies to undertake the job.

First efforts are to be made around the islands of Palau, Saipan and Truk, principal Japanese navy bases smashed by U. S. sea and air power.

The Navy knows that four Japanese cruisers, five destroyers and 13 submarines are on the sea bottom around these islands. It said that legally they are American prizes of war. An estimated 400,000 tons of scrap metal is involved.

The high commissioner of the Pacific islands trust territories, former Sen. Elbert Thomas of Utah, will have direct jurisdiction over the salvage operations. The Navy here is handling the bids for him.

If the first phase succeeds, the Navy plans to extend the salvage operation to other Pacific areas where there is a concentration of sunken vessels.

Vaughan Linked To "Ringleader" In Surplus Deals

Dawson Figured In "5 Percenter" Probe

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP) — House investigators are seeking to determine whether George Dawson, mysterious Briton named as the "ringleader" in fabulous surplus property deals, is the same George Dawson indirectly aided in 1948 by Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, White House aide.

Rep. Bonner (D-NC), chairman of a House investigating committee, tagged the Britisher yesterday as the kingpin in operations whereby massive quantities of U. S. military surplus have been bought up in Europe and shipped all over the world to be sold at fancy prices. Some of it was sold back to the U. S. government. Rep. Curtis (R-Mo) said he had "preliminary information" that Dawson had cleaned up $100,000,000.

Figured In "5 Percenter" Probe

Today it developed that the name of a George Dawson had figured in the 1949 "five percenter" probe in which Gen. Vaughan, President Truman's military aide, was brought on the carpet.

At that time investigators introduced a letter which Vaughan had written in 1948 to Gen. Clyde Hyssong, an Army officer in Europe.

The letter read:

"My Dear Gen. Hyssong:

"This will introduce my good friend John Maragon, who is representing George Dawson and Company, and who is interested in purchasing materials from the foreign liquidation service. Any assistance that you may be able to render to Mr. Maragon will be greatly appreciated by me."

Vaughan Called To Stand

Vaughan, called to the stand later, said he did not know anything about Dawson or his company, but was merely doing Maragon a favor.

House investigators, aroused by testimony of big profits in surplus deals, issued a batch of subpoenas today.

Chairman Bonner (D-NC) of the House group told newsmen he wants to question the "big operators" under oath about their purchases of U. S. surplus stocks in Germany and later resale of the scarce material in this country.

Army Hopes To Make Use Of Point System

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP)—The Army said today it still hopes to make use of a point system in calling up enlisted reservists for active duty or releasing those in service.

But, an Army spokesman said in response to queries, it is too early yet to say when this can be done. Primarily, he told reporters, it depends upon the military situation in Korea and the growth of the Army at home.

The point system establishes priorities to determine the order in which reservists would be called for, or realeased from, active duty. The Army set up the plan last fall but was forced to lay it aside after the Chinese Communists intervened in Korea.

Wholesale Prices Decline Slightly

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP)—Wholesale prices declined 0.1 per cent in the week ending March 13. They had hit an all-time high a week earlier.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics, reporting the decline, said today that with the drop its all commodity index was at 183.4 per cent of the 1926 average.

This figure is 1.9 per cent above the index of Jan. 23—just before the wage and price freeze was announced by the government.

By comparison with past dates the index of March 13 was 16.9 per cent above the May 24-June 25, 1950, period, and 20.2 per cent above a year ago. The Korean fighting began June 25.

14 Die In Freak Railroad Wreck

DONCASTER, Eng., March 16 (AP) —Fourteen persons were killed and more than 100 injured today in a freak wreck of the smart express train known as "The Cock of the North."

The express was bound from Doncaster to London's Kings Cross station. It had barely started when a derailment caused coaches to jam into the archway of Balby bridge, over which a Doncaster street passes.

The scene is less than half a mile from the Doncaster central station and the heavy, 14-car train had gained little speed. A station official said it could not have been going more than 20 miles an hour.

For reasons not yet determined, the wheels of the third coach jumped from the rails and the car bumped along the ties. Apparently it tipped enough for an upper corner to strike a brick pillar supporting the bridge.

Caught fast by the pillar, the coach was rammed by the cars following, and five piled up in the archway.

"Tokyo Rose" Appeals

SAN FRANCISCO, March 16 (AP) — The U. S. Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals today took under submission the appeal of "Tokyo Rose" — Mrs. Iva Toguri D'Aquino — from her conviction of treason for wartime broadcasts to American troops.

Mrs. D'Aquino is serving a 10-year sentence in the women's federal prison at Alderson, W. Va.

Hershey Offers Student Draft Deferment Plan

Qualification Tests Would Decide Status

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP)—Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey disclosed today he has proposed a plan for qualification tests to give draft deferment to brainy high school and college students.

In correspondence with the House Armed Services Committee, Hershey said he had submitted the proposal to Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson as a recommendation. Whether it will be put into effect is up to Wilson and Dr. Arthur Fleming, manpower director under Wilson.

Officials said the number of educational deferments may increase, if the new plan is put into effect.

Nationwide Tests

Still to be decided is whether the proposed policies would be binding on draft boards or merely permissive Hershey's outline indicated he wants them binding.

Hershey's plan calls for nationwide tests of high school and college students as a guide to determining whether they should continue schooling or be drafted.

High school graduates of draft age passing the test with a mark of 70 or more would be deferred to enter college.

First, second and third-year men passing the tests with the 70 mark or better also would be deferred to go ahead with another year of college.

Top Students Deferred

In addition, all college freshmen in the upper half of their class would be deferred. All second-year college students in the upper two-thirds of their class could take a third-year course. All third-year college men in the upper three-fourths of their class could go ahead with a fourth year.

Also graduate students and professional students of medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine, osteopathy and optometry would be deferred without taking any tests, provided their schools certified.

Health Center Bill OK'd

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP) — The Senate approved by a bare 8 to 35 majority today a bill providing for federal grants to states to build public health centers.

Argentine Congress Orders Anti-Peron Paper Seized

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, March 16 (AP)—The Peron-dominated Argentine Congress tonight ordered a nine-man committee to take control of the strike-bound independent newspaper La Prensa and conduct a complete investigation of its activities.

The Senate and House Deputies quickly completed congressional action on a resolution directing seizure of the independent newspaper, strongest critic of the regime of President Juan D. Peron. The measure was introduced by the ruling Peronista Party.

The House of Deputies acted first, passing the resolution by a vote of 85 to 14, after four hours of tumultuous debate.

The Senate, made up only of members of Peron's party, shoved the measure through by a vote of 18 to 0.

The whole business was completed in less than eight hours—just a day after Peron summoned the congressmen into special session to deal with the government's critic.

The resolution calls for appointment of a congressional committee of six deputies and three senators to take possession of La Prensa while investigating its operations. This was seen as a move only one step short of outright expropriation.

Some legislative circles interpreted the resolution as permitting the committee to start publication of the newspaper, which has been closed for 50 days by the boycott of the pro-government unions.

Gromyko, Davies Clash At Paris

PARIS, March 16 (AP)—A sharp exchange between Andrei Gromyko and Britain's Ernest Davies marked the stalemated junior Big Four conference today.

Davies said the Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister's "negative attitude" toward revised Western proposals for an agenda caused him to wonder whether Russia really wants a foreign ministers meeting.

Gromyko came right back and told Davies it was difficult for him to believe the British delegate could possibly doubt Russia's desire to hold such a meeting.

"Davies suggestion is completely preposterous and I deny it categorically," Gromyko said.

Davies interjected that the Western Powers have gone about as far as they can in meeting the Russians.

Treasury, Post Office Fund Cut Proposed

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP)—A slight trimming job was done today on a big appropriation to run the Treasury and Post Office Departments for the year beginning July 1.

The House Appropriations Committee recommended that $2,921,600,000 be spent for the purpose. This is $36,525,000, or 1.3 per cent, less than President Truman asked. It is $88,021,300 less than the departments have for the current fiscal year.

The house will start debating the bill Tuesday.

The St. Lawrence Project

Congress will again come to grips with the controversial St. Lawrence seaway-power project at its present session in what may be the decisive struggle over that long planned development. Unless now accepted as necessary to the national defense, the project as at present conceived may never be undertaken.

Congress remained unmoved when the St. Lawrence development was pressed upon it by President Roosevelt during World War II as a means of providing additional supplies of electric power for defense plants in the northeastern states. But now the project has been given a "new look" by the depletion in the last war and since of the high-grade iron ore reserves of the Mesabi Range near Lake Superior. President Truman is asking quick approval of the project on the ground that the proposed 27-foot channel from Lake Superior to the sea is needed to give midwestern steel mills safe and economical access to newly discovered open-pit ore resources in Labrador.

The Administration has sent an impressive list of witnesses to testify before the House Public Works Committee that the project is essential to the national security, that it can be made to pay for itself through sale of electricity and collection of tolls from ships using the waterway, and that it will make a mighty contribution to economic development in the North Atlantic area and the Great Lakes basin.

Opponents of the project include railroads, public utility companies, coal operators, shipping interests, and port cities along the eastern seaboard which would lose traffic to the waterway. They have not yet made their case in formal testimony but their arguments are fairly familiar. For two decades these arguments have been sufficient to prevent acceptance of the seaway-power project by Congress.

Supporters of the St. Lawrence project admit that resources of the Mesabi-Lake Superior region, on which the steel industry has depended for 85 per cent of its ore supply, are far from exhaustion. Latest estimates are that 80 million tons of ore a year can still be obtained from this source in 1960. But all authorities agree that sooner or later there will be a sharp falling off in production there. And, because of increasing demands for steel, it is estimated by Secretary of the Interior Chapman that by 1960 "we must be prepared to import 40 million tons of ore a year." The National Security Resources Board says that by the end of the present decade "50 million tons must be furnished from entirely new sources of supply."

One of the new sources of supply to which the steel industry can turn is development of economical processes for concentrating domestic low-grade taconites. The output of usable ore from taconites may reach 13.5 million tons by 1960, at which time the planned production of high-grade ore in Labrador is only about 10 million tons. However, the experts say that the Labrador output could be largely expanded simply by adding more scoop shovels. According to the N.S.R.B., it could be raised to "20, 30 or even more million tons a year" if war comes.

The rich holdings of American steel companies in Venezuela are pointed out by opponents of the seaway as a source of supply from which ore can be shipped to Atlantic and Gulf ports, and then by rail to the steel mills or by water through the Mississippi-Ohio barge route. There are also large deposits in the Steep Rock area of the Province of Ontario from which ore can be transported to the United States across the lakes without passing through the St. Lawrence. In view of the very large supplies obtainable from alternative sources, opponents assert that it is necessary to spend the millions needed to construct the seaway, with all the economic dislocations that would follow in its train.

Because of the insistence of such figures as Defense Secretary Marshall and Defense Mobilizer Wilson that the project should be started at once, it is given a better chance in 1951 than at any time in the past. The areas which will benefit and the areas which may suffer from the development have about equal strength in Congress. The final decision is expected to turn on the appeal made by the defense argument to senators and representatives from states not directly affected.

Exploding A Myth

In the search for more tax revenue to meet steadily increasing government outlays much has been heard about "soaking the rich." On the theory that those who earn more should and could pay more, it was generally taken for granted the government would look in that direction for the extra billions needed to balance the budget.

Dr. Gallup, the pollster, has conducted a nation-wide survey on the subject, and finds the populace with ideas that differ from those expressed by many politicians.

The so-called rich fared rather well in the verdict. Fixing the income tax for a typical family of four, earning $3,000 a year, a majority of those interviewed thought it should be $100. Such a family paid approximately $56 on its 1950 income. In contrast, a family of four earning as much as $50,000, in the view of those contacted, should pay $10,000, instead of the $16,000 it paid on last year's income.

A majority view was that those earning $10,000 should pay $1,000 in taxes, instead of the $1,217 they now contribute directly to Uncle Sam.

There has never been a popular demand that income taxes for those in the higher brackets be raised to confiscatory levels. As early as 1942 Dr. Gallup discovered that the public would levy only half as much tax on the $50,000-a-year income as that actually levied by the government.

This was true also in 1947, when a survey disclosed the public was in favor of only one-third of the actual levy. If the rich are to be soaked still harder, it will not be in response to clamor from those with lower incomes.

African Gardening

The general impression about tropical and jungle regions is that their soil and climate are so lush that anything will grow there if someone takes the trouble to plant it. The British have been discovering that it is not so, at least it is not so in Africa.

The government's first large-scale agricultural venture in Africa was an attempt to raise peanuts, which was abandoned after a substantial loss. Now it is disclosed that a project to produce chickens and eggs on a grand scale also has come to grief. Disease has wrought havoc with the flock and it has been discovered that sufficient feed could not be grown at the site of the experiment.

Gardening in Africa seems to present problems. Perhaps the British government needs someone with an old-fashioned green thumb.

How To Keep Well

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

An Attractive Posture

FAULTY POSTURE is universal but we are at a loss to know why. It encourages second and third rate degrees of health and detracts from the appearance of the individual. This is ironical because the normal stance is not difficult to learn. Furthermore, sitting and standing erect will make us look and feel better and give all our organs a chance to work at maximum efficiency.

Good posture is a habit and, like other good habits, should be acquired early in life. In this respect the responsibility rests with the parents, the school teacher, and the physician. It is easy to check the youngsters from time to time but if the job is to be done properly, they should be partially disrobed to get a good view of the shoulders, spine, abdomen, and pelvic girdle. Many procedures are available for investigating the posture, varying from the simple home test of standing against the wall to the more complicated office procedures of making accurate measurements, dropping plumb lines, and utilizing calipers. But regardless of the method used, the child should be made posture conscious so that a good carriage will become a habit.

Disturbances along this line in adults are not so easy to correct but they are far from hopeless. The exception occurs when the bones have become rigid and cannot be straightened out even if force is employed. But the majority do not fall into this category and improvement is possible by instituting corrective measures. Much depends upon the cause. An erect posture calls for a normal spine, good feet, a firm abdominal and pelvic wall, and a high diaphragm. Defects in this department must be remedied first and professional care is needed. But when the spine and legs are otherwise normal, other factors ought to be considered.

Fatigue from overwork or insufficient rest is a common origin; the muscles that hold up our frame are tired. The cure is obvious but in addition it is advisable to lie down several times a day to relax the muscular system. This is best accomplished by using a hard mattress with no pillow. A small pillow under the knees helps relax the muscles of the back, abdomen, hips, and knees. In this position the nervous and muscular systems have a chance to recuperate, circulation becomes horizontal, respiration is easier, and gastro-intestinal distress is relieved.

However, when weakness is caused by an exhausting disease, operation, or occupation, a gradual strengthening process is advised. In some instances a supportive belt can be worn but this should always be looked upon as a temporary measure except in the aged who often need permanent support. Adequate food must not be forgotten; it supplies the body with proper nourishment.

Exercises are recommended because they play an important role in maintaining posture. A round shouldered person, for example must attempt to keep the shoulders back. This is done as a conscious effort at first but if he persists the maneuver is likely to become habitual so that it is done without thinking. Bending exercises strengthen the abdomen and back and contracting the gluteal muscles will do the same for the pelvic floor. Arch defects may be relieved by stretching the tendons, picking up marbles with the toes, and walking on the outside of the feet. Exercise is not the complete answer to faulty posture but it helps whenever muscular weakness interferes with body mechanics.

HERPES

L. H. writes: My sister has had shingles for several months and still suffers from back and chest pain even though the blisters have healed. Why does she remain uncomfortable?

REPLY

Your sister has been left with a residual neuritis which may persist for some time. As a rule, this condition disappears ultimately and vitamin B may speed the process. Beyond that and the use of pain killing drugs, not much can be done as the manifestation is most resistant to treatment.

CHILD'S HAIR TEXTURE

Mrs. H. writes: My 15-month-old daughter has hair that is not fluffy but lies flat against her head. People take her for a boy. Is there any way I can improve her hair?

REPLY

If she is otherwise normal, let nature take its course. Why not imagine that she has that sculptured look and let it go at that. In time, her hair will grow.

CEREBRAL PALSY

E. A. writes: I am writing a term paper on cerebral palsy, and am unable to obtain enough information in our school library. Do you have some information on this subject?

REPLY

Yes. Send a large, stamped, self-addressed envelpe for leaflet on celebral palsy. Leaflet also gives the names and addresses of several Cerebral palsy organizations. In addition we have a list of various state societies for crippled children from whom you may be able to obtain additional information.

Duggan-Field Link May Be Clue To Seven Unsolved Disappearances Or Deaths

Following Hiss Case Revelations; Field's Whereabouts No. 1 Mystery

FRANKFORT—The No. 1 American mystery of Europe continues to be the sudden and unsolved disappearance of four Americans in the Noel Field case after Field was named by Whittaker Chambers as a member of the Communist cell in the U. S. State Department. This case is now being linked for the first time with another unsolved mystery in the United States—the strange death of Laurence Duggan, found in a snowbank 16 floors below his New York office. Duggan also was named in the State Department investigation, though cleared by the Justice Department.

The amazing thing is that a total of seven people have now died mysteriously or disappeared even more mysteriously following revelations in the Alger Hiss case.

The four people who have disappeared behind the iron curtain with or in the wake of Noel Field are: Field himself, who disappeared in Czechoslovakia May 10, 1949. His brother, Herman, vanished August 22 that same year while traveling in an airplane between Warsaw and Prague. Afew days later Mrs. Noel disappeared while trying to find her husband in Prague. Then, one year later, Erica Wallachs, a friend of the Fields, went into the Russian zone of Berlin in search of them and never came back. All these disappearances occurred during about the same period of three mysterious deaths in the Hiss case. They were:

Death No. 1—Harry Dexter White, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury who reportedly died of heart failure August 16, 1948, after testifying before the Congressional committee at which Elizabeth Bentley had charged White with being a member of the elite Communist group inside the government. White's death was not announced until one day afterward and he was buried hastily. Later it was reported the real cause of his death was an overdose of digitalis, not heart failure.

Death No. 2—Walter Marvin Smith, Justice Department attorney found at the base of the Justice Department staircase where he had fallen or jumped October 20, 1948, shortly after the House Un-American Activities Committee had questioned him on his notorization of the transfer of title of a Ford automobile from Hiss to William Rosen, described in the Congressional testimony as a Communist organizer. Hiss, according to Whittaker Chambers, insisted on turning over his car to the Communist organizer. Smith was the only actual witness to the transfer.

Death No. 3 and the most mysterious of all was that of Laurence Duggan, former State Department official who, "while putting on his overshoes to go home," fell through a New York skyscrapper window. Duggan had been questioned a few days earlier regarding Communist spies in the State Department. Insurance investigators believed it unlikely that a man would commit suicide while putting on his overshoes and paid his widow nonsuicide death benefits.

Clue To Mystery?

It now develops there was a personal link between Duggan and Field which may supply one small clue to this international mystery. Duggan and Field not only served in the State Department at the same time but, for one period, they shared the same house together off Judiciary Square in Washington. Duggan informed his superiors during the war that he once attended Communist meetings in Alexandria, Va., during his early days in the State Department but he had never joined the party and became unsympathetic with their ideas.

Field, meanwhile, had left the State Department in 1936 and joined the League of Nations secretariat. During the war he served as European director of the Unitarian Service Committee which took him to Poland and Czechoslovakia, where he established medical centers and children's homes. He had thus become well acquainted with these two countries and, after the war, remained abroad to write a book on Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Disappearance Unplanned

On May 5, 1949, Field went from Switzerland to Prague and on May 12 he failed to keep an afternoon appointment. He has not been heard of since. Apparently he did not plan to disappear because his room showed no signs of departure. He did not notify the friend with whom he had the appointment nor his wife, Herta, who planned to join him in a few weeks.

Five months later, however, when the Communists tried Hungarian Foreign Minister Laszlo Rajk, the Hungarian press reported that Rajk testified that Field had persuaded him to become "a servant of American imperialism." Later, in the fall of 1950, six East German Communists were charged with dealing with "the American spy, Noel Field."

More recently Czech refugees have reported that Field would testify in the trial of Czech Foreign Minister Vladimir Clementis, though there has been nothing to substantiate this.

Meanwhile, Field's brother, Herman, in August, 1949, decided to go to Prague to find his missing brother. He boarded a plane in Warsaw on August 22. Friends accompanied him to the airport and the American Embassy, checking the plane's manifest later, found his name was on it. However, when the plane arrived at Prague Herman Field was not on it. He has never been heard of since, either, except in one respect.

On February 25, 1950, Vilem Novy, editor of the Czech Communist newspaper, Rude Pravo, was denounced by a member of the Central Communist Committee for having betrayed state secrets to a Western espionage agent when Novy was a refugee in Krakow in 1939. Herman Field, who was then doing refugee work among Czech refugees in Krakow, knew Novy and was apparently that alleged agent.

Theories On Unsolved Mystery

Meanwhile, Mrs. Noel Field left Switzerland on August 3 to seek her husband in Prague but she, too, disappeared from sight on August 17. A year later, with the Fields' whereabouts still unsolved, their friend, Erica Wallachs, wife of a Washington attorney, persuaded her husband to let her go to Switzerland to locate them. Mrs. Wallachs went to Berlin alone, reportedly was met by Leo Bauer, editor of the Soviet controlled Berlin radio whom she knew. She has never been heard of since.

Several theories are given for these these disappearances. One is that Field had been working with the Communists and, when the Congressional investigations got too hot, he wanted to be taken into protective Communist custody. Another theory is that the Fields had worked with the Communists in their early days, knew their vital secrets, and became too dangerous for them to have on the loose. Another is that they wanted Noel Field as a witness against key figures, such as Hungarian Foreign Mister Rajk. Field not only worked with refugees during and after the war but also with the OSS in Czechoslovakia and Hungary in an effort to unseat Hitler's puppet governments.

Meanwhile, until Field and his family are heard from direct, his whereabouts remains the No. 1 unsolved mystery of Europe.

Effects Of Decisions

By MARK SULLIVAN

WE ARE NEARING the end of the great debate. Primarily it has been on sending troops to Europe and if so in what numbers. Secondarily the debate has been on whether the decision should be made wholly by the President or whether Congress should have a hand. The latter issue is increasingly to the front. Many members of Congress support sending troops to Europe, in some numbers and with some limitations—but at the same time fight doggedly for the principle that Congress should participate in making the decisions.

Throughout the arguments against participation by Congress has run a recurrent theme. As put by a highly placed source, Gov. Dewey of New York: "I believe that the deployment of troops is a job for experts and not for politicians. . I will trust Gen. Marshall, Gen. Eisenhower and the Chiefs of Staff, rather than any one else. . ."

Many persons, less exact in expression, have it more colloquilly. In effect they say, "This is a thing for military men to decide." With many undoubtedly this is a conscientious conviction, it could reasonably be. With others it is perhaps an escape from the hard work of thinking the problem through.

In all events this position ignores a profound truth. Military decisions are rarely military alone, almost all important ones are also policy decisions. To put it more exactly, the military decisions have policy effects and the policy effects remain after the war.

Policy Decisions Erred

An example is Yalta. There President Roosevelt, in a secret agreement with Stalin, promised that Russia, after the war, should have territory belonging to China, specifically Manchuria, together with other advantages at the expense of China. Roosevelt made the agreement for a military purpose, to induce Stalin to help us in our war against Japan; up to that time Russia had participated only in the war against Germany. But the Yalta decision had policy effects disastrous to us. It largely enabled Russian communism to overrun China and set up a Communist government of China which now fights us in Korea.

Another example is the invasion of Europe, the "second front." General of the Army Marshall wanted the invasion made through France, launching it in Normandy. As a military decision that was sound distance and other considerations made France the best starting place for the invasion.

But above the level of military decision was policy decision. About that there was two years of dispute. Churchill, wise about the long history of Europe and foresighted about the future, wanted the invasion made through the Balkans, obviously in order that after the war the Balkans and Eastern Europe should be occupied by the Allied Forces, not by the Russians. Stalin wanted the invasion made through, France, naturally; in his conference with Roosevelt and Churchill at Teheran he blustered for it. Roosevelt, after prolonged argument among the three, took Stalin's view. That decision, with others determined by Roosevelt, resulted in the Russians occupying most of the Balkans, most of Eastern Europe and Germany up to and including part of Berlin. That policy decision was a

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Great Planners

ROOSEVELT, Churchill and Stalin met at Teheran in Iran on November 28, 1943, to deal with many questions, among them being "overlord," which Soviet Russia regarded as the second front, and the eventual organization of the world through something like the United Nations.

Stalin was ingenious. In spite of all that we were doing, he minimized all our efforts because we had not yet started "overlord," that is, the second front in Europe by way of France. Nevertheless, Roosevelt pushed the problem of how to maintain the peace once the war was over. He proposed a world organization (similar to the United Nations) with an assembly, and an executive committee, consisting of Soviet Russia, the United States, Great Britain and China, together with ". . . two European nations, one South American, one Middle Eastern, one Far Eastern and one British dominion. This executive committee would deal with all non-military questions—such as economy, food, health, etc."

Let me quote from "Roosevelt and Hopkins" by Robert E. Sherwood:

"Stalin asked whether this committee would have the right to make decisions which would be binding on all the nations. Roosevelt was indecisive in his answer to that one. He did not believe that the Congress would permit the United States to be bound by the decision of such a body . . ."

Then Roosevelt wanted a third body to be brought into existence which he termed "the four policemen," consisting of Soviet Russia, the United States, Great Britain and China.

This body would exist to act immediately, if the threat to peace appeared. Roosevelt was impressed with the fact that the League of Nations could debate but not act. "The four policemen" would be able to pitch right in.

Stalin correctly noted that the smaller nations of Europe would not like this at all. And then he gave his hand away when he said that China would not be very powerful when the war was over. He knew that in 1943, although it could have appeared then that if Japan were out of the way, China could be a very strong nation, indeed. So Stalin proposed a committee for Europe and another for Asia. Presumably Russia would be on both committees as she existed on both continents.

Roosevelt's problem was that while he thought the United States would go along on a world organization, Congress would not favor a strictly European entanglement. In this, of course, he was wiser than Harry Truman and Dean Acheson, who, while they were able to put over the North Atlantic Alliance, never could make it popular. And Roosevelt also realized that whatever was unpopular was unsound politically in a free country.

Hopkins in Sherwood's book comments:

"Stalin said that if the President's suggestion for a world organization were carried out—particularly the four policemen part of it — this might require the sending of American troops overseas. Roosevelt said that he had only foreseen the sending of American naval and air forces to Europe and that any land armies needed in the event of a future threat would have to be provided by Britain and the Soviet Union.

Again Roosevelt displayed a keener understanding of the American people than Truman or Acheson, or, for that matter, Marshall and Eisenhower. The American people have not favored sending ground troops throughout the world, but have not resented sending the navy or the marines. And apparently their attitude toward the air force is identical to their attitude toward the navy.

Roosevelt further is reported by Hopkins to have taken this position:

"The major threat would be provided by a gesture of aggression on the part of a large power; in this case the four policemen would send an ultimatum to the threatening nation and, if the demands were not immediately met, they would subject that nation to bombardment and, if necessary, invasion. (There seems to be no evidence of any discussion of the possibility that the offending aggressor might be one of the four policemen.)"

Again, it is interesting that in Harry Hopkins' report on this discussion, he barely mentions Winston Churchill. Apparently, he was squeezed out between Roosevelt and Stalin. It will be interesting to read of this particular discussion in Churchill's report on Teheran when it appears.

These three elderly men were dividing the world between them—which must have been a wonderful thing to do, but Roosevelt missed one point: he was speaking to his enemy.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — American leadership in the United Nations will have to be exerted promptly if the military expedition now in Korea is not to become enmeshed in a strait jacket of political inhibitions.

The spectacle of a military force hemmed in by political considerations in the midst of a battle is unprecedented in history—and what is worse, the considerations which are influencing the outcome are hidden from view.

When General MacArthur, in his cabled answer to the question propounded by Hugh Baillie of the United Press, states to all the world that neither the 38th Parallel nor any other line across the peninsula favors "positional warfare," he is, in effect, declaring that there must be a continuous war of maneuver "unless the situation is radically altered." He adds that the "problem involved requires more fundamental decisions than are within my authority or responsibility to make as the military commander — decisions which must not ignore the heavy cost in Allied blood which a protracted and indecisive campaign would entail."

Significant Message

The General has always chosen his words carefully in answering queries, and there is vast significance in the idea he has sought to convey by his latest message. For unquestionably, if there is no place to take up a position defensively on any line across the Korean peninsula, the only two things left to do are to continue indefinitely an indecisive war of maneuver or to push ahead to the Yalu River with enough troops and air bombardment of bases across the Manchurian border to protect our advancing armies.

What General MacArthur is saying, from his long experience as a strategist, is that the offensive he undertook last November was logical on the assumption that Red China would stay out but that, without the right to strike at the enemy's bases and supply lines across the Manchurian border, it would be a mistake now to try this. He implies, however, that the U. N. cannot indefinitely subject Allied armies in Korea to a long war without defining more explicitly its objectives and without removing some of the barriers that stand between the UN forces and ultimate victory —namely, as he calls it, "the accomplishment of our mission in the unification of Korea."

The principal barrier is the supposed unwillingness of a majority of the UN to permit UN forces to achieve their real objective, which is to drive the Red Chinese out of Korea even if it means fighting the Communists north as well as south of the Yalu River. Just why Red Chinese troops cannot be killed north of the boundary but can be killed in large numbers south of that line is inexplicable.

It is important also to bear in mind that, if permission to bomb bases north of the Manchurian border is not to be granted by the UN then our forces must remain far enough south of the Yalu River to allow for a field of fire for our airplanes against enemy supply lines. This is but another way of saying that, without the right to bombard across the Manchurian boundary, the UN forces are committed indefinitely to what General MacArthur calls a war of maneuver.

What then will happen? Must the UN forces stay there for months and perhaps years? The answer will be forthcoming in a few weeks when the snow thaws and the mud bogs down the movement of troops and when the enemy will be able to move without so much fear of air attack, inasmuch as flying weather gets bad seasonally soon. A decision will come then and if the Red Chinese get a beating, peace may ensue.

The viewpoint held here in high quarters is that Red China already has been checked in Southeast Asia,

THE FELLOWSHIP SERVES

Ye are the salt of the earth.
Matthew 5:13
Read Luke 15:11-32

Jesus indicated that if a man should perform the function of salt, he could have much to do in making the world good.

Every housewife knows that salt is used to keep things from going rotten. It is man's natural ally to health, and the antagonist to the germs that produce disease.

The little silk-mill worker, in Browning's "Pippa Passes," tripped down the street singing.

"God's in his heaven —
All's right with the world!"

But we know that not all is right with the world. There ought to be people in our churches who are vital enough, healthy enough, and pungent enough to encounter corruption and destroy it.

Salt, too, has the quality of bringing out the flavor. The Book of Job asks, "Is there any taste in the white of an egg?" No, but salt can work a miracle with it. So with other things. Homes can be brightened; dull, sparkless lives can be lit up, if some radiant personality sets out to restore the lost savors and release the hidden powers.

Salt is also a neutralizer. Thank God for people whose very presence subdues our bitterness and keeps life fresh and desirable.

Let Us Pray: Loving Creator, impart to us the life-giving spirit of thy Son, that it may breathe through us to be felt by those whose lives touch ours. We pray in his name. Amen.

County May Hard Surface More Roads

Members of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners learned at their conference with State Roads Commission officials Thursday in Baltimore that there may be a possibility of having approximately five miles of secondary roads in this county hard surfaced under the federal aid program, in addition to the three projects scheduled.

The county has approximately $47,000 to its credit with the State Roads Commission over and above the funds contributed for the Williams Road, Mill Run and Lower Town Creek Road projects under the federal aid program.

The commissioners were informed by the SRC officials that there is the prospect of an increase of about $20,000 in gasoline tax funds in this county due to the amount of gasoline which is believed will be sold during the current year.

If the $20,000 increase materializes, the county will submit the sections of secondary roads which it wishes to be included in the federal aid probram. These roadways must have a stone base and be graded. The board will know within the next month if the federal aid will be available.

These secondary road projects will be of much lower specifications than the three projects now under contract in the county. Tarring and chipping of the roads will be the extent of the work and will provide a fairly good surface for farm-to-market travel.

The commissioners pointed out this morning that the three federal aid projects will cost a total of $339,210.02 and the county has only had to levy $60,000 directly in taxes. The balance of the money comes from gasoline tax funds each year over a $200,000 base and is matched with federal funds.

The $200,000 which is used by the county for road maintenance, is added to approximately $55,000 to $60,000 in tax moneys levied by the commissioners to take care of the operations of the County Roads Department.

Total cost of each of the three federal aid projects in the county, which are scheduled to be completed during the coming construction season, is as follows:

Williams Road, $201,819; Lower Town Creek Road, $49,503.33 and Mill Run Road, $87,787.65.

County Agents Seek Pay Hike In New Budget

The proposed budget for the fiscal year starting July 1 to operate the County Extension Service program was submitted to the Allegany County Board of Commisisoners yesterday.

John Magruder, state leader of county farm agents, met with the board and accompanying him were Ralph F. McHenry, county farm agent, and Miss Maude A. Bean, county home demonstration agent.

Magruder explained the budget request of $6,120 was the share of Allegany county towards the program. The state and federal governments also contribute. The increase over last year's budget is $500 and Magruder explained it is for salary raises for McHenry, Miss Bean and their assistants, Miss Thelma Allin and Joseph M. Steger.

Under the budget proposal, McHenry would get $100 more annually from the county, Miss Bean, $200 and Miss Allin and Steger each $100. The state has also been asked to contribute towards a budget increase to provide for more salary for the Extension Service workers.

He explained that the Extension Service in Maryland has lost about 10 per cent of its personnel due to some of the younger men being drafted and others leaving for better paying jobs or else transferring to farming.

Even though the new blues may not be right for you, here are touches that will make them becoming!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

EVER been baited by high-fashion into getting an outfit less flattering to your own coloring than it should be? That is what this season's grayed-off blue will do to many a lovely. This tempting hue taxes the complexion of all but the fairest. Slate, soldier and French blues have a deadening effect on most skins, unless handled adroitly.

What it takes is some skillful color contrasts in accessories and possibly a new shade of rouge, lipstick and eyeshadow. Let's consider the accessory strategy first. As usual, your personal coloring will be the governing factor:

Brunettes Break Rules

If you have brunette skin, which is any tint from cream to olive, and you (who shouldn't) fall for a dusty blue, break all my previous rules about selecting only accessories that contain the same undertones as the main part of your outfit. Any more blue tones agains your skin and you'll be sallowe to the point where folks will star to worry about your health!

Instead, get something close tc your face that is spiked with warm golden or rosy tones . . . perhaps a hat, blouse, scarf or posy. You will find your accessory color solved by any of these popular shades: Melon, apricot, nasturtium, geranium, daffodil or lime. All of these shades will enhance your skin and none will clash with your blue because the new indigos are subdued almost to the point of becoming a neutral.

Accents For Blondes

Now, if you are fair skinned, although the smoky blues are theoretically becoming to your type, you may find they drain your complexion of its delicate tints. If so, add some bright-bright touch which contains blue undertones. (The rules hold firm for you.) Fuschia, turquoise, periwinkle, lilac or violet are the seasonal colors that will perform handsomely for you.

As for make-up, the brunette type should wear the clearest, strongest true or orangy red that is available in lipstick and matching rouge; the fair should chose a lipstick and rouge that is bright blue-red but not purply. No matter what your skin coloring, experiment ith these eye shadows: For brown hazel eyes, blue gray shadow; or green, gray or blue eyes, brown shadow. The effect should be wonderful!

Monday: What veil should you choose?

Britain Favors Peace Try When Line Stabilized

LONDON, March 16 (AP)—Britain has told America the United Nations should seek a Korean settlement with Red China when U. N. forces stabilize themselves around the 38th parallel, western diplomats reported tonight.

They said the British suggestion has been received with some sympathy in Washington, where talks on the political aspects of the Korean war take place from time to time.

Britain, the sources added, reaffirmed she is against the idea of a major U. N. thrust into North Korea.

That kind of action, her spokesmen in Washington have argued, would expose the U. N. forces—with extended lines of supply—to another strong Communist counter-offensive.

When a stable military line has been established—either just below or just above the parallel, whichever is militarily more tenable—Britain has suggested a cease-fire offer should go to Red China to open the way for a political settlement in accordance with declared U. N. objectives.

These objectives include restoration of Korea as an united, independent, democratic country.

Britain, the informants reported, is in agreement with the United States that the Communists should be left guessing as to whether U. N. forces intend, or do not intend, to plunge over the 38th parallel. To make it plain right now there is no such intention would be to give information of high military value to the Reds, the two countries believe.

C. Of C. Favors RFC's Abolition

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP)—The U. S. Chamber of Commerce today supported Republican demands in Congress for immediate abolition of the multi-billion dollar Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The chamber's 45-member board of directors adopted a resolution declaring that facts disclosed in the current senate RFC operations.

"Engaged as we are in a national mobilization effort, we cannot afford to have the integrity or the general moral level of the government or any of its agencies subject to question," he said.

The business-civic organization noted that the big federal lending agency was set up in 1932 to cope with depression problems, and said its continued existence in the present "inflationary era" cannot be justified.

The resolution said the agency should be dissolved "without delay," saying it would save $18,000,000 in administrative expenses and trim the federal payroll "now a record high level" by 3,000 employes.

A-Spy Trial Awaits Witnesses From Afar

NEW YORK, March 16 (AP)—The nation's first atom spy trial heard brief testimony today and then adjourned until Tuesday to await prosecution witnesses from "distant places."

In mentioning the "distant places," the prosecution did not identify them.

Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman said the trial was moving more rapidly than he expected and that it might go to the jury "the week after next."

Ship Blast Kills Nine

NAPLES, Italy, March 16 (AP) — The 10,448-ton Italian oil tanker Montallegro exploded today in Naples harbor, killing nine workmen and injuring 59.

The blast shook the whole waterfront, split the vessel in two and caused heavy damage along the wharf to which the ship had put in for repairs.

As the Battershaw brothers and Sweet fled into the forest, firing all the while at Dahm and Wilhelm, the officers radioed for reinforcements, including horses.

Sheriff John Crosby arrived with four other officers. Both sides fired from behind trees and the desperadoes fell back.

A fusillade of fire by the officers pinned the trio on a ridge.

Crosby and Wilhelm took to the horses and circled around behind the ridge. Moving in close, Wilhelm cracked down on Dewey Battershaw with a six-shooter slug and ended the fight.

West German Share Of Expenses Boosted

BONN, Germany, March 16 (AP)—The Allied High Commission notified the West Germans today their bill for occupation cost and defense is being boosted a fifth in the new fiscal year to 6,595,000,000 marks (about $1,560,000,000. That's 6.3 per cent of the estimated national income.

West German spokesmen didn't like it, though the commission explained:

The increase results from the Allied security guarantee to West Germany.

This display was the table decoration at the annual Girl Scout Parent-Daughter dinner Thursday night at St. Mary's Hall.

firm in making contacts, drawing up plans, obtaining a suitable site and getting financial backing, he mentioned that over 1,000 man hours of Frostburg residents were utilized.

Richardson Wood and Company recently completed a six month temporary contract with the County and City and during this test period has revamped the Berkowitz development in Frostburg and acquired various contracts which offer possibility of successful conclusions.

Yesterday morning Wood signed a contract with the Cumberland Allegany Industrial Development Company for one year beginning February 15, 1951. William C. Walsh, president of the company and Harold W. Smith, secretary signed the contract on behalf of the city-county company.

Purpose Of Firm

The purpose of acquiring the services of the New York firm is to get the industrial advantages of Cumberland and vicinity into the hands of prospective businessmen. The firm makes contacts, checks resources, man power, location and finances and compiles these for industrial men who plan on expansion.

He said that Cumberland aggressiveness in obtaining new industry is well established. The willingness to work and further the encouragement of new industrial development in the area is well known in Washington and firms as far west as Chicago have heard of the prospects of this area.

A short question and answer period followed Wood's talk prior to the closing of the meeting.

Parkway Bill

highways in Pennsylvania would come through this area to get to the new parkway thus increasing the Cumberland Valley's importance to east-west travel and trade."

Would Increase Work Here

Patrick J. Carroll, manager of state department of employment security, indicated the increase in employment here would be tremendous if the plans for the parkway are approved.

"It means many improvements," he said, "and the work required would be beneficial to the entire area. Rebuilding of historical sites would bring Cumberland back into the limelight as it was in the past when the canal was a useful mode of transporation and the gateway to the east. A good part of the work for more than 25 miles of the estimated 180 miles of roadway for the national route would be provided by Cumberland labor.

"It's a mighty fine project," Carroll continued, and would mean a great deal to the city and the entire area. The project would employ large numbers of persons of skills and trades which are abundant in this area. The movement of certain railroad crossings would help alleviate the tremendous traffic problem confronting the city of Cumberland and the work plans would utilize the great surplus of labor here."

Wonderful Peacetime Plan

Arthur B. Gibson, city auditor, at first planned to attend the Annapolis hearing on Senate Bill 183 for the state to purchase necessary lands for the right of way for the new highway but the press of duties in Cumberland caused him to cancel the trip.

"It's a wonderful peacetime project," Gibson remarked, "and would certainly stimulate the flow of business through this area, something the city is in dire need of right now. New business here might help to tide the ctiy's finances over also," Gibson went on, "thus not necessitating too much use of additional taxing powers now being sought by our local government."

EQUITY CASE FILED

An equity case was filed in Allegany County Circuit Court yesterday in a bill of complaint titled Christine D. Lewis vs. Andrew Melvin Lewis.

The second game of the playoff semi-finals is scheduled for Sunday night at 9 p. m., on SS. Peter and Paul court, Cumberland.

Beaver Falls and Erie will tangle in the final of the best-of-three-games series Sunday at 3 p. m., in Erie, Pa.

Cumberland outplayed the Blues in the first half of tonight's game, leading 22-21 at the quarter, and 42-36 at intermission, but the home team put the game on ice in the third period when it outscored the Marylanders 32-18 to enter the final stanza on the long end of a 74-54 count.

Ralph (Pug) Heinz, playing his first league game for Wheeling, led the Blues in scoring with 10 goals and 24 points. Andy Tonkovich and Bob Pelaez registered 19 points each. Bob Pence and Jack Murphy were high scorers for the Spas with 16 and 15 markers.

The officials called 41 personal fouls—22 on Wheeling and 19 on the visitors, also three technicals on the Blues.

Wheeling could sew it up by winning Sunday's game. Tonight's victory was the 6th in seven starts against the Spas this season. Cumberland won the playoffs last season. Lineups:

Bob Murphy KOs Danny Bucceroni

San Diego Battler Wins In 5th Round

NEW YORK, March 16 (AP)—Stout hearted Bob Murphy took everything young Danny Bucceroni could throw tonight and then wore down the Philadelphia butcher boy to win on a technical knockout in 51 seconds of the fifth round of a bloody battle in Madison Square Garden. Murphy, a 2 to 1 favorite, weighed 177 to Bucceroni's 172.

Blood gushed from every pore on the 23-year-old Bucceroni's face as the San Diego sailor battered his helpless foe in a corner of the ring. Referee Ruby Goldstein pulled the relentless redhead away from his victim and stopped the fight. There was no protest from lanky Danny.

This was the Philadelphia stringbean's bid for the big time. He had scored 30 victories in 31 fights, and had won his 18 in a row, the final eight by knockouts. The opposition had been pushovers.

It was a strong comeback for Murphy who, only two weeks ago in this same ring, absorbed a shellacking from Harry Matthews. It was Murphy's 56th victory against four losses and put him in the running again for a title shot with Lightheavyweight Champion Joey Maxim.

A crowd of 6,726 paid $22,835. Millions of other fans tuned in via television and radio network broadcasts.

Fairview Wins Class B Title

Green Bank Beaten In Finals, 42 To 40

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., March 16 (AP)—A faster, ball-hawking Fairview quintet beat down jittery Green Bank's last-ditch rally today to capture the state Class B basketball title with a 42-40 decision.

A crowd of 4,940 spent most of the last quarter on its feet as the losers, unbeaten in 27 games this year prior to the finals, stormed back from a 13-point deficit.

Behind 40-27 after three periods in which they appeared hopelessly out of the contest, the Green Bank forces outscored the Indians 13-2 in the final eight minutes and had them on the ropes.

With but five seconds remaining, Bruce Bosely dropped in the first of two free throws awarded him to pull the Eagles within two points. But the losers, after waiving the second foul toss and taking the ball out of bounds, saw their last chance to force play into an overtime fade as Ken Shears' last-second shot was wild.

Mike Marko of the ball-hawking, faster Indians and the losers' Bill Sutton shared scoring honors with 17 points each. Green Bank appeared tense and jittery through the first three periods.

SPORTS GRILL

by Pat Robinson
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, March 16 (INS) — St. Patrick's Day is with us again tomorrow and it was on that day 28 years ago that the biggest mistake of all time in boxing took place.

For that was the day that Battling Siki, the Singular Senegalese, laid his world's light heavyweight title on the line in a bout with Mike McTigue, an Irishman, in Dublin, Ireland.

You may recall the result: Siki blew his title by a dubious decision at the end of 20 rounds.

Siki was by all odds the strangest character the world of sport has ever known.

He was a little fellow only 10 years old roaming the jungles of West Africa when he fell into the hands of the French. His Tribal name was Baye.

A wealthy French woman took charge of him, brought him to her home in Nice, France, and renamed him Louis Phail. He acted as a messenger boy and did odd jobs around the chateau for three years. During that time he discovered that his amazing strength and endurance was more than any little tough French boy could handle.

When his patroness died, Siki got a job washing dishes in a bar which gave him further opportunities for street fighting, which he loved, and a chance to pick up a little more of the French language.

Somebody advised him to become a professional fighter and so he did. He won his first three fights for which he got a total of 80 cents.

However, money never bothered Siki. So long as he had enough to eat and drink, especially drink, a place to sleep and a chance to fight, he was happy.

World War I came along about that time and Siki had a chance to do some real fighting in the French army. He fought so well that he was awarded the Croix De Guerre and the Medaille Militaire.

After the war a manager got him and took him on a tour of Europe during which he met all comers and belted most of them out with great regularity.

Gorgeous Georges Carpentier then was world's light heavyweight champion and the idol of all France. He accepted a title match with the half civilized Siki on whom Georges looked with contempt.

The result: Siki knocked out Georges in six rounds which was unfortunate for both men. Siki became the toast of the boulevards and, like many a more intelligent man, he couldn't stand prosperity.

His escapades brought about his exile from Europe. The next heard of him he was raising Cain in Canada and Hallujah in Havana where he broke some ribs jumping out of a hotel window.

He got into more street brawls as well as bouts in this country, for which he never trained, and finally was stabbed in a row. Sent to a hospital, he escaped clad only in a pair of pale pink pajamas and went back to his hotel, where he lived with his wife, a monkey, a big dog, two cats and 12 parrots.

The government tried to deport Siki. Deportation proceedings ended when Siki made his worst and final mistake. He got into a saloon brawl and wound up with two slugs in the back which killed him.

The best grasslands in Europe are in northern France.

Thomas C. Ferguson, State Physical Ed Leader, Dies

Headed State Athletic Program For 14 Years; Military Rites Set

BALTIMORE, March 16 (AP)—Thomas C. Ferguson, supervisor of health, physical education and recreation in the State Department of Education, died today at Bon Secours Hospital. He was 59.

A veteran of both world wars, Ferguson headed the athletic program in Maryland's public schools for 14 years. He was credited with reorganizing and revitalizing the physical education program in the state schools, expanding it to embrace more organized sports and attract thousands more participants.

Ferguson was a four-star athlete in his undergraduate college days at the University of South Dakota. He took part in football, basketball, baseball and track.

He received a bachelor's degree from South Dakota in 1915, a master's degree from Harvard in 1930 and a doctor's degree from George Washington University in 1941. He was a native of Adams, Mass.

Before coming to Maryland, he served as physical directors for the YMCA at Somerville, Mass., professor of physical education at Tufts College, supervisor of physical education for public schools in New Bedford, Mass., and director of Boys Clubs in Winchendon, Mass.

Ferguson is survived by his widow and two sisters.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday morning in Baltimore with military rites and burial Tuesday afternoon in Arlington, Va., National Cemetery.

Dayton Flyers, Brigham Young Meet In Finals

Invitation Tourney Will Close Tonight

By JOHN BARRINGTON

NEW YORK, March 16 (INS)—Dayton and Brigham Young will bid tomorrow night for the championship of the first National Invitation Basketball Tournament in which either ever has played.

And reserve strength—or lack of it—may be the key to the success or failure of these two tournament novices.

Brigham Young's third-seeded Cougars have been ultra impressive in a 75-to-58 rout of St. Louis and a 69-to-59 defeat of Seton Hall.

Unhearlded Dayton has defeated Lawrence Tech, 77 to 71, fourth-seeded Arizona, 74 to 68, and top-seeded St. John's, 69 to 62, in an overtime.

But neither the Cougars nor the Flyers has shown a strong bench. BYU has depended almost solely on six men—Roland Minson, Joe Richey, Mel Hutchins, Hal Christensen, Jerry Romney and Dick Jones.

The Flyers, too, have shown only six men who can operate at with full efficiency—Pete Boyle, Gene Hickey, Don Meineke, Dick Campbell, Leland Norris and Chuck Grigsby.

Nevertheless, the Cougars wrecked Seton Hall's three-platoon system, while Dayton—although it blew a ten-point lead against St. John's—managed to rip the Redmen apart in overtime with Meineke and Norris out on fouls.

Another important facet of the Cougar-Flyer duel will be the personal battle between Hutchins and Meineke. The 6' 7" Flyer center has scored 78 points in three games, although St. John's Zeke Zawoluk stopped him with 11.

If Hutchins, only 6' 5" but one of the most graceful big men in basketball, can handle Meineke the way he did Seton Hall's 6' 10" kingpin, Walt Dukes, then Dayton's chances will be much impaired.

St. John's and Seton Hall meet in a preliminary game for third place.

Seattle Routs Mounts, 102-85

O'Brien Chalks Up 45 Points In Albany Tilt

ALBANY, N. Y., March 16 (AP)—Five-foot-nine John O'Brien dumped in 45 points tonight to lead Seattle to a 102-85 victory over Mount St. Mary's (Md) in the semi-finals of the National Catholic Invitation Basketball Tourney.

LeMoyne of Syracuse faced St. Francis of Brooklyn in the other semifinal.

O'Brien, from South Amboy, N. J., shattered the individual scoring record of 40, and his 18 field goals broke the old mark of 16. Les Cosgrove of Mount St. Mary's held the old marks.

Seattle's total cracked the team scoring record of 95 held by Lemoyne.

The teams tied six times in the first half before the West Coast cagers took over for good. Seattle led 56-42 at intermission and kept control the rest of the way.

Cosgrove scored 30 for Mount St. Mary's.

Legislators Agree Wrestling "Goons" Should Be Probed

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 16 (AP)—Maryland's House of Delegates agreed today that the State Athletic Commission should do something about the "goons" of professional wrestling.

A favorable report on a resolution urging the commission to look into "the sham and pretense" of wrestling was adopted by the delegates.

Two Democrats, Leroy Pumphrey of Prince Georges and Mrs. Leona M. Rush of Montgomery, sponsored the resolution.

Pumphrey did so after attending the bouts in Baltimore last week.

"I'm not trying to hurt wrestling, I'm trying to save it," he insisted. He confessed to a love of sports, but "one goon swinging at another goon" is not athletics in his opinion.

Gehrmann And Wilt To Race At Chicago

CHICAGO, March 16 (INS) — Don Gehrmann hopes to make a comeback in the Bankers' Mile at the Chicago Relays tomorrow night to wipe out three straight losses.

The former Wisconsin distance runner won 39 straight races before going into his recent slump.

He was beaten first this year by FBI-agent Fred Wilt in New York on March 3. Len Truex then defeated Gehrmann at the Knights of Columbus meet in Cleveland. Wilt outran Gerhmann a second time in the Milwaukee Relays last Saturday.

Wilt, Stewart Ray of the New York Athletic Club and Denis Johansson of Finland will be Gehrmann's opposition tomorrow night when he seeks his fourth straight victory in the Bankers' Mile.

Ocean City To Test Braves At College Park Today At 3:30

Allegany county will be seeking two of the three championships when six schools tangle today in the finals of Maryland's Class A, B and C scholastic basketball tournaments at the University of Maryland's gymnasium at College Park.

Barton High School, defending champion, will battle it out with Ocean City in the Class "C" finals at 3:30 o'clock.

Barton's Average 61.7

Coach John Thomas' Bartonites copped the title last year by scoring four straight wins. In 1947, 1948 and 1949 the Braves were eliminated in Class "D" tournaments. Boasting a 20-3 record and a scoring average of 61.7 points per game, the Braves have knocked off Friendsville, 79-33, Hancock, 66-27, and Sherwood High of Sandy Spring, 84-42, to date in the state tourney. Ocean City advanced to the finals on Tuesday by defeating Clarksville, 1950 finalist, 52-41.

Barton's starting lineup is expected to be Bob and Bill Kirk at the forward posts. Arnold Tichnell, center, Don Bean and Tim Clark, guards.

Central High School, coached by John Meyers, is also the defending champion in today's Class "B" final. A year ago the 'Coney school won four straight in the tournament, climaxing its drive with a 50-37 decision over Elkton.

The Tigers have a season's record of 17 wins and 6 losses and they're now in a five-game winning streak. In the state tourney the Orange and Black has taken the measure of Oakland 61-37, Williamsport 66-42 and Gaithersburg 39-25.

Central Faces Aberdeen

Aberdeen High School of Harford county is Ceneral's opponent tonight at 7 o'clock. Aberdeen knocked out Cambridge on Wednesday by the score of 51-50. The Lonaconing quint has averaged 49.7 points per game for 23 contests.

Hagerstown High will be the third Western Maryland quint in tonight's finals. Coach Mel Henry's Hubs will meet Wicomico's High of Salisbury in the Class "A" final at 8 o'clock.

Worsham Leads By One Stroke

Oakmont Pro Posts 67 At Jacksonville

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 16—Lew Worsham of Oakmont, Pa., shot a five under par 67 for the first round lead in the $10,000 Jacksonville Open Golf Tournament today.

Worsham, 1947 National Open Champion, birdied five holes and stuck to par on the other 13 of the 6,508-yard course. He sank one long putt—a 40 footer—but the rest of his birds he credited to accurate wedge shots from 100 yards or so off the green.

Lew Worsham

Jim Ferrier of San Francisco, the big Australian who won the Miami Beach Open last Sunday and the St. Petersburg Open a week earlier, was tied with Jack Shields, 30-year-old professional from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, one stroke behind Worsham with 68.

Ferrier played steady golf and birdied the last two holes for his 34-34. Shields flashed a 32 on the par 36 front nine but couldn't better par 36 on the second nine.

As Ferrier remarked "it's a tricky course." And Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, the leading money winner of the year, proved it by shooting a 77.

"I hit the ball well but I just can't score on this Florida sand," Mangrum explained. The Seminole Country Club at Palm Beach, where Mangrum won $2,500 earlier this week, is a different type course, he said. It doesn't have the sandy fairways of most Florida courses, he added.

Ed Furgol of Royal Oak, Mich., Dave Douglas of Newark, Del., Jimmy Clark of Laguna Beach, Calif., Max Evans of Detroit, Doug Ford of Yonkers, N. Y., and defending champion Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn., were tied at 70.

Beckley, Charleston Advance To Finals

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., March 16 (AP) — Beckley crushed Clarksburg Victory 67-43 and Charleston trampled Morgantown 78-60 tonight en route to a meeting tomorrow in the state Class A basketball meet's title clash.

A turn-away crowd of 6,800 saw 6-5 Willie Bergines engineer the skyscraping Beckley five's triumph with 32 points. Charleston's height and balance proved too much for the almost single-handed, 38-point effort by Morgantown's Charles Huggins.

Huggins' performance, certainly one of the most brilliant in recent tournament history, was believed also to be at least a modern tournament point record.

THINGS LOOKIN' UP, CINCINNATI WAY

'We're Improved Over '51,' Promises Red Boss Sewell

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the fifth of a series of articles on the 1951 prospects of the major league baseball teams.

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor

TAMPA, Fla.—James Luther (Luke) Sewell, beginning his second year as manager of the Cincinnati Reds, sees red when he reads the pre-season polls and finds his club has been relegated to the cellar in the National league.

"Worst of all," says Luke, "they not only put us in last place, but deep in the cellar."

Needless to say, Luke and his band of Reds plan to show 'em, the same as they did last year when the club, given a low rating, played terrific ball in the second half of the season and finished in sixth place, ahead of both the Cubs and Pirates.

"We're definitely improved since last spring," he says, "but how much we have improved over the second half of the 1950 season remains to be seen.

"We're much better. In fact, I'd say we're a great deal better. If we can get some breaks, get some help from one of our young pitchers and from one of our young outfielders, we can do a lot of damage in this league."

Speaking about his pitchers, Alabama Luke says: "I think we have a better staff than last year. Certainly it's not the worst staff in the league."

THE REDS' pitching is headed by "the Whip," Ewell Blackwell, one of the standouts in the league.

Blackie, after long months of ailments in 1949 when he dropped down to 145 pounds on his 6-foot 6-inch frame, came back last year with 17 victories and has looked even better this spring. He weighs 200 pounds now.

The other Redleg starters are the 33-year-old veteran, Lefty Ken Raffensberger, who won 14 last season; Herman Wehmeier, big righthander with a world of stuff and a guy who won 10 games in 1950; Howie Fox, another righthander who had a 11-8 record with Cincy, and Willard Ramsdell, a rightie who spent part of last season with Brooklyn.

Among the newcomers, the best appears to be Jim Blackburn, who won 21 games for Tulsa last year and has drawn praise from most of the Red staff. Luke says the guy can pitch and always had a good curve ball and now has added a slider.

Other rookie flingers up who may help are Bud Byerly, who won 17 for Syracuse and Eddie Erautt, who has been up before but who has looked the best he ever has in spring camp this year.

The Redleg catching could be very good. Bob Scheffing, who spent several years with the Cubs, came to Cincinnati last year and failed to help because of a dead arm. But he underwent an operation last September for removal of bone chips and if he comes through the Reds may find him to be their No. 1 receiver. If not, the job probably will go to big John Pramesa, who hit .307 in 74 games in his sophomore year last season.

THE REDS have a power boy in the infield. He is Ted Kluszewski, the former Indiana university athlete who finally reached good heights last year. Ted thumped 25 homers, drove in 111 runs and batted .307. He was the first Redleg in nine years to have 100 or more RBI's, the last fellow being Frank McCormick, who played first for the Reds for many years.

At second the fight is between Bobby Adams, who played a fine brand of ball in the second half last season, and Connie Ryan, for years a reserve infielder with the Braves.

Virgil Stallcup is the shortstop and a good-looking prospect here is Roy McMillan, a 20-year-old glove man who played with Tulsa last season.

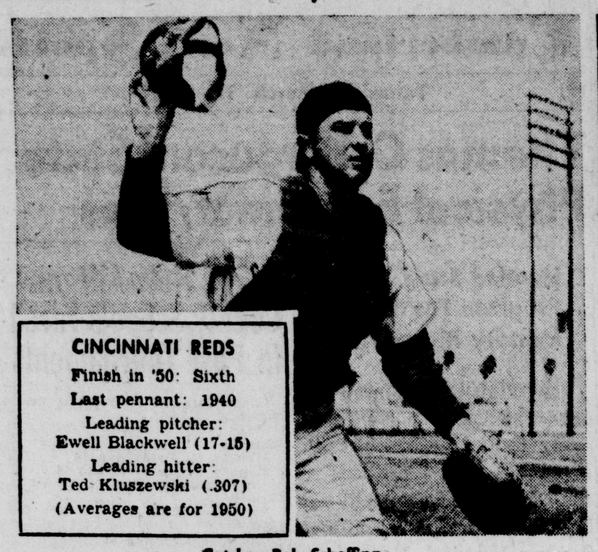

Grady Hatton had one of his weaker years at third for the Reds last year but Sewell says he has looked good this spring. Grady also has been worked at second with Adams at third.

A little more power in the outfield would help. The fly chasers are Johnny Wyrostek, who batted .285 in 131 games; Joe Adcock, a sophomore who started out as a first sacker last year and wound up in the outfield and did a fine job; Bob Usher, and Lloyd Merriman.

Among the hopefuls here are Walter Post, who hit .294 for Tulsa, and Bob Hazle, who batted .313 for Columbia.

Last year the team started with several oldsters in the lineup and they failed to come through. When younger men were inserted the club began to click.

Sewell has installed several mechanical gadgets this year to help in the training program. A "sweat box" which permits the pitchers to warm up without any cold breezes blowing on them is the most talked-about gadget in camp. Sewell also has a control pitching contraption and an "Iron Mike" pitching machine.

Irish Will Continue Their Efforts To Liberate Country, Minister Says

(Sean McBride, Irish minister for external affairs, charges in the following exclusive St. Patrick's Day article that Britain has no claim to sovereignty over any portion of Ireland.

(At the same time, the Irish minister serves notice that the Irish will continue their efforts to "liberate and unify the whole" of their country, despite "Britain's undemocratic interference in our affairs.")

By SEAN McBRIDE, S.C., T.D.

WASHINGTON, March 16 (INS)—I am very glad to have this opportunity of extending through the International News Service the greetings of the Irish people to the people of the United States.

St. Patrick's Day is not merely the national feast day of Ireland but it is also the symbol of the spiritual and moral values for which the Irish people stand throughout the world.

The spread of Christianity throughout Europe after the fall of the Roman Empire was one of the tasks undertaken from Ireland. Through the centuries the Irish people have maintained the faith and idealism which originated in that era of her history.

It was that faith and idealism which enabled Ireland to survive in the centuries of conquest and to preserve in her determination to achieve complete independence.

Many of you who may read this message have been born in Ireland or are descendants of people who came from Ireland and will therefore want to know how Ireland is faring. Economically tremendous progress has been made in recent years. The task which the Irish people faced when they obtained control over their own affairs (in that portion of Ireland which is free) was a tremendous one; in effect, it was the task of reconstructing the Irish economy.

This would have been a difficult task in normal times but it was rendered far more difficult by reason of the civil war and of the enforced unjust partition of our small island. Nevertheless, it is now possible to register progress in every field of economic activity.

In the political field the main objective of the Irish people remains the achievement of complete liberty for the whole of Ireland. This is a matter on which there is complete agreement between all parties in the portion of Ireland that is free. In this sphere, too, we are hopeful that this strange anomaly cannot survive for long in the present day world.

To put it very simply we are merely seeking to establish the right of the Irish people to determine their own affairs freely and by democratic means without interference by any outside power.

This I think cannot be said to be an unreasonable claim. It is the right which you and the people of any other free country enjoy.

Of all democratic rights the right to national self-determination is the one which is the most fundamental, as it is on the assertion of this right that all other democratic rights ultimately rest. There is no country in the world which can claim to exercise the right of national self-determination more justly than Ireland can.

The natural boundaries of our nation are clearly defined by the seas that surround our island. Few countries can claim a more clearly defined and age-long national history dating back to before the days of St. Patrick than Ireland can.

Likewise, few countries can claim a more homogeneous population than Ireland: They are the same color and they speak the same language.

In these circumstances what justification can Britain claim to the exercise of sovereignty over any portion of Ireland?

He have no feeling of emnity or hostility towards Britain based on past wrongs. Our desire is to live on good terms with a neighbor that insists on squatting in a portion of your house against your will.

I know that a section of opinion in Britain likes to suggest that this is a problem to be settled by Irishmen and that Britain merely plays the part of the "honest broker." I only wish this were true but I am afraid that it is not.

In accordance with the facts it is merely the convenient way of seeking to justify Britain's undemocratic interference in our affairs.

We are grateful to the people of the United States for the sympathy and support they have always extended to us in our struggle for independence and we know that they will continue to watch with sympathetic understanding our struggle to liberate and unify the whole of our country.

Effects Of Decisions

Lost The Peace

Ten years of history can be summarized, with excess of condensation of course, in two sentences; our military decisions, as such, were for the most part sound, we won the war. Our policy decisions, however, made by Roosevelt during the war, and after the war by Truman or in his administration, have been in large part disastrous, we lost the peace.

This judgment, carefully stated and clearly explained, is held by military historian Hanson Baldwin in "Great Mistakes of the War." He says it is a national American trait about war: "We have fought for the immediate victory, not for the ultimate peace." Dwelling on decisions that resulted in disaster after the recent war was over, Baldwin specifies and emphasized two: "In February, 1945, at Yalta, and on June 6, 1944, the date of the allied invasion of Normandy, it might be said that we lost the peace."

It has come to be that military decisions and policy decisions are at once distinguished from each other and inseparable from each other. In this condition Congress has come to have a permanent duty, quite regardless of the momentary discussion about the merit of sending troops to Europe. It has a duty to itself and to the people, to take a part in decisions related to war that are likely to affect long-term decisions.

Radio And Television

ing of chief committee counsel Rudolph Halley.

The three Senators presented an interesting study in entirely different temperamnts. Kefauver was kind, mild, eminently fair and judicious, and seemed intent only at getting the facts on the record. O'Conor, the lawyer, had a lawyer-like zest for picking holes in the testimony. Tobey, I should say, seemed the personification of the public conscience. A sort of Ephraim Tutt of a person, his New England morality led him to frequent outbursts that these things should exist. The idea that Frank Costello should be called to clean out the bookies at Roosevelt Raceway when the track's own police failed at it shook him from head to toe.

Even without Mr. Costello's head it was one of the best shows television has yet put forth.

ance to localities which can be timed and channelled so as to concentrate upon areas where unemployment is heavy without sacrifice of general national objectives. This principle of wise selectivity is particularly applicable to procurement and construction activities, but it is also relevant to other grant or loan programs designed to stimulate private enterprise or to effect public improvements. Toward this end, I am directing that a continuing review of such activities be undertaken within the Executive Office, in order to coordinate planning, to keep the various types of activity and their geographic distribution in proper balance and readiness, and to focus emphasis upon alleviating unemployment in particular areas where it becomes serious before it has a chance to spread."

The President followed this statement by a memorandum and press release on July 14, 1949, designating a presidential assistant, Dr. John R. Steelman, to coordinate this program.

Dr. Steelman forthwith contacted various agencies of the government requesting them to give preferential consideration to areas of heavy unemployment.

On December 1, 1949, Dr. Steelman informed you that various government agencies had taken cognizance of those directives and releases. For example, the then Secretary of Defense, Johnson, directed all branches of the Armed Forces to take into consideration relative labor market conditions when scheduling civilian employment ceilings.

On February 22, 1950, the report of the subcommittee on unemployment of the Joint Committee in the Economic Report to the Congress of the United States stated that, "When there are only a relatively few distressed areas, (as now), this type of solution (preferential consideration) to an unemployment problem should be attempted, and probably will result in a net overall improvement."

On April 24, 1950, in reply to a joint plea from Mayor Post of Cumberland and The Board of County Commissioners of Allegany County, Dr. Steelman stated: "We are doing, and will continue to do everything possible to aid areas of heavy unemployment".

On May 16, 1950, The Presidential Train stopped at Cumberland. You made a well-received speech to a large audience. The newspapers reported that speech as follows: Baltimore Sun Streamer — "TRUMAN IN MARYLAND, VOWS JOB AID."

Two thousand greet Truman, Cheer Aid Pledge—"President Truman drew cheers from about 2,000 residents of this unemployment stricken city today when he promised them Federal help in getting jobs.

"The Federal Government is going to do all it can to help out," the President said, "That's the object."

Cumberland Times: "The government will continue working to remedy the unemployment situation in Cumberland, President Harry S. Truman said this afternoon."

Baltimore Labor Herald: "In his tour back and forth across this country, the President of the United States gave a whistle-stop talk to some 5,000 people in the railroad yards in Cumberland. The President let it be known that he was aware of the critical unemployment situation at Cumberland, and that it is marked as a critical area in line for Federal aid.

"The President gave his uncritical sympathy to the jobless, and promised aid for it as a critical area. This is the first expression of uncritical sympathy from the White House, and the second promise of aid for the critical area of unemployment."

On July 27, 1950, you stated in your "President's Mid Year Economic Report" to Congress — "Our task now is to help restore and maintain the peace of the world, and to protect our economic strength. These two purposes are inseparable."

On December 1, 1950, Policy Series No. 1 was issued by the U. S. Department of Labor, Office of Defense Manpower. This followed an inter-departmental conference on defense manpower. The release was entitled "Relation of labor supply to Federal Government Activities affecting manpower".

"In keeping with the provisions of the Executive Order the departments and agencies of government concerned have agreed on the policy that available labor supply, and particularly surplus labor wherever it exists, should be utilized to the full before additional employment requirements are created in areas of labor stringency or labor shortage. Experience during World War II amply demonstrates the need of adherence to the principle of bringing the work to the worker in order to avoid needless migration, minimize excessive strains on community facilities, and reduce loss of efficiency in defense production. The adoption of this policy today will assure that all of our citizens will make a maximum contribution to the common cause equally. It will avoid the creation of areas of extreme labor shortage and community congestion alongside localities of relatively heavy unemployment and economic depression. By utilizing as far as possible all of our workers, the implementation of this policy will also assure full utilization of housing, transportation, and all of the other community facilities already available to workers.

"In implementing this policy the Federal departments and agencies agree that insofar as possible under existing legislative authority, Federal activities with respect to procurement of goods and services, the scheduling of production and employment in government-owned or controlled establishments, the building of new facilities and the reactivation or expansion of existing ones, location of camps, cantonments and supply depots, the establishment of priorities or allocation of materials or components, guarantee and loan activities, and related programs will take full account of the adequacy of labor supply in specific localities and the impact of each such activity upon the loal manpower situation. In addition, these agencies of government will request and urge those private employing establishments and individuals with which they work to also implement this policy as far as possible in the placement of subcontracts, in the ordering of materials and in the securing of services."

On December 18, 1950, General Marshall of the Department of Defense released a directive (No. 1538-50) that the military departments should pay particular attention, among other matters, to the availability of manpower in distressed employment areas, or in areas of manpower shortage.

On January 17, 1951, you as President, implemented that policy on manpower by a memorandum directive to all department heads entitled, "National Manpower Mobilization Policy".

Scrutiny of that policy is warranted. In Section 4, it is stated: "While recognizing the very high priority of the armed forces' requirements for certain numbers and classes of manpower, the needs for mobilization also require a vigorous civilian economy. The manpower necessary to defense production, to civil defense, to agriculture, and to the production of essential civilian goods and services, and to sustain our commitments of aids to other nations must be considered as integral parts of a balanced mobilization program."

Elsewhere Paragraphs 60, 70 and 71 of that policy states:

"60. The Government will develop and administer manpower programs designed to enlist to the fullest possible extent the support and resourcefulness of individuals in the achievement of the mobilization program."

"70. All manpower progress will be geared to the needs and problems of specific geographical areas."

"71. Production will be scheduled, materials allocated and procurement distributed with careful consideration of available manpower. Whenever feasible from an economic and security standpoint, production facilities, contracts, and significant subcontracts will be allocated at the sources of labor supply in preference to moving the labor supply."

It would certainly seem that this memorandum, if adhered to, would rectify the conditions of which we speak, and would take advantage of our surplus manpower, while improving our economy.

Thus, with these pronouncements, promises and policies stretching out before us, we were confident that if increased employment opportunities could be given by the government, that we, as an "E" area, with many natural advantages, would be given priority and preferential consideration.

We watched with growing uneasiness as the expanding mobilization effort apparently ignored those expressed precepts and principles. Defense plants were erected, military installations located, government establishments placed, federal facilities and activities expanded and initiated without any significant sign of the awareness of our existing unemployment, and the contribution which our idle labor surplus and manpower could make to the civilian economy and to the even more important defense effort. A flood of employment opportunities by way of government defense activities has occurred, but none of those activities have been directed to our area.

The ultimate realization, that practically all we were getting by way of federal aid were promises without performances, came to us in three crisply worded news dispatches which arrived on successive days, March 7, 8, and 9, 1951. Those dispatches were bitter pills to swallow for those of us who had insisted from the very start that the federal government properly felt an obligation to participate in the solution of this problem and would implement a genuine program.

On March 7, 1951, we were informed by newspaper dispatches that a huge site in an adjoining county (with practically no employment problem) was being purchased by the Real Estate Division of the Army Engineers Washington District for a defense facility.

On March 8, 1951, we were informed by newspaper dispatches that 90 units of 15 agencies employing 5,183 persons, varying from 1 employe to 597 employes per unit, were listed for early transfer from Washington in a program to decentralize federal activities. (The program is separate from proposals pending in Congress for dispersal of strategic agencies to new sites within 20 miles of Washington).

Neither Cumberland nor any other "E" area (as listed in January, 1951 Labor Market Report of U. S. Dept. of Labor) received a single employe or unit, despite the helpful effect it would have on the economy of such areas. In many instances, the units were listed for areas of tight and stringent labor supply — in direct contradiction of announced defense manpower policies.

On March 9, 1951, we were informed by newspaper dispatches that the site of a new Quartermaster Research Corps Research Laboratory for Cumberland was "being given every possible consideration" would be located in Massachusetts, in an area which did not have one-half of our unemployment ratio, the area apparently receiving preference over Cumberland because of its excellent "cultural institutions". As if this were not a flimsy enough differentiation to explain to many unemployed people who are literally having difficulty feeding, clothing and sheltering themselves, the site is near a vital military target eastern seacoast area, unlike our uncongested mountainous terrain which is a far better military risk, and is located more than three times farther away from Washington than our location. Yet accessibility to Washington was listed as a proposed criteria for the site selection.

The cumulative impact of these three news items has most forcefully demonstrated to us that either the knowledge, or the desire, or the ability to help the distressed economic area of Cumberland and Allegany County is almost completely lacking within the present framework of the Federal agencies. Our experience indicated the situation probably could be attributed to lack of coordination and lack of a single agency to implement the pledges, promises, directives and law. In almost every contact we have had with various Federal agencies, concerning the pronouncements made, they usually either are unfamiliar with the "E" area and manpower problems, except as vague background, or they give evasive reasons why they cannot be of assistance.

It is proper to point out that various federal policies and programs incidentally do help our community —this is true of surplus foods (now virtually exhausted), flood control, Savage River Dam, social security, unemployment compensation, public housing, etc. But these are things which, almost without exception, were part of the regular procedure of the government and not designed to help "E" areas or solve the manpower problem. Many federal programs incidentally hurt our community, such as the federal rubber control policy, which has caused severe cutbacks and furloughs at one of our major plants, and the decision to forego projects not essential to defense which has stalemated the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Parkway Project, which offered job opportunities by way of the recreation and tourist industry.

We should also like to emphasize that in the tradition be believe best, we are devoting the major portion of our efforts to the community level, looking forward to effective action by cooperation among our individual citizens; but, in our complex modern economic picture, it is equally right for the national government to address its attention to the question of aiding those, who, through no fault of their own, are unable to obtain employment.

The Department of Labor and Commerce are conducting a helpful community industrial and economic survey of our area; but, surveys, however valuable, do not produce jobs.

Moreover, Cumberland continues to be ignored as a possibility for placement for government activities, even while some other communities ask the government to refrain from such activities in their area, because of the strain it places on their facilities, such as housing, water, schools, sanitation, etc.

The continued advocacy of government measures to improve the lot of our area is now reinforced by cogent reasons of military security, over and above the desire to improve the civilian economy. Military considerations decry the waste of manpower by the failure to utilize the labor supply in Cumberland and other distressed employment areas.

It is only fair to say that our rate of unemployment is dropping. It may even come to pass that with further intensive recruitment by outside groups, we may drop from the "E" area listing within the next six months to a year; but, what a Pyrrhic victory this will be to Cumberland and Allegany County, for this drop in the unemployment rate is occasioned not by increased employment here, but by out-migration; and out-migration means decreased population, decreased business, decreased revenues, scattered families, increased taxes on those staying here, a stagnant and sterile community. In addition, it marks dislocations which make heavy loads on all types of community facilities where those migrants go to obtain work, while the community facilities of the high labor surplus areas are wasted. Thus, if we leave the "E" area class without the aid of accompanying employment, we will have lost far more than we rightfully should have gained.

Every citizen of this nation must realize the tremendous burden which is cast on the Chief Executive of the United States in this period of stress. We would not add to the burden if we did not believe that you sincerely wish to help our unemployed; for in helping our unemployed, you help the nation.

We urge you, therefore, to use your executive office in this grave matter and to remove the inertia and inaction of the many departments and agencies who either ignore the question, or who can find dozens of so-called reasons why they cannot help Cumberland, but not one reason why they can.

We reiterate our previous suggestion that a specific agency should be named and held accountable for the work concerning the Distressed Area Policy and the National Manpower Mobilization Policy.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, March 16 (INS)—Don't be fooled by the rumors of who's going to do "Ivanhoe." Robert Taylor stars in the Sir Walter Scott classic right after he finishes "Westward, The Women." I'm so sure of this I'm forgetting all the hints that Michael Wilding will do it.

Robert Taylor

"Ivanhoe" makes two big spectacles for Bob—he spent eight months in Rome last year filming "Quo Vadis."

I don't know whether Bob is happy or not in his private life since his divorce from Barbara Stanwyck. But his career has never zoomed along in higher gear nor has he ever been cast in more costly productions.

Richard Thorpe directs "Ivanhoe" which is scheduled to start early in June.

Over the long distance telephone in a seven-minute conversation from Biloxi, Miss., Charles Laughton agreed to play the role of the corset manufacturer in "The Blue Veil" opposite Jane Wyman.

Laughton is on tour with Charles Boyer, Agnes Moorehead, and Sir Cedric Hardwicke doing one-night stands with "Don Juan in Hell," a ninety-minute excerpt from Shaw's "Man and Superman."

Laughton was told the story over the telephone by Director Curtis Bernhardt and accepted then and there without tests, without reading the script, and without any more fanfare. He and the other Hollywood actors open at the Philharmonic March 30, and on April 1, Laughton checks in at RKO.

Here's a little secret: The co-producer back of "Another Man's Poison," the picture Bette Davis and Gary Merrill are making in London, is Douglas Fairbanks, Jr!

It was Doug who took the script to Bette and Gary and who signed Irving Rapper to direct and then turned over his "package" deal to Major Daniel Angel, the British producer.

For a while Doug planned to operate as just a silent partner—but now he's to receive full co-producer credit. I don't know whether this means he'll go to London for the filming—or not.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Gary Cooper is in New York for a few days before taking off for Puerto Rico, where he plans to fish until Warners need him.

Sonja Henie is back in town with a bad cold. She's going to Palm Springs to get rid of it, and will return the last of this month to give one of her famous dinner dances.

Nat "King" Cole arrives Sunday to move his children out of the house the government seized a few days ago for taxes.

Next week Billy Wilder flies to Paris to confer with Maurice Chevalier about the forthcoming picture they'll do together.

Z. Wayne Griffin, producer of the current Clark Gable movie, is down with the flu.

Bob Stack escorted Barbara Stanwyck to dinner at La Rue.

Is there trouble over the Roy Rogers' contract at Republic, which is only 60 days away? Roy is holding out for his TV rights I hear tell.

Bobbie and Bill Perlberg were dining with their handsome son, Billy, at the Wilshire Seacomber's. Billy soon goes into the service. I can hardly believe he's old enough.

Ann Richards gave birth to a ten-pound boy at Queen of the Angels Hospital, her second baby. He'll be named Mark Richards. She's married to Edmond Angelo.

That's all today. See you Monday.

A combination of Elizabeth Taylor and Gene Tierney in the beauty department sounds okay. That's the way Charlie Feldman describes Jane Wurster, whom he has just put under contract.

Jane is the lovely who was elected queen by the New York photographers at their annual ball, and my friend Mr. Feldman was so impressed he offered her a contract. Perhaps I should explain that Jane is really not a discovery since she played the ingenue role in "Goodbye, My Fancy."

Two stolen vehicles have been reported to the City Police this week.

Delegate Rogers Blasts W. Va. Legislature

Calls It Worst In His Memory

KEYSER, W. Va. — John I. Rogers, Mineral county representative in the West Virginia House of Delegates, told the Keyser Rotarians Thursday, that the recent session of the West Virginia Legislature was the worst taxing Legislature he had ever attended.

"In my opinion it was the worst —the rottenest Legislature I ever sat in," he assented.

He told the Rotarians that the legislature passed 218 bills for a new record. In the hopper were placed 803 bills for action in the early days of the session.

"The bodies constantly explored new fields for taxation to balance the budget, always seeking new fields where taxes could be obtained. They went into every field possible for money. It wasn't unusual to hear somebody remark 'There's a new field we haven't taxed yet.' "

The speaker said the budget is $165,000,000 now, "exactly eight times the size of the 1931 budget, at that time, 20 years ago, the budget, which was the last the Republican legislature passed, was only slightly in excess of $20,000,000."

Rogers explained his vote on the proposed West Virginia Medical School bill, saying he opposed turning the matter of selection of a place for the school to the governor alone. He said he believed the selection should have been left in the hands of the West Virginia University board of governors, as it is the body that will have the legislature authority for conducting the school after it is in operation.

He said that he believes that about the best thing that came out of the legislative meeting was the State Education Association program, in which the school teachers benefitted.

Rogers told the Rotarians that the legislature raised the salaries of every top official in Charleston with the excuse "we are apt to lose good men if we don't raise their salaries. I voted 'no' on increased salaries for all top officers on the ground that they had forgotten that no office went by the board at election time without having sufficient candidates for the offices."

Keyser Kiwanis Has Ladies' Night

KEYSER, W. Va. — It was ladies' night at the weekly dinner meeting of Keyser Kiwanis Club Wednesday night and an interesting program was presented.

Each lady attending was presented with a potted plant. A turkey dinner was served.

Carl Peterson directed the musical portion of the program, which included three vocal numbers presented by Miss Beverly Bowne, of the Potomac State School Music Department, with Mrs. Carl Peterson, supplying the piano accompaniment. Miss Bowne's three numbers were: "Serenade," by Sigmund Romberg; "In the Still of the Night," by Cole Porter, and "It's Foolish But It's Fun," by Robert Stoaks.

Singing by the entire group was a feature of the program as Mr. Peterson directed them through several numbers.

A skit, entitled "Nobody Knows Nothin," by Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Dawson was a hit, and another skit, "If Men Played Cards Like Women Do," a parody on the gossips in some parties, played by Walter Jaworek, Fred Dayton, Art Pennington and Palmer Dayton, was an eyebrow lifter" and a cause of much laughter.

The Headless Costello

OUT IN ST. LOUIS, James Carroll, the widely recognized betting commissioner, refused to have any part of him on television and walked out on the Kefauver Committee hearings. In New York, Frank Costello, conceivably aware of the contempt proceedings in store for Mr. Carroll, agreed to let the cameras play over his torso from the neck down, the least interesting part of Mr. C. and certainly the least important.

John Crosby

Just what was gained by this diffidence is pretty hard to understand. In the first place both Carroll in St. Louis and Costello in New York were on television from head to foot while their lawyers wrangled over this invasion of their privacy. In the second place, photographs of both men are not hard to obtain. While the headless Costello was testifying before the committee, "Time" magazine, which sponsored the TV show on WJZ-TV, occasionally interrupted with a shot of their cover picture of Mr. Costello, a not altogether flattering portrait.

Far as I can see, Mr. Costello just whetted the public appetite for a view of his features and no one will have any trouble at all satisfying his craving for a glimpse of the great man. His photograph has been in all the papers and in lots of the magazines. On television, though, the truncated Costello was only a hoarse, high, frequently exasperated voice and pair of eloquent hands which toyed with a pair of glasses, mopped at the invisible face with a handkerchief and drummed impatiently. Costello, incidentally, seemed the most nervous and easily the wettest of the parade of witnesses.

While the face was veiled like a Moslem woman, we were permitted to hear a rich collection of Mr. Costello's vocal mannerisms. "Why don't you refreshen my memory?" "I prolly met him two three times." "Not to my knowlish." "I wutn't remember. I wutn't remember."

The most popular phrase yet heard is that classic old line, "I refuse to answer on the grounds it might tend to incriminate me." In general, Costello handled that line with the ease of long practice. The preceding day, Frank Erickson had a lot of trouble with the same line, despite the fact that he's had a lot of practice, too. "Might intend to criminate me" is the way it came out of Erickson—just like a small boy who hadn't quite got the sense of it.

Altogether, the procession of bumble-mouthed gamblers and their truculent lawyers made quite a TV carnival and the question as to whether the Kefauver probe is too much carnival, too little investigation will be thrashed around for a long time. There's no doubt in my mind but that the public gets a deep insight into a matter of grave public concern on a five-hour telecast, with its infinite detail, gets a chance to hear not only what the gambler has to say but how he says it and how his mind works.

The acting, I should say, ranged from fair to pure ham—the hammiest of all coming from the witnesses who haven't had the Kleig light experience of the Senators and their counsel. Charles Morton Levy pretty well ran the gamut from cockiness to truculence to nervousness under the searching question-

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

M W W T D W X A H K D W K E H J U A J ' K
S V M V S H W G K U H J L K, H J W G T K, H E
R H D D K G M V D D E N A T W W U H E R H J L K
— S T W F J A.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: HE HATH NOTHING DONE THAT DOTH NOT ALL—DANIEL.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear husband and father William Karnes who passed away 2 years ago, March 17, 1949.

Father, long years you bore
The burden of our care;
Now may our love your strengthening be
To help you . . . Over There.
And when Twilight Hour has come,
Help us, our Father, lead us home.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

GET RID OF A BUNCH

A SUIT declarer's first action, after the dummy is faced and he sees his total assets, is to count up the number of losing tricks in the several suits. Usually they are more than he can afford, if his contract has been reached soundly, assuming a logical amount of risk, but not too much. So next he looks for ways whereby he can get rid of some of those losing cards, in order to reduce the number of tricks dropped to what he can afford. He has a lot of standard tools for this process, including finesses, ruffs, discards on high cards of other suits and suit-establishment plays. Sometimes all of these are used on a deal.

South saw a bunch of losers in spades, hearts and diamonds, and had to get rid of all but three. He got a free finesse from the lead of the heart 7, the 9 going on and the J winning. Instead of trying to find a way to finesse trumps again, South laid down his A and then gave up the 4 to the K. East returned his diamond 3 to the A and the 5 came back the K. Now the J was established, and it was used promptly after the spade Q came back to the A. In fact the diamond 10 was felled by it, establishing the 9, and on these two diamonds the dummy's spade 6 and 10 were discarded.

Now the spade 9 was covered by the K and ruffed with the dummy's last trump, the Q. The club A and K then enabled South to discard his last two spades, the 5 and 7. He followed by ruffing the club 9 with the heart 8 and then scoring the established spade J for the final trick.

In this quite ordinary deal, South used all of the standard tools to reduce his number of losers to the maximum which he could afford.

Property Owners Told To Correct Sewage

Eight property owners on Winchester Road have been notified by the Allegany County Health Department to eliminate bad sewage conditions resulting from seepage onto the road from their septic tanks and other sewer facilities.

A list of the eight property owners was presented to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday by J. Byron Dowling, senior state sanitarian with the Health Department. The board approved the action taken by health officials in granting the property owners 30 days to correct the sewage situation.

An application was received by the board from Millard T. Reckley, 39, this city, for one of the two registration positions which will be available upon starting of the continuous registration of voters in this county. The board told the clerk to turn over the application to the Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors, which has control over hiring new employes.

Stock Market Moves Ahead For Best Gain Since Jan. 11

NEW YORK, March 16 (AP)—Gathering strength as it progressed, the stock market today forged ahead in its best performance since early January.

Widespread buying demand extended to every corner of the market with all major divisions making headway except radio-television. These fair-haired issues of yesterday's market fell by the wayside early in the day and closed unchanged to lower.

The outstanding exception was Radio Corp., the day's most active issue, which closed up ⅜ at 20¾. There were 51,100 shares traded.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks moved up $1.40 to $93.50. That is the best gain since Jan. 11. The industrial component of the average was up a full $2, rails advanced $1.20 and utilities 40 cents.

The volume of trading was limited to 1,660,000 shares as compared with yesterday's 2,070,000 shares.

Only one of the 15 most active issues declined—Admiral Corp. off ¼ at 28⅝, the 15th most active issue.

At the head of the list after Radio Corp. came Westinghouse Electric up ⅝ at 36⅝, Long Island Lighting up ¾ at 14⅛, International Telephone unchanged at 17, and Emerson Radio unchanged at 15⅝.

Among the heavier gainers were U. S. Gypsum up 4⅝ at 118⅛, U. S. Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

May grown-ups be "tattle-tales"?

Answer: Certainly, if they are emotionally childish. The child who delights in "telling mother on" his brothers and sisters when he does not like the way they treat him has his counterpart in the adult who is always complaining to his friends of the fact that no one in his family understands or appreciates him. Both are trying (a) to win love through being pitied, and (b) to punish indirectly someone they do not dare to stand up to through the disapproval or perhaps the intervention of a stronger person than themselves.

Do insincere parents make neurotic children?

Answer: Yes, says Izette de Forest in the Psychoanalytic Review. A child who has reason to doubt the sincerity of his parents' love for him becomes unable to believe that anyone will ever value him for himself and thus is held back by neurotic anxiety from making friends or feeling secure in love and marriage. The psychotherapist who is sincerely interested in such a person and desires him to be well and happy may become the "true friend" whom he has always longed for and thus help him to overcome his distrust.

May an alcoholic resent those who love him?

Answer: The typical alcoholic in his sober moments is extremely grateful for his family's kindness and forbearance, but becomes bitterly hostile toward them when intoxicated. For alcohol frees him for the moment from his sense of guilt at being "unworthy to be loved" and leaves him conscious only of the rage which being made to "feel like a heel" inspires. In general, the more guilty you make a compulsive drinker feel, the more he will be "driven to drink" to escape his self-reproaches, and at the same time will hate you for the pain you cause him.

Parkway Bill Kept Alive By Senator Kimble

Sent To Committee For Recommendations

The bill to enable the State Roads Commission to acquire land to be turned over to the Federal government for the C&O Canal Parkway project has been kept alive by action of Senator Robert B. Kimble who had the measure referred to a sub-committee for study and possible revision.

W. Earle Cobey, Cumberland's city attorney, who endorsed the plan for the parkway and sought passage of Senator Kimble's bill at a Senate Finance Committee hearing Wednesday said last night Kimble's action had saved the bill from being killed by an unfavorable committee report.

Arguments Are Suspicious

Speaking in behalf of the bill Cobey said arguments of Washington, Frederick and Montgomery County representatives were suspicious and weak. The claim that industry would have no access to water if the lands were acquired by passage of the bill was ridiculed by Cobey. The government owns most of the land now, Cobey stated, and industry doesn't have access to it right now.

"I advocated making a deal with the government whereby permanent access be acquired to water across lands owned by the Federal government. A deal of this type would require Congressional action," Cobey went on, "but I think it could be arranged."

Western Maryland residents have repeatedly sought to have the parkway plan put into effect with the thought of opening this end of the state to industry, tourist trade and securing a potential military transportation route to the nation's capital.

Cites Defense Angle

In a trend toward defense Raymond F. Whitehair, commander of Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, said, "The highway from a standpoint of defense is excellent. It would speed commodities, war supplies and troops over the route and would be a tremendous aid for the evacuation of property and personnel from Washington and other eastern cities during an atomic attack by a foreign power.

"In addition," Whitehair continued, "the proposal would increase business in Cumberland and the surrounding territory which are now being by-passed. It would be wonderful for the city in another respect. Improvement of the slum sections of Cumberland is proposed in the plans and if nothing else it will help beautify the city. Besides the heavy traffic which flows over super

Chamber Hears Industrial Expert

Federal Government Criticised Sharply By Steering Committee For Its Failure To Help With Employment In This Area

Eight-Page Letter Forwarded To Truman

Sharply criticizing the Federal government for failing to carry out its announced program to reduce unemployment in distress areas, the Steering Committee for Economic Development of Allegany County has forwarded a letter to President Harry S. Truman complaining of the inaction of government agencies.

The eight-page letter, written over the signature of David Kauffman, steering committee chairman, points out that the Department of Defense decision to locate the new Quartermaster Research Laboratory in Massachusetts "is the latest and sharpest disappointment the citizens of Cumberland and Allegany County have had in the failure of the Federal government to meet its responsibilities...."

Text of the letter to President Truman follows:

Dear Mr. President:

We should like to thank you for your reply of March 8, 1951, sent by Dr. Steelman from Key West, Florida, stating that careful consideration was being given Cumberland's application for the new Quartermaster Research Laboratary by the Department of Defense.

On that same day, however, the Department of Defense announced that the laboratory would be located in the Natick and Framington area of Massachusetts, near Boston.

The decision, as made, is the latest and the sharpest disappointment the citizens of Cumberland and Allegany County have had in the failure of the Federal Government to meet its responsibilities for a Federal program of participation in reducing unemployment in distressed or "E" areas. That "E" or heavy unemployment designation for the Cumberland area still exists, despite the overall prosperity of the state and nation.

The bald fact of the matter is, Mr. President, that the agencies of the Federal government, to whom you have issued directives, and policies, and instructions, have almost completely failed to implement your instructions. They have in particular, ignored the announced program to put the work where the workers are, rather than forcing the workers to move to the work. In short, instead of complying with the duties incumbent upon them, they have been absolutely ineffectual or absolutely insincere in complying with the distressed areas policy and the National Manpower Mobilization Policy.

In August, 1949, Cumberland was one of 13 "E" areas.

On January, 1950, Cumberland was one of 42 "E" areas.

In July, 1950, Cumberland was one of 14 "E" areas.

In September, 1950, Cumberland was one of 11 "E" areas.

In January, 1951, Cumberland was one of 5 "E" areas.

A review of the records reveals the following:

The Employment Act of 1946 states "The Congress hereby declares that it is the continuing policy and responsibility of the Federal Government to use all practicable means with the assistance and cooperation of industry, agriculture, labor and state and local governments to promote maximum employment production and purchasing power."

In his mid-year economic report to the Congress on July 11, 1949, President Truman stated that—

"While unemployment is not now at a very high level for the country as a whole, there are many localities, and even some states where it is serious. These pools of heavy unemployment need to be treated before they spread, and the responsibility is in part national.

"There are a number of Federal programs of direct action or assist-

County Farmers "Kill Two Birds" By Town Trips

Farmers generally don't make trips into town just for one purpose.

Allegany county farmers, being typical, have found a way to "kill two birds with the same stone," according to Miss Elizabeth Hoover, clerk of the County Production and Marketing Administration Committee.

Aware that farmers have been coming to her office at 37 Washington Street in relatively large numbers to file for the 1951 Agriculture Conservation Program, Miss Hoover became curious. They told her that they stopped at her office to enroll in the program and then walked across the street to the Court House and purchased their new automobile license plates from Tax Collector Ernest P. Treat.

Miss Hoover said that about 150 farmers have filed for the new program. The deadline is April 15 and about 400 are expected to file by then.

Meanwhile, Treat reports that 375 more sets of Maryland automobile license plates were sold at his office yesterday. That brings the total obtained locally to about 6,400 sets. Treat has received about 10,000 sets here. His office will be open from 9 a. m. until noon today.

Legion Plans Movies

Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion will show movies every Saturday from 10 a. m. to noon for kiddies from 6 to 12 years old. The film will be shown at the Legion home, Harrison Street, with a western and cartoon scheduled today. The Legion Activities Committee, headed by Norris Jones, is sponsoring the events.

Area Industry Developments Appear Bright

Wood Signs Contract With Local Group

Richardson Wood said yesterday that prospects for industrial development in Cumberland and immediate area appear bright and many contracts have been made for getting industry interested in locating in Allegany County. He said that over 40 prospective industries have shown concern and as time goes by other contracts are continually being made.

The occasion for Wood's address was the Chamber of Commerce luncheon meeting held yesterday at 12:15 p. m. in the Green Room of Central YMCA. Prior to Wood's introduction to the group of 80 persons Joseph M. Naughton, president of the Chamber of Commerce introduced Mayor Thomas S. Post, the City Council members and Allegany County Commissioners William H. Lemmert and James Holmes.

"Cumberland residents and the Cumberland Allegany Industrial Development Company are to be congratulated for their cooperative manner in striving to get new industry into this area. Their continual hard work shows merit in its accomplishments," Wood told his audience.

Assets Given

"Among the assets Cumberland has to offer the encouragement of new industry," Wood added, "are its surplus of available man power and its ideal location along the main line of two railroads linking the city with the east, northeast and midwest."

Wood remarked that included among prospective industries are such concerns as General Motors, Kaiser Frazer, Westinghouse, Bendix Aviation, Ford Motors, and U. S. Steel. He said that even though Cumberland did not acquire the recent Quartermaster Laboratory that it has advantages over larger areas.

During the meeting Wood cited the newly planned addition to the Michael Berkowitz Company in Frostburg, manufacturers of shirts and pajamas. He explained the amount of work involved in getting new addition plans working smoothly.

He said that an enlargement of the plant would not only increase the number of employes but also jobs created by the increase outside of the industry. He also said that local merchants would profit by the addition and that the turnover of wages is a healthy economic factor.

In an illustrated chart showing the amount of work done by the

LT. EDWIN R. LILYA

Lt. Lilya Is Named Head Of City Detective Bureau

Lt. Edwin R. Lilya was appointed head of the Detective Bureau of the Cumberland Police Department yesterday.

The appointment was announced by Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long in a communication to Police Chief R. Emmett Flynn and all patrolmen. The commissioner said:

"As of this date, Lt. Lilya will be in charge of the Detective Bureau.

"Dectives Thomas J. See and Ernest M. Powell will follow up and complete assignments from Lt. Lilya. Heads of each platoon shall meet with the Detective Bureau before they leave their platoons and report all available information that may be helpful.

"Patrolmen shall also report to their platoon heads or directly to the Detective Bureau and "beat" information that may be helpful toward unsolved cases or new findings.

"I expect complete cooperation to be given to Lt. Lilya and the Detective bureau; otherwise, further changes will be male until the desired results are forthcoming."

Lt. Lilya has been a member of the department since 1941. In 1945, following his graduation from the Federal Bureau of Investigation's school for police officers, he was placed in charge of the detective bureau and set up a complete records system according to FBI recommendations.

He served both as a detective and head of the bureau for several years, prior to being transferred to head the department's traffic department.

TWUA Panel Will Act On Expulsions

A three man panel of the Executive Board of the Textile Workers Union of America (CIO), will conduct a hearing here Monday at 10 a. m. on the expulsion appeal of three members of Local 1874, TWUA.

Playford Aldridge, Local 1874 president, said the panel headed by George Baldanzi, will report back to the union's executive board of the TWUA, which will make a decision.

Aldridge said the appeals were filed by William Boyd Coleman and Arthur M. Schusterman, who were dropped from membership in the union last September 22 by a unanimous vote of the executive board because of membership in the Communist party.

At the time, the union said the action was taken on charges that their membership in the party was detrimental to the Local 1874.

The third appeal was filed by Clair R. Mease, who was expelled from Local 1874 on October 5, 1950, by a full Executive Board.

Aldridge said the union charges against Mease listed acts detrimental to the interest and welfare of the local union.

Delegation Hopes To Clear Local Bills Next Week

The Allegany County Delegation said last night that action is slated early next week on local legislation .Delegate Charles M. See, chairman, said the Delegation expects to make a definite decision by Tuesday on a bill setting up a special taxing area in Bowling Green.

An enabling act giving the City of Cumberland the power to increase taxes by five cents will be placed in the hopper Monday.

Senate Bill 358, which combines and modifies the Cumberland Civil Service and Merit Systems, has been introduced by Senator Kimble, Delegate See said.

Slated for action Monday is a bill enabling the City of Cumberland and Allegany County to allot $5,000 each for industrial development work.

See said the Delegation yesterday introduced a resolution asking that Hagerstown racing dates not be transferred here because of the "economic drain" upon the people of Allegany County.

Delegation spokesmen said the group feels that 10 days is all that because of the present economic this county will be able to support situation. The resolution was referred to the House Ways and Means committee.

See said that the Delegation has scheduled a conference Tuesday with James B. Raines, executive director, and Thomas B. Finan, attorney of the Housing Authority of the City of Cumberland.

Easement Secured For Flood Work

An agreement was reached yesterday between the City of Cumberland and Holland's Service Station for the use of part of the property to keep traffic moving down North Mechanic Street during work on the Frederick Street pressure conduit.

The temporary easement for the use of 17 feet of the station driveway to permit one-way traffic involved a nominal consideration, officials said.

Local 26 To Meet

Local 26, Rubber Workers Union (CIO), will meet today at 7:30 p. m. in the union hall. Business will include a report of the contract negotiating committee and plans for the union shop election next week.

Flood Control Work Discussed At Meeting

Shift Of Utilities Near Completion

Progress in Cumberland's flood control work and the Savage River Dam were discussed recently at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Flood Control Committee.

Albert Paye, liaison engineer between the City of Cumberland and the U. S. Army Engineer Corps, outlined the projected plan for completion of the existing contract for pressure conduits on Frederick and Lehigh Streets.

He said that public utility companies are completing advance work for rearranging their services along Mechanic Street from Bedford to Frederick Street from Centre to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

E. E. Donaldson, area engineer for the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, who has jurisdiction over the local flood control project and the Savage River Dam construction, remarked that he is in hopes the Frederick Street conduit will be completed in September. He said work is being held up at present due to a delay in getting some of the construction equipment transported to Cumberland from the sub contractor in Philadelphia.

The Philadelphia sub contractors Thomas Earl and Sons are specialists in excavation, sheeting and shoring and will work with local contractors Lynch and Pugh. The actual pouring of the conduit will be done by the latter.

Donaldson also said that precautions are being taken to give protection to buildings along the line of construction. This is being done through special sheeting methods. Also outlined was the manner in which traffic would be accomodated and how fire department lanes would be kept open by use of movable bridges across the excavation at various points.

In conclusion a few remarks were made concerning the completion of the Savage River Dam.

Attending the meeting were Harold W. Smith, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, Edward L. Ewald, commercial manager of the Potomac Edison Company, Harry Beneman and Joseph Klawan.

Local Draft Boards Call 23 Inductees

The group will leave April 2 for induction by train on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, departing at 5:55 a. m. for Martinsburg, W. V.

Shamrock To Be Worn Today In Honor Of St. Patrick

This is the day for the wearing of the green.

For today, St. Patrick's Day, the sons of Erin and their friends will wear a shamrock or a touch of green in their costumes in honor to the patron saint of the Emerald Isle.

According to legend, when St. Patrick was preaching the gospel to the pagan Irish, he illustrated the doctrine of the Trinity by the use of a shamrock.

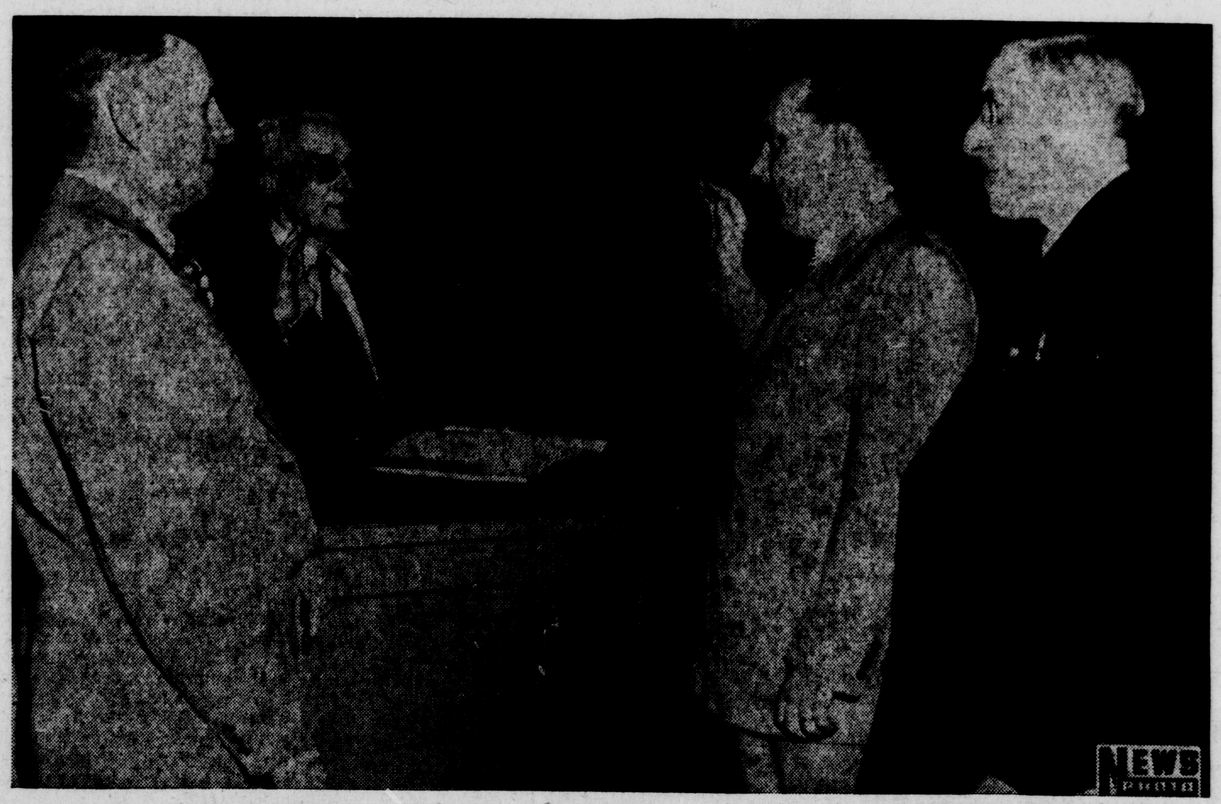

Authorities disagree on St. Patrick's birthplace, except that he was not of Irish descent.

He was born, legend says, toward the end of the Fourth century in a small village at the mouth of the River Clyde in Scotland or near Glastonbury, England.

During his lifetime, he founded hundreds of churches in Ireland and converted virtually all of the then pagan people to Christianity.

It was he, according to legend, who drove all the snakes out of Ireland.

Incidentally, today is a good time, old farmers say, to plan Irish potatoes and in years past the spuds were always placed in the ground on that day, barring only freezing weather.

New Deputy Sheriff Takes Oath Of Office

George Furstenberg, 113 Fifth Street, is shown being sworn in yesterday afternoon as an Allegany County deputy sheriff. Sheriff Edward R. Muir has named Furstenberg as a temporary deputy, filling the vacancy caused last week when William E. (Scotty) Orr, reported to Washington, D. C., for service in the Navy. Furstenberg is scheduled to serve as a deputy until Orr's return to civilian life. In the picture, left to right, are Deputy Sheriff George Harris, Merwin R. Hast, chief deputy clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court, who administered the oath: Furstenberg, and Deputy Sheriff Edgar M. Lewis. A graduate of Fort Hill High School in 1939, Furstenberg, who is 30 years old, is married and has one daughter, Judith Ann. He attended the Baltimore Institute of Photography, later operated a grocery and more recently was connected with the Maryland Workshop for the Blind in Baltimore. He belongs to the South End Republican Club and the Optimist Club.

Servicemen Killed In Korea Will Be Listed At City Hall

The Allegany County Honor Roll Committee has made plans to include area servicemen killed in the current Korean conflict on the memorial plaque in the City Hall rotunda, Thomas F. Conlon announced yesterday.

Conlon, Cumberland Postmaster and a member of the committee, said the present memorial contains the names of some 12,000 Allegany County soldiers who were in the armed services during World War II.

The names are listed in alphabetical order, Conlon noted, except those who died while serving their country. These names are listed in the order of the date of their deaths, he stated.

The committee now plans to add only those county servicemen who have died in service since the Korean conflict began June 24, 1950.

Relatives of servicemen, whether Marines, Army, Navy, Coast Guard or Air Corps, who have been killed in service, are requested turn in the name of the deceased serviceman to the Honor Roll Committee at the Cumberland Post Office, listing the date of death as well as name, branch of service and rank.

The committee has hired John G. Fleishhauer, a Post Office employee who trained under the G. I. Bill of Rights, to paint the names on the slides to be placed on the plaque.

The memorial now contains an empty column, Conlon said, which will be headed "Deaths, June 24, 1950, Korea." The names will be added in the order of the date of death, Conlon reported.

The committee spent five years and $7,600 accumulating the names on the present memorial.

Costello Walks Back To Probe But Won't Talk

Racketeer Bows To "Ultimatum" To Return And Escapes Arrest

NEW YORK, March 16 (AP)—To avoid arrest, Racketeer Frank Costello walked back into the Senate crime hearing today. But he solemnly, stubbornly again refused to talk.

The Senate crime committee put three questions to him but he refused to answer any of them. The first was:

"Mr. Costello, did you have a meeting with Mr. O'Dwyer in 1942?"

The dapper racketeer, who left his bed to appear, said he wasn't answering "until I'm fully well and able to."

Costello defiantly walked out on the all-star hearing yesterday, complaining that he was too ill to testify and was going home to bed.

He had laryngitis and his voice today was little more than a hoarse croak that carried poorly.

Wide-Open Gambling

The committee treated him with kid gloves but still got nowhere. So they let him go until a committee physician can look him over and see just how sick he really is. Costello said he was going back to bed.

Costello's about-face return to the hearing came in its fifth day—a day highlighted by state police testimony that gambling ran wide open in Saratoga Springs all through the 1940's.

State police said they did nothing about it because for years it has been their policy not to interfere in Saratoga Springs.

State Police Superintendent John A. Gaffney testified "anybody knows what's going on in Saratoga—it's been going on for 25 years to my knowledge."

In Albany—30 miles from Saratoga—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey ordered a study of all of the testimony relating to upstate gambling.

Costello came back to the hearing on his own two feet to escape being dragged back under arrest.

Hearing Resumes Monday

His own doctor told the committee early in the day that there was no reson why Costello couldn't testify for a limited time despite his bad throat.

The committee then sent an investigator and a U. S. marshal to Costello's penthouse apartment on Central Park west to order him to come in or be brought in.

The committee has labeled Costello the head of one of the nation's top crime syndicates—a charge that Costello says he bitterly resents as untrue.

The Senate investigators will not sit tomorrow so the hearing was adjourned until Monday morning.

New Tax Charge Is Filed Against "Bottles" Capone

CHICAGO, March 16 (AP) — The government went after Ralph "Bottles" Capone today with a new income tax evasion charge — the only major offense that ever tripped up members of the notorious Capone family.

A complaint was filed before U. S. Commissioner Edwin K. Walker. A warrant was issued immediately for Capone's arrest.

The brother of the late gang leader, Scarface Al, was accused of three violations — making a "false offer in compromise involving unpaid income taxes of approximatey $100,000, attempting to evade taxes and concealing assets."

The charges could produce a maximum penalty of 16 years imprisonment and a $30,000 fine.

Army, Air Force Plan $1.5 Billion In Improvements

$112,905,985 Will Be Spent In Alaska

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP)—A $1,501,140,585 military construction program was disclosed today by the Army and Air Force.

Some of it is already under way; for some of it contracts are still to be let. The money comes out of the regular and supplemental appropriations made by Congress for the fiscal year ending June 30.

Air Force construction amounts to $1,191,876,000. Much of the money is for improvements of existing air fields. The Army program totals $309,264,585.

A list of Air Force construction projects made available tonight totaled $976,700,000. Those projects were provided for with funds from the two supplemental appropriation bills. Previously the regular money bill had provided another $215,476,755. Of the money from the two supplemental measures, $575,071,000 is tagged for projects in the United States and $401,629,000 for work overseas.

Of the Army's $309,264,585 outlay, one third is for strategic Alaska.

Another substantial part of the Army money is being devoted to projects connected with developing "unconventional weapons" such as radiological and biological types.

Alaskan expense totals $112,905,985, much of it for facilities at existing airfields. The biggest contract there is $55,281,445 for improvements at Fort Richardson.

The largest one in continental United States is $23,995,300 at Dugway Proving Ground, near Ttooele, Utah, where tests are conducted on biological and radiological weapons, as well as conventional ones such as high explosive.

A $10,489,900 share is given Camp Detrick, Md., center of the biological warfare project, for laboratory buildings and other work.

Senate Group Slashes Defense Housing Fund

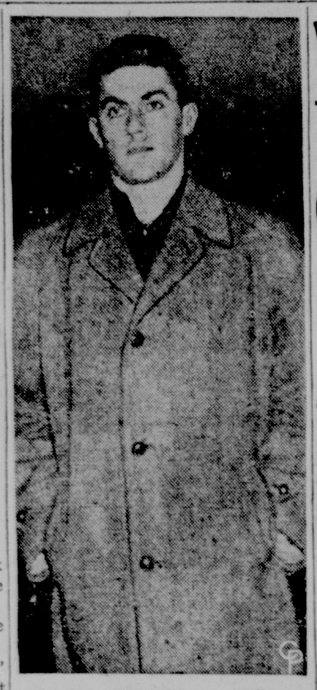

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP) — The Senate Banking Committee today tentatively approved a $1,500,000,000 fund for insuring defense housing mortgages — just half the amount asked by President Truman.

Chairman Maybank (D-SC) told reporters — "we believe in economy."

Final committee action was set for Tuesday.

NORFOLK, Va., March 16 (AP) — Robert Gerald Riddell, Canada's permanent delegate to the United Nations, died of a heart attack today at a Virginia Beach hotel shortly after arriving for a vacation. He was 42.

SEIZED BY FBI — William Perl, 32, a physics instructor at Columbia University, leaves Federal District Court in New York following his arrest by FBI agents on a sealed indictment charging perjury. Beer Drinking Led To Capture, Fugitives Say

ST. JOHN'S, Ariz., March 16 (AP)—Beer drinking caused the capture of two Omaha jailbreakers and the death of a third, the young survivors of a gun battle with a sheriff's posse said today.

Clifford Battershaw, 17-year-old cop-hating brother of Dewey Battershaw, who was killed in the fight, did most of the talking in describing their cross-country flight and their capture last night. His companion, Victor Sweet, 24, sullenly declined to answer most questions in an interview.

Their story still left many gaps in the tale that began March 4 with an escape from the Omaha jail but they were getting along all right, they contended, until they started drinking.

Clifford helped release his brother and Sweet from the jail, where they were being held for investigation of robbery.

"I went to the back of the jail and overpowered two guards," he said. "I got the two boys out."

Took Pair As Hostages

He said he used a German Luger to subdue the guards. Then the trio made their way to the street, taking an attorney and a deputy sheriff with them as hostages.

They found a Ford car nearby, drove into the country until they came to a farmhouse. They forced their way in against the will of a woman and her little girl.

"We drank coffee and waited for the farmer to come home," the young desperado said.

When he did, the farmer, the lawyer, deputy sheriff and two other men they had taken as hostages after commandeering their cars, were tied.

Clifford said they took the farmer's car and headed west.

The three fugitives kept to side roads, by-passed large towns and ate in the car. They also changed license plates as often as possible.

Their big mistake came when they started drinking beer in Arizona, Clifford indicated. By the time they reached St. John's each had consumed six cans. They were driving fast. Highway Patrolman Ray Dahm and Undersheriff Emmett Wilhelm gave chase as they sped through town. The three accelerr-

Jap Treaty Talk Bid Given Russia

WASHINGTON, March 16, (AP)—Secretary of State Acheson extended a new invitation to Soviet Russia today to rejoin the discussions on a peace treaty with Japan.

Two weeks ago Soviet Ambassador Jacob Malik unexpectedly broke off the talks on treaty terms he had been carrying on for months with Ambassador John Foster Dulles.

Moscow at the same time heatedly attacked the United States for seeking a "separate" peace. That appeared to end any idea that Russia would have any part of the treaty, especially when Dulles responded with a denunciation of Communist aims in Asia.

Acheson told his news conference that while Malik's action was very disappointing he hoped it would not continue to be the attitude of the Soviet government.

U. S. Navy Plans To Salvage Sunken Japanese Warships

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP)—The Navy today disclosed plans to salvage some of the Japanese warships sent to the bottom of the Pacific in World War II—for the scrap metal they contain.

It called for bids from private companies to undertake the job.

First efforts are to be made around the islands of Palau, Saipan and Truk, principal Japanese navy bases smashed by U. S. sea and air power.

The Navy knows that four Japanese cruisers, five destroyers and 13 submarines are on the sea bottom around these islands. It said that legally they are American prizes of war. An estimated 400,000 tons of scrap metal is involved.

The high commissioner of the Pacific islands trust territories, former Sen. Elbert Thomas of Utah, will have direct jurisdiction over the salvage operations. The Navy here is handling the bids for him.

If the first phase succeeds, the Navy plans to extend the salvage operation to other Pacific areas where there is a concentration of sunken vessels.

West Still Has Time To Arm, Connally Says

Can Survive A-War By Pooling Defense

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP) — Sen. Connally (D-Tex) said today the United States and its allies can survive an atomic war with Russia if they join now in building their defenses.

Opening a momentous Senate debate on the nation's security policy, the veteran Democratic leader declared there is still time to arm while American atomic superiority protects Western Europe from attack.

If the Allies seize this opportunity to consolidate their military strength, he said, "we need not fear the day when the Soviet Union has a stockpile of atomic weapons large enough to threaten the peace."

"Because by that time," he predicted, "atomic weapons will not be enough to crumble the defenses that we and our allies will have erected. We will have the strength and confidence and assurance that freedom will not be lost because of weakness."

Backs Troops For "Ike"

Sen. Connally, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, spoke in support of sending four more divisions of American ground troops to Europe to reinforce Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's international army.

The Senate is debating a resolution which approves President Truman's plan to dispatch these troops, but which declares it to be the sense of the Senate that Congress authorize all future troop assignments abroad.

Connally said he did not approve of the limiting section of the resolution.

Sen. Wiley (R-Wis), ranking Republican member of the Foreign Relations Committee in the absence of Sen. Vandenberg of Michigan, supported the resolution in its entirety.

In its final version, he said after Connally had finished, he believes the measure would constitute a victory for "common sense" in three ways:

Opposes "Psuedo-Gibraltar"

"1. A victory for the sound idea that America simply cannot sit back and attempt to make a psuedo-Gibraltar of her own continent while she ignores the fate of Europe and Africa."

"2. A victory for the common sense notion that this issue of troops-for-Europe is too big for any one single man to decide all by himself, even together with his advisers.

"3. A victory for the common sense idea that the Congress cannot attempt to spell out in the most minute detail the precise nature of troops to be sent abroad; but neither can the military authorities take executive control over a question which is in part political and diplomatic just as it is military."

Six Navy Men Feared Drowned

NORFOLK, Va., March 16 (AP)—A 10-foot dinghy from the USS LSU 1330 was found capsized a mile west of Watts Island in Tangier Sound today and the Navy said six men aboard the boat were missing.

Late today, two Navy vessels were dispatched from Hampton Roads to search for the missing men. They were expected to reach the scene in Chesapeake Bay about 8 p. m.

Meantime, spokesmen said a communications foulup prevented the reception of any clear information fom the LSU 1330, a Navy landing-ship (utility) concerning the boat accident. It was hoped additional details would be available when the two rescue vessels reached the scene.

The landing ship had been on an operational training exercise in the bay. It was believed the six men may have been returning to the ship from a "liberty" excursion when their boat capsized about 11 p. m. last night.

Truman To Wind Up Vacation On Thursday

KEY WEST, Fla., March 16 (AP) — President Truman decided today to bring his Florida work-and-play vacation to an end next Thursday in order to spend the Easter weekend with his family.

Presidential Secretary Joseph Short made the announcement at a news conference in which he disclosed that the President's singing daughter, Margaret, will visit the Blair House Good Friday through Easter.

Marine Air Ace Dons New Uniforms

Col. Joe Foss (right), who as a Marine air ace in World War II was awarded the Medal of Honor, reported for Air Force duty with the Central Air Defense Command at Kansas City yesterday. With him are Brig. Gen. George Acheson (center), commanding general of the CADC, and Col. F. H. Robinson (left), vice commander. Col. Foss was discharged from the Marine Corps in 1946 and later organized an Air National Guard unit at Sioux Falls, S. D.

Vaughan Linked To "Ringleader" In Surplus Deals

Dawson Figured In "5 Percenter" Probe

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP) — House investigators are seeking to determine whether George Dawson, mysterious Briton named as the "ringleader" in fabulous surplus property deals, is the same George Dawson indirectly aided in 1948 by Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, White House aide.

Rep. Bonner (D-NC), chairman of a House investigating committee, tagged the Britisher yesterday as the kingpin in operations whereby massive quantities of U. S. military surplus have been bought up in Europe and shipped all over the world to be sold at fancy prices. Some of it was sold back to the U. S. government. Rep. Curtis (R-Mo) said he had "preliminary information" that Dawson had cleaned up $100,000,000.

Figured In "5 Percenter" Probe

Today it developed that the name of a George Dawson had figured in the 1949 "five percenter" probe in which Gen. Vaughan, President Truman's military aide, was brought on the carpet.

At that time investigators introduced a letter which Vaughan had written in 1948 to Gen. Clyde Hyssong, an Army officer in Europe.

The letter read:

"My Dear Gen. Hyssong:

"This will introduce my good friend John Maragon, who is representing George Dawson and Company, and who is interested in purchasing materials from the foreign liquidation service. Any assistance that you may be able to render to Mr. Maragon will be greatly appreciated by me."

Vaughan Called To Stand

Vaughan, called to the stand later, said he did not know anything about Dawson or his company, but was merely doing Maragon a favor.

House investigators, aroused by testimony of big profits in surplus deals, issued a batch of subpoenas today.

Chairman Bonner (D-NC) of the House group told newsmen he wants to question the "big operators" under oath about their purchases of U. S. surplus stocks in Germany and later resale of the scarce material in this country.

Army Hopes To Make Use Of Point System

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP)—The Army said today it still hopes to make use of a point system in calling up enlisted reservists for active duty or releasing those in service.

But, an Army spokesman said in response to queries, it is too early yet to say when this can be done. Primarily, he told reporters, it depends upon the military situation in Korea and the growth of the Army at home.

The point system establishes priorities to determine the order in which reservists would be called for, or realeased from, active duty. The Army set up the plan last fall but was forced to lay it aside after the Chinese Communists intervened in Korea.

Wholesale Prices Decline Slightly

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP)—Wholesale prices declined 0.1 per cent in the week ending March 13. They had hit an all-time high a week earlier.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics, reporting the decline, said today that with the drop its all commodity index was at 183.4 per cent of the 1926 average.

This figure is 1.9 per cent above the index of Jan. 23—just before the wage and price freeze was announced by the government.

By comparison with past dates the index of March 13 was 16.9 per cent above the May 24-June 25, 1950, period, and 20.2 per cent above a year ago. The Korean fighting began June 25.

14 Die In Freak Railroad Wreck

DONCASTER, Eng., March 16 (AP) —Fourteen persons were killed and more than 100 injured today in a freak wreck of the smart express train known as "The Cock of the North."

The express was bound from Doncaster to London's Kings Cross station. It had barely started when a derailment caused coaches to jam into the archway of Balby bridge, over which a Doncaster street passes.

The scene is less than half a mile from the Doncaster central station and the heavy, 14-car train had gained little speed. A station official said it could not have been going more than 20 miles an hour.

For reasons not yet determined, the wheels of the third coach jumped from the rails and the car bumped along the ties. Apparently it tipped enough for an upper corner to strike a brick pillar supporting the bridge.

Caught fast by the pillar, the coach was rammed by the cars following, and five piled up in the archway.

"Tokyo Rose" Appeals

SAN FRANCISCO, March 16 (AP) — The U. S. Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals today took under submission the appeal of "Tokyo Rose" — Mrs. Iva Toguri D'Aquino — from her conviction of treason for wartime broadcasts to American troops.

Mrs. D'Aquino is serving a 10-year sentence in the women's federal prison at Alderson, W. Va.

Hershey Offers Student Draft Deferment Plan

Qualification Tests Would Decide Status

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP)—Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey disclosed today he has proposed a plan for qualification tests to give draft deferment to brainy high school and college students.

In correspondence with the House Armed Services Committee, Hershey said he had submitted the proposal to Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson as a recommendation. Whether it will be put into effect is up to Wilson and Dr. Arthur Fleming, manpower director under Wilson.

Officials said the number of educational deferments may increase, if the new plan is put into effect.

Nationwide Tests

Still to be decided is whether the proposed policies would be binding on draft boards or merely permissive Hershey's outline indicated he wants them binding.

Hershey's plan calls for nationwide tests of high school and college students as a guide to determining whether they should continue schooling or be drafted.

High school graduates of draft age passing the test with a mark of 70 or more would be deferred to enter college.

First, second and third-year men passing the tests with the 70 mark or better also would be deferred to go ahead with another year of college.

Top Students Deferred

In addition, all college freshmen in the upper half of their class would be deferred. All second-year college students in the upper two-thirds of their class could take a third-year course. All third-year college men in the upper three-fourths of their class could go ahead with a fourth year.

Also graduate students and professional students of medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine, osteopathy and optometry would be deferred without taking any tests, provided their schools certified.

Health Center Bill OK'd

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP) — The Senate approved by a bare 8 to 35 majority today a bill providing for federal grants to states to build public health centers.

Argentine Congress Orders Anti-Peron Paper Seized

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, March 16 (AP)—The Peron-dominated Argentine Congress tonight ordered a nine-man committee to take control of the strike-bound independent newspaper La Prensa and conduct a complete investigation of its activities.

The Senate and House Deputies quickly completed congressional action on a resolution directing seizure of the independent newspaper, strongest critic of the regime of President Juan D. Peron. The measure was introduced by the ruling Peronista Party.

The House of Deputies acted first, passing the resolution by a vote of 85 to 14, after four hours of tumultuous debate.

The Senate, made up only of members of Peron's party, shoved the measure through by a vote of 18 to 0.

The whole business was completed in less than eight hours—just a day after Peron summoned the congressmen into special session to deal with the government's critic.

The resolution calls for appointment of a congressional committee of six deputies and three senators to take possession of La Prensa while investigating its operations. This was seen as a move only one step short of outright expropriation.

Some legislative circles interpreted the resolution as permitting the committee to start publication of the newspaper, which has been closed for 50 days by the boycott of the pro-government unions.

Enemy Forces Apparently Set To Make Stand

All-Out Defense Of Chunchon Seen

TOKYO, Saturday, March 17 (AP) —Chinese Communists, throwing in fresh troops and artillery along the Korean front, today repulsed Allied patrols probing defenses of the vital Red Base of Chunchon.

The Allied offensive ground ahead less than 20 miles from the 38th parallel. But the Communists showed every indication of being ready, after days of retreat, to stand and fight.

A heavily-censored field dispatch said Allied patrols moving north of captured Hongchon, 15 miles southeast of Chunchon, were forced to retire.

An intense enemy artillery barrage also suggested Red determination to hold Chunchon, their last big base below the 38th parallel.

Red Pocket Wiped Out

Around Hongchon, entered Thursday by the Allies, the last pocket of "no surrender" Chinese was wiped out Friday, the dispatch said.

Gen. MacArthur's communique, covering operations Friday reported "pressure by U. N. ground troops continued across the entire front as we attempted to maintain contact with the withdrawing enemy."

An Allied intelligence officer in re-occupied Seoul said between 200,000 and 250,000 Reds were believed to be in hill positions defending Chunchon. Four Red armies were reported in reserve farther north.

"The enemy withdrawal has been made with a definite purpose," the officer said.

"That is to establish new defense lines to delay the United Nations forces. However, there are indications that the enemy feels he cannot hold this line in view of our superiority of equipment and he may withdraw to the 38th parallel."

The officer said that about 12,000 truck loads of supplies have been sent into Korea from Manchuria, sufficient for the Reds to "put up a stiff resistance."

Censorship Blackout

Good defensive high ground just south of Chunchon may be their choice for an attempt to half the advancing Allies.

The U. S. Eighth Army estimated that 95 Reds were killed or wounded and 77 captured in Friday's ground actions.

A censorship blackout was thrown abruptly over Allied operations. Units smaller than the Eighth Army itself could not be identified.

The Reds threw their heaviest artillery fire of the war at Allied forces advancing north of Hongchon toward Chunchon. Allied artillery thundered back with 50 shells for one. Fighter planes raked the Red-held ridges with fire bombs.

AP Correspondent William C. Barnard, on the central front, reported the Chinese were throwing reserves into the line.

Red resistance crumbled elsewhere on the front.

Gromyko, Davies Clash At Paris

PARIS, March 16 (AP)—A sharp exchange between Andrei Gromyko and Britain's Ernest Davies marked the stalemated junior Big Four conference today.

Davies said the Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister's "negative attitude" toward revised Western proposals for an agenda caused him to wonder whether Russia really wants a foreign ministers meeting.

Gromyko came right back and told Davies it was difficult for him to believe the British delegate could possibly doubt Russia's desire to hold such a meeting.

"Davies suggestion is completely preposterous and I deny it categorically," Gromyko said.

Davies interjected that the Western Powers have gone about as far as they can in meeting the Russians.

Treasury, Post Office Fund Cut Proposed

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP)—A slight trimming job was done today on a big appropriation to run the Treasury and Post Office Departments for the year beginning July 1.

The House Appropriations Committee recommended that $2,921,600,000 be spent for the purpose. This is $36,525,000, or 1.3 per cent, less than President Truman asked. It is $88,021,800 less than the departments have for the current fiscal year.

The house will start debating the bill Tuesday.

Bring Your Problems To Church This Sunday...Millions Leave Them There!

"GODSPEED..."

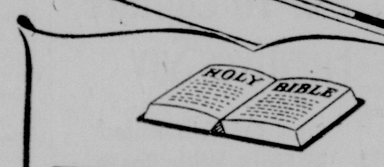

. . . An old word in our language! Really a prayer: "God speed you on your journey." And it came into use in an age when man's travels were slow and laborious.

Why, in this supersonic day, does such a word remain in our language? Obviously, because it still expresses a deep spiritual truth.

With all our conquests of time and distance, we are dependent on God for the fundamental needs of the soul. Though we can travel in an hour farther than our forebears travelled in a week—are we any nearer Peace, Happiness, Contentment?

Our progress toward the real goals of life is influenced more by the Church than by rockets. Wherever we may travel, wherever we may live, the Church helps us to know and understand the power of God.

Are you helping the Church help you? GODSPEED!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

The St. Lawrence Project

Congress will again come to grips with the controversial St. Lawrence seaway-power project at its present session in what may be the decisive struggle over that long planned development. Unless now accepted as necessary to the national defense, the project as at present conceived may never be undertaken.

Congress remained unmoved when the St. Lawrence development was pressed upon it by President Roosevelt during World War II as a means of providing additional supplies of electric power for defense plants in the northeastern states. But now the project has been given a "new look" by the depletion in the last war and since of the high-grade iron ore reserves of the Mesabi Range near Lake Superior. President Truman is asking quick approval of the project on the ground that the proposed 27-foot channel from Lake Superior to the sea is needed to give midwestern steel mills safe and economical access to newly discovered open-pit ore resources in Labrador.

The Administration has sent an impressive list of witnesses to testify before the House Public Works Committee that the project is essential to the national security, that it can be made to pay for itself through sale of electricity and collection of tolls from ships using the waterway, and that it will make a mighty contribution to economic development in the North Atlantic area and the Great Lakes basin.

Opponents of the project include railroads, public utility companies, coal operators, shipping interests, and port cities along the eastern seaboard which would lose traffic to the waterway. They have not yet made their case in formal testimony but their arguments are fairly familiar. For two decades these arguments have been sufficient to prevent acceptance of the seaway-power project by Congress.

Supporters of the St. Lawrence project admit that resources of the Mesabi-Lake Superior region, on which the steel industry has depended for 85 per cent of its ore supply, are far from exhaustion. Latest estimates are that 80 million tons of ore a year can still be obtained from this source in 1960. But all authorities agree that sooner or later there will be a sharp falling off in production there. And, because of increasing demands for steel, it is estimated by Secretary of the Interior Chapman that by 1960 "we must be prepared to import 40 million tons of ore a year." The National Security Resources Board says that by the end of the present decade "50 million tons must be furnished from entirely new sources of supply."

One of the new sources of supply to which the steel industry can turn is development of economical processes for concentrating domestic low-grade taconites. The output of usable ore from taconites may reach 13.5 million tons by 1960, at which time the planned production of high-grade ore in Labrador is only about 10 million tons. However, the experts say that the Labrador output could be largely expanded simply by adding more scoop shovels. According to the N.S.R.B., it could be raised to "20, 30 or even more million tons a year" if war comes.

The rich holdings of American steel companies in Venezuela are pointed out by opponents of the seaway as a source of supply from which ore can be shipped to Atlantic and Gulf ports, and then by rail to the steel mills or by water through the Mississippi-Ohio barge route. There are also large deposits in the Steep Rock area of the Province of Ontario from which ore can be transported to the United States across the lakes without passing through the St. Lawrence. In view of the very large supplies obtainable from alternative sources, opponents assert that it is necessary to spend the millions needed to construct the seaway, with all the economic dislocations that would follow in its train.

Because of the insistence of such figures as Defense Secretary Marshall and Defense Mobilizer Wilson that the project should be started at once, it is given a better chance in 1951 than at any time in the past. The areas which will benefit and the areas which may suffer from the development have about equal strength in Congress. The final decision is expected to turn on the appeal made by the defense argument to senators and representatives from states not directly affected.

Exploding A Myth

In the search for more tax revenue to meet steadily increasing government outlays much has been heard about "soaking the rich." On the theory that those who earn more should and could pay more, it was generally taken for granted the government would look in that direction for the extra billions needed to balance the budget.

Dr. Gallup, the pollster, has conducted a nation-wide survey on the subject, and finds the populace with ideas that differ from those expressed by many politicians.

The so-called rich fared rather well in the verdict. Fixing the income tax for a typical family of four, earning $3,000 a year, a majority of those interviewed thought it should be $100. Such a family paid approximately $56 on its 1950 income. In contrast, a family of four earning as much as $50,000, in the view of those contacted, should pay $10,000, instead of the $16,000 it paid on last year's income.

A majority view was that those earning $10,000 should pay $1,000 in taxes, instead of the $1,217 they now contribute directly to Uncle Sam.

There has never been a popular demand that income taxes for those in the higher brackets be raised to confiscatory levels. As early as 1942 Dr. Gallup discovered that the public would levy only half as much tax on the $50,000-a-year income as that actually levied by the government.

This was true also in 1947, when a survey disclosed the public was in favor of only one-third of the actual levy. If the rich are to be soaked still harder, it will not be in response to clamor from those with lower incomes.

African Gardening

The general impression about tropical and jungle regions is that their soil and climate are so lush that anything will grow there if someone takes the trouble to plant it. The British have been discovering that it is not so, at least it is not so in Africa.

The government's first large-scale agricultural venture in Africa was an attempt to raise peanuts, which was abandoned after a substantial loss. Now it is disclosed that a project to produce chickens and eggs on a grand scale also has come to grief. Disease has wrought havoc with the flock and it has been discovered that sufficient feed could not be grown at the site of the experiment.

Gardening in Africa seems to present problems. Perhaps the British government needs someone with an old-fashioned green thumb.

How To Keep Well

An Attractive Posture

FAULTY POSTURE is universal but we are at a loss to know why. It encourages second and third rate degrees of health and detracts from the appearance of the individual. This is ironical because the normal stance is not difficult to learn. Furthermore, sitting and standing erect will make us look and feel better and give all our organs a chance to work at maximum efficiency.

Good posture is a habit and, like other good habits, should be acquired early in life. In this respect the responsibility rests with the parents, the school teacher, and the physician. It is easy to check the youngsters from time to time but if the job is to be done properly, they should be partially disrobed to get a good view of the shoulders, spine, abdomen, and pelvic girdle. Many procedures are available for investigating the posture, varying from the simple home test of standing against the wall to the more complicated office procedures of making accurate measurements, dropping plumb lines, and utilizing calipers. But regardless of the method used, the child should be made posture conscious so that a good carriage will become a habit.

Disturbances along this line in adults are not so easy to correct but they are far from hopeless. The exception occurs when the bones have become rigid and cannot be straightened out even if force is employed. But the majority do not fall into this category and improvement is possible by instituting corrective measures. Much depends upon the cause. An erect posture calls for a normal spine, good feet, a firm abdominal and pelvic wall, and a high diaphragm. Defects in this department must be remedied first and professional care is needed. But when the spine and legs are otherwise normal, other factors ought to be considered.

Fatigue from overwork or insufficient rest is a common origin; the muscles that hold up our frame are tired. The cure is obvious but in addition it is advisable to lie down several times a day to relax the muscular system. This is best accomplished by using a hard mattress with no pillow. A small pillow under the knees helps relax the muscles of the back, abdomen, hips, and knees. In this position the nervous and muscular systems have a chance to recuperate, circulation becomes horizontal, respiration is easier, and gastro-intestinal distress is relieved.

However, when weakness is caused by an exhausting disease, operation, or occupation, a gradual strengthening process is advised. In some instances a supportive belt can be worn but this should always be looked upon as a temporary measure except in the aged who often need permanent support. Adequate food must not be forgotten; it supplies the body with proper nourishment.

Exercises are recommended because they play an important role in maintaining posture. A round shouldered person, for example must attempt to keep the shoulders back. This is done as a conscious effort at first but if he persists the maneuver is likely to become habitual so that it is done without thinking. Bending exercises strengthen the abdomen and back and contracting the gluteal muscles will do the same for the pelvic floor. Arch defects may be relieved by stretching the tendons, picking up marbles with the toes, and walking on the outside of the feet. Exercise is not the complete answer to faulty posture but it helps whenever muscular weakness interferes with body mechanics.

HERPES

L. H. writes: My sister has had shingles for several months and still suffers from back and chest pain even though the blisters have healed. Why does she remain uncomfortable?

REPLY

Your sister has been left with a residual neuritis which may persist for some time. As a rule, this condition disappears ultimately and vitamin B may speed the process. Beyond that and the use of pain killing drugs, not much can be done as the manifestation is most resistant to treatment.

CHILD'S HAIR TEXTURE

Mrs. H. writes: My 15-month-old daughter has hair that is not fluffy but lies flat against her head. People take her for a boy. Is there any way I can improve her hair?

REPLY

If she is otherwise normal, let nature take its course. Why not imagine that she has that sculptured look and let it go at that. In time, her hair will grow.

CEREBRAL PALSY

E. A. writes: I am writing a term paper on cerebral palsy, and am unable to obtain enough information in our school library. Do you have some information on this subject?

REPLY

Yes. Send a large, stamped, self-addressed envelpe for leaflet on celebral palsy. Leaflet also gives the names and addresses of several Cerebral palsy organizations. In addition we have a list of various state societies for crippled children from whom you may be able to obtain additional information.

Duggan-Field Link May Be Clue To Seven Unsolved Disappearances Or Deaths

Following Hiss Case Revelations; Field's Whereabouts No. 1 Mystery

FRANKFORT—The No. 1 American mystery of Europe continues to be the sudden and unsolved disappearance of four Americans in the Noel Field case after Field was named by Whittaker Chambers as a member of the Communist cell in the U. S. State Department. This case is now being linked for the first time with another unsolved mystery in the United States—the strange death of Laurence Duggan, found in a snowbank 16 floors below his New York office. Duggan also was named in the State Department investigation, though cleared by the Justice Department.

The amazing thing is that a total of seven people have now died mysteriously or disappeared even more mysteriously following revelations in the Alger Hiss case.

The four people who have disappeared behind the iron curtain with or in the wake of Noel Field are: Field himself, who disappeared in Czechoslovakia May 10, 1949. His brother, Herman, vanished August 22 that same year while traveling in an airplane between Warsaw and Prague. Afew days later Mrs. Noel disappeared while trying to find her husband in Prague. Then, one year later, Erica Wallachs, a friend of the Fields, went into the Russian zone of Berlin in search of them and never came back. All these disappearances occurred during about the same period of three mysterious deaths in the Hiss case. They were:

Death No. 1—Harry Dexter White, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury who reportedly died of heart failure August 16, 1948, after testifying before the Congressional committee at which Elizabeth Bentley had charged White with being a member of the elite Communist group inside the government. White's death was not announced until one day afterward and he was buried hastily. Later it was reported the real cause of his death was an overdose of digitalis, not heart failure.

Death No. 2—Walter Marvin Smith, Justice Department attorney found at the base of the Justice Department staircase where he had fallen or jumped October 20, 1948, shortly after the House Un-American Activities Committee had questioned him on his notorization of the transfer of title of a Ford automobile from Hiss to William Rosen, described in the Congressional testimony as a Communist organizer. Hiss, according to Whittaker Chambers, insisted on turning over his car to the Communist organizer. Smith was the only actual witness to the transfer.

Death No. 3 and the most mysterious of all was that of Laurence Duggan, former State Department official who, "while putting on his overshoes to go home," fell through a New York skyscrapper window. Duggan had been questioned a few days earlier regarding Communist spies in the State Department. Insurance investigators believed it unlikely that a man would commit suicide while putting on his overshoes and paid his widow nonsuicide death benefits.

Clue To Mystery?

It now develops there was a personal link between Duggan and Field which may supply one small clue to this international mystery. Duggan and Field not only served in the State Department at the same time but, for one period, they shared the same house together off Judiciary Square in Washington. Duggan informed his superiors during the war that he once attended Communist meetings in Alexandria, Va., during his early days in the State Department but he had never joined the party and became unsympathetic with their ideas.

Field, meanwhile, had left the State Department in 1936 and joined the League of Nations secretariat. During the war he served as European director of the Unitarian Service Committee which took him to Poland and Czechoslovakia, where he established medical centers and children's homes. He had thus become well acquainted with these two countries and, after the war, remained abroad to write a book on Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Disappearance Unplanned

On May 5, 1949, Field went from Switzerland to Prague and on May 12 he failed to keep an afternoon appointment. He has not been heard of since. Apparently he did not plan to disappear because his room showed no signs of departure. He did not notify the friend with whom he had the appointment nor his wife, Herta, who planned to join him in a few weeks.

Five months later, however, when the Communists tried Hungarian Foreign Minister Laszlo Rajk, the Hungarian press reported that Rajk testified that Field had persuaded him to become "a servant of American imperialism." Later, in the fall of 1950, six East German Communists were charged with dealing with "the American spy, Noel Field."

More recently Czech refugees have reported that Field would testify in the trial of Czech Foreign Minister Vladimir Clementis, though there has been nothing to substantiate this.

Meanwhile, Field's brother, Herman, in August, 1949, decided to go to Prague to find his missing brother. He boarded a plane in Warsaw on August 22. Friends accompanied him to the airport and the American Embassy, checking the plane's manifest later, found his name was on it. However, when the plane arrived at Prague Herman Field was not on it. He has never been heard of since, either, except in one respect.

On February 25, 1950, Vilem Novy, editor of the Czech Communist newspaper, Rude Pravo, was denounced by a member of the Central Communist Committee for having betrayed state secrets to a Western espinonage agent when Novy was a refugee in Krakow in 1939. Herman Field, who was then doing refugee work among Czech refugees in Krakow, knew Novy and was apparently that alleged agent.

Theories On Unsolved Mystery

Meanwhile, Mrs. Noel Field left Switzerland on August 3 to seek her husband in Prague but she, too, disappeared from sight on August 17. A year later, with the Fields' whereabouts still unsolved, their friend, Erica Wallachs, wife of a Washington attorney, persuaded her husband to let her go to Switzerland to locate them. Mrs. Wallachs went to Berlin alone, reportedly was met by Leo Bauer, editor of the Soviet controlled Berlin radio whom she knew. She has never been heard of since.

Several theories are given for these these disappearances. One is that Field had been working with the Communists and, when the Congressional investigations got too hot, he wanted to be taken into protective Communist custody. Another theory is that the Fields had worked with the Communists in their early days, knew their vital secrets, and became too dangerous for them to have on the loose. Another is that they wanted Noel Field as a witness against key figures, such as Hungarian Foreign Mister Rajk. Field not only worked with refugees during and after the war but also with the OSS in Czechoslovakia and Hungary in an effort to unseat Hitler's puppet governments.

Meanwhile, until Field and his family are heard from direct, his whereabouts remains the No. 1 unsolved mystery of Europe.

By MARK SULLIVAN

WE ARE NEARING the end of the great debate. Primarily it has been on sending troops to Europe and if so in what numbers. Secondarily the debate has been on whether the decision should be made wholly by the President or whether Congress should have a hand. The latter issue is increasingly to the front. Many members of Congress support sending troops to Europe, in some numbers and with some limitations—but at the same time fight doggedly for the principle that Congress should participate in making the decisions.

Throughout the arguments against participation by Congress has run a recurrent theme. As put by a highly placed source, Gov. Dewey of New York: "I believe that the deployment of troops is a job for experts and not for politicians. . . I will trust Gen. Marshall, Gen. Eisenhower and the Chiefs of Staff, rather than any one else. . ."

Many persons, less exact in expression, have it more colloquilly. In effect they say, "This is a thing for military men to decide." With many undoubtedly this is a conscientious conviction, it could reasonably be. With others it is perhaps an escape from the hard work of thinking the problem through.

In all events this position ignores a profound truth. Military decisions are rarely military alone, almost all important ones are also policy decisions. To put it more exactly, the military decisions have policy effects and the policy effects remain after the war.

Policy Decisions Erred

An example is Yalta. There President Roosevelt, in a secret agreement with Stalin, promised that Russia, after the war, should have territory belonging to China, specifically Manchuria, together with other advantages at the expense of China. Roosevelt made the agreement for a military purpose, to induce Stalin to help us in our war against Japan; up to that time Russia had participated only in the war against Germany. But the Yalta decision had policy effects disastrous to us. It largely enabled Russian communism to overrun China and set up a Communist government of China which now fights us in Korea.

Another example is the invasion of Europe, the "second front." General of the Army Marshall wanted the invasion made through France, launching it in Normandy. As a military decision that was sound distance and other considerations made France the best starting place for the invasion.

But above the level of military decision was policy decision. About that there was two years of dispute. Churchill, wise about the long history of Europe and foresighted about the future, wanted the invasion made through the Balkans, obviously in order that after the war the Balkans and Eastern Europe should be occupied by the Allied Forces, not by the Russians. Stalin wanted the invasion made through France, naturally; in his conference with Roosevelt and Churchill at Teheran he blustered for it. Roosevelt, after prolonged argument among the three, took Stalin's view. That decision, with others determined by Roosevelt, resulted in the Russians occupying most of the Balkans, most of Eastern Europe and Germany up to and including part of Berlin. That policy decision was a

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Great Planners

ROOSEVELT, Churchill and Stalin met at Teheran in Iran on November 28, 1943, to deal with many questions, among them being "overlord," which Soviet Russia regarded as the second front, and the eventual organization of the world through something like the United Nations.

Stalin was ingenious. In spite of all that we were doing, he minimized all our efforts because we had not yet started "overlord," that is, the second front in Europe by way of France. Nevertheless, Roosevelt pushed the problem of how to maintain the peace once the war was over. He proposed a world organization (similar to the United Nations) with an assembly, and an executive committee, consisting of Soviet Russia, the United States, Great Britain and China, together with ". . . two European nations, one South American, one Middle Eastern, one Far Eastern and one British dominion. This executive committee would deal with all non-military questions—such as economy, food, health, etc."

Let me quote from "Roosevelt and Hopkins" by Robert E. Sherwood:

"Stalin asked whether this committee would have the right to make decisions which would be binding on all the nations. Roosevelt was indecisive in his answer to that one. He did not believe that the Congress would permit the United States to be bound by the decision of such a body . . ."

Then Roosevelt wanted a third body to be brought into existence which he termed "the four policemen," consisting of Soviet Russia, the United States, Great Britain and China.

This body would exist to act immediately, if the threat to peace appeared. Roosevelt was impressed with the fact that the League of Nations could debate but not act. "The four policemen" would be able to pitch right in.

Stalin correctly noted that the smaller nations of Europe would not like this at all. And then he gave his hand away when he said that China would not be very powerful when the war was over. He knew that in 1943, although it could have appeared then that if Japan were out of the way, China could be a very strong nation, indeed. So Stalin proposed a committee for Europe and another for Asia. Presumably Russia would be on both committees as she existed on both continents.

Roosevelt's problem was that while he thought the United States would go along on a world organization, Congress would not favor a strictly European entanglement. In this, of course, he was wiser than Harry Truman and Dean Acheson, who, while they were able to put over the North Atlantic Alliance, never could make it popular. And Roosevelt also realized that whatever was unpopular was unsound politically in a free country.

Hopkins in Sherwood's book comments:

"Stalin said that if the President's suggestion for a world organization were carried out—particularly the four poliicemen part of it — this might require the sending of American troops overseas. Roosevelt said that he had only foreseen the sending of American naval and air forces to Europe and that any land armies needed in the event of a future threat would have to be provided by Britain and the Soviet Union.

Again Roosevelt displayed a keener understanding of the American people than Truman or Acheson, or, for that matter, Marshall and Eisenhower. The American people have not favored sending ground troops throughout the world, but have not resented sending the navy or the marines. And apparently their attitude toward the air force is identical to their attitude toward the navy.

Roosevelt further is reported by Hopkins to have taken this position:

"The major threat would be provided by a gesture of aggression on the part of a large power; in this case the four policemen would send an ultimatum to the threatening nation and, if the demands were not immediately met, they would subject that nation to bombardment and, if necessary, invasion. (There seems to be no evidence of any discussion of the possibility that the offending aggressor might be one of the four policemen.)"

Again, it is interesting that in Harry Hopkins' report on this discussion, he barely mentions Winston Churchill. Apparently, he was squeezed out between Roosevelt and Stalin. It will be interesting to read of this particular discussion in Churchill's report on Teheran when it appears.

These three elderly men were dividing the world between them—which must have been a wonderful thing to do, but Roosevelt missed one point: he was speaking to his enemy.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — American leadership in the United Nations will have to be exerted promptly if the military expedition now in Korea is not to become enmeshed in a strait jacket of political inhibitions.

The spectacle of a military force hemmed in by political considerations in the midst of a battle is unprecedented in history—and what is worse, the considerations which are influencing the outcome are hidden from view.

When General MacArthur, in his cabled answer to the question propounded by Hugh Baillie of the United Press, states to all the world that neither the 38th Parallel nor any other line across the peninsula favors "positional warfare," he is, in effect, declaring that there must be a continuous war of maneuver "unless the situation is radically altered." He adds that the "problem involved requires more fundamental decisions than are within my authority or responsibility to make as the military commander — decisions which must not ignore the heavy cost in Allied blood which a protracted and indecisive campaign would entail."

Significant Message

The General has always chosen his words carefully in answering queries, and there is vast significance in the idea he has sought to convey by his latest message. For unquestionably, if there is no place to take up a position defensively on any line across the Korean peninsula, the only two things left to do are to continue indefinitely an indecisive war of maneuver or to push ahead to the Yalu River with enough troops and air bombardment of bases across the Manchurian border to protect our advancing armies.

What General MacArthur is saying, from his long experience as a strategist, is that the offensive he undertook last November was logical on the assumption that Red China would stay out but that, without the right to strike at the enemy's bases and supply lines across the Manchurian border, it would be a mistake now to try this. He implies, however, that the U. N. cannot indefinitely subject Allied armies in Korea to a long war without defining more explicitly its objectives and without removing some of the barriers that stand between the UN forces and ultimate victory —namely, as he calls it, "the accomplishment of our mission in the unification of Korea."

The principal barrier is the supposed unwillingness of a majority of the UN to permit UN forces to achieve their real objective, which is to drive the Red Chinese out of Korea even if it means fighting the Communists north as well as south of the Yalu River. Just why Red Chinese troops cannot be killed north of the boundary but can be killed in large numbers south of that line is inexplicable.

It is important also to bear in mind that, if permission to bomb bases north of the Manchurian border is not to be granted by the UN then our forces must remain far enough south of the Yalu River to allow for a field of fire for our airplanes against enemy supply lines. This is but another way of saying that, without the right to bombard across the Manchurian boundary, the UN forces are committed indefinitely to what General MacArthur calls a war of maneuver.

What then will happen? Must the UN forces stay there for months and perhaps years? The answer will be forthcoming in a few weeks when the snow thaws and the mud bogs down the movement of troops and when the enemy will be able to move without so much fear of air attack, inasmuch as flying weather gets bad seasonally soon. A decision will come then and if the Red Chinese get a beating, peace may ensue.

The viewpoint held here in high quarters is that Red China already has been checked in Southeast Asia,

THE FELLOWSHIP SERVES

Ye are the salt of the earth.

Matthew 5:13

Read Luke 15:11-32

Jesus indicated that if a man should perform the function of salt, he could have much to do in making the world good.

Every housewife knows that salt is used to keep things from going rotten. It is man's natural ally to health, and the antagonist to the germs that produce disease.

The little silk-mill worker, in Browning's "Pippa Passes," tripped down the street singing.

All's right with the world!"

But we know that not all is right with the world. There ought to be people in our churches who are vital enough, healthy enough, and pungent enough to encounter corruption and destroy it.

Salt, too, has the quality of bringing out the flavor. The Book of Job asks, "Is there any taste in the white of an egg?" No, but salt can work a miracle with it. So with other things. Homes can be brightened; dull, sparkless lives can be lit up, if some radiant personality sets out to restore the lost savors and release the hidden powers.

Salt is also a neutralizer. Thank God for people whose very presence subdues our bitterness and keeps life fresh and desirable.

Let Us Pray: Loving Creator, impart to us the life-giving spirit of thy Son, that it may breathe through us to be felt by those whose lives touch ours. We pray in his name. Amen.

County May Hard Surface More Roads

Members of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners learned at their conference with State Roads Commission officials Thursday in Baltimore that there may be a possibility of having approximately five miles of secondary roads in this county hard surfaced under the federal aid program, in addition to the three projects scheduled.

The county has approximately $47,000 to its credit with the State Roads Commission over and above the funds contributed for the Williams Road, Mill Run and Lower Town Creek Road projects under the federal aid program.

The commissioners were informed by the SRC officials that there is the prospect of an increase of about $20,000 in gasoline tax funds in this county due to the amount of gasoline which is believed will be sold during the current year.

If the $20,000 increase materializes, the county will submit the sections of secondary roads which it wishes to be included in the federal aid probram. These roadways must have a stone base and be graded. The board will know within the next month if the federal aid will be available.

These secondary road projects will be of much lower specifications than the three projects now under contract in the county. Tarring and chipping of the roads will be the extent of the work and will provide a fairly good surface for farm-to-market travel.

The commissioners pointed out this morning that the three federal aid projects will cost a total of $339,210.02 and the county has only had to levy $60,000 directly in taxes. The balance of the money comes from gasoline tax funds each year over a $200,000 base and is matched with federal funds.

The $200,000 which is used by the county for road maintenance, is added to approximately $55,000 to $60,000 in tax moneys levied by the commissioners to take care of the operations of the County Roads Department.

Total cost of each of the three federal aid projects in the county, which are scheduled to be completed during the coming construction season, is as follows:

Williams Road, $201,819; Lower Town Creek Road, $49,503.33 and Mill Run Road, $87,787.65.

County Agents Seek Pay Hike In New Budget

The proposed budget for the fiscal year starting July 1 to operate the County Extension Service program was submitted to the Allegany County Board of Commisisoners yesterday.

John Magruder, state leader of county farm agents, met with the board and accompanying him were Ralph F. McHenry, county farm agent, and Miss Maude A. Bean, county home demonstration agent.

Magruder explained the budget request of $6,120 was the share of Allegany county towards the program. The state and federal governments also contribute. The increase over last year's budget is $500 and Magruder explained it is for salary raises for McHenry, Miss Bean and their assistants, Miss Thelma Allin and Joseph M. Steger.

Under the budget proposal, McHenry would get $100 more annually from the county, Miss Bean, $200 and Miss Allin and Steger each $100. The state has also been asked to contribute towards a budget increase to provide for more salary for the Extension Service workers.

He explained that the Extension Service in Maryland has lost about 10 per cent of its personnel due to some of the younger men being drafted and others leaving for better paying jobs or else transferring to farming.

Even though the new blues may not be right for you, here are touches that will make them becoming!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

EVER been baited by high-fashion into getting an outfit less flattering to your own coloring than it should be? That is what this season's grayed-off blue will do to many a lovely. This tempting hue taxes the complexion of all but the fairest. Slate, soldier and French blues have a deadening effect on most skins, unless handled adroitly.

What it takes is some skillful color contrasts in accessories and possibly a new shade of rouge, lipstick and eyeshadow. Let's consider the accessory strategy first. As usual, your personal coloring will be the governing factor:

Brunettes Break Rules

If you have brunette skin, which is any tint from cream to olive, and you (who shouldn't) fall for a dusty blue, break all my previous rules about selecting only accessories that contain the same undertones as the main part of your outfit. Any more blue tones agains your skin and you'll be sallowe to the point where folks will star to worry about your health!

Instead, get something close to your face that is spiked with warm golden or rosy tones . . . perhaps a hat, blouse, scarf or posy. You will find your accessory color solved by any of these popular shades: Melon, apricot, nasturtium, geranium, daffodil or lime. All of these shades will enhance your skin and none will clash with your blue because the new indigos are subdued almost to the point of becoming a neutral.

Accents For Blondes

Now, if you are fair skinned, although the smoky blues are theoretically becoming to your type, you may find they drain your complexion of its delicate tints. If so, add some bright-bright touch which contains blue undertones. (The rules hold firm for you.) Fuschia, turquoise, periwinkle, lilac or violet are the seasonal colors that will perform handsomely for you.

As for make-up, the brunette type should wear the clearest, strongest true or orangy red that is available in lipstick and matching rouge; the fair should chose a lipstick and rouge that is bright blue-red but not purply. No matter what your skin coloring, experiment with these eye shadows: For brown or hazel eyes, blue gray shadow; for green, gray or blue eyes, brown shadow. The effect should be wonderful!

Britain Favors Peace Try When Line Stabilized

LONDON, March 16 (AP)—Britain has told America the United Nations should seek a Korean settlement with Red China when U. N. forces stabilize themselves around the 38th parallel, western diplomats reported tonight.

They said the British suggestion has been received with some sympathy in Washington, where talks on the political aspects of the Korean war take place from time to time.

Britain, the sources added, reaffirmed she is against the idea of a major U. N. thrust into North Korea.

That kind of action, her spokesmen in Washington have argued, would expose the U. N. forces—with extended lines of supply—to another strong Communist counter-offensive.

When a stable military line has been established—either just below or just above the parallel, whichever is militarily more tenable—Britain has suggested a cease-fire offer should go to Red China to open the way for a political settlement in accordance with declared U. N. objectives.

These objectives include restoration of Korea as an united, independent, democratic country.

Britain, the informants reported, is in agreement with the United States that the Communists should be left guessing as to whether U. N. forces intend, or do not intend, to plunge over the 38th parallel. To make it plain right now there is no such intention would be to give information of high military value to the Reds, the two countries believe.

C. Of C. Favors RFC's Abolition

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP)—The U. S. Chamber of Commerce today supported Republican demands in Congress for immediate abolition of the multi-billion dollar Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The chamber's 45-member board of directors adopted a resolution declaring that facts disclosed in the current senate RFC operations.

"Engaged as we are in a national mobilization effort, we cannot afford to have the integrity or the general moral level of the government or any of its agencies subject to question," he said.

The business-civic organization noted that the big federal lending agency was set up in 1932 to cope with depression problems, and said its continued existence in the present "inflationary era" cannot be justified.

The resolution said the agency should be dissolved "without delay," saying it would save $18,000,000 in administrative expenses and trim the federal payroll "now a record high level" by 3,000 employes.

A-Spy Trial Awaits Witnesses From Afar

NEW YORK, March 16 (AP)—The nation's first atom spy trial heard brief testimony today and then adjourned until Tuesday to await prosecution witnesses from "distant places."

In mentioning the "distant places," the prosecution did not identify them.

Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman said the trial was moving more rapidly than he expected and that it might go to the jury "the week after next."

Ship Blast Kills Nine

NAPLES, Italy, March 16 (AP) — The 10,448-ton Italian oil tanker Montallegro exploded today in Naples harbor, killing nine workmen and injuring 59.

The blast shook the whole waterfront, split the vessel in two and caused heavy damage along the wharf to which the ship had put in for repairs.

As the Battershaw brothers and Sweet fled into the forest, firing all the while at Dahm and Wilhelm, the officers radioed for reinforcements, including horses.

Sheriff John Crosby arrived with four other officers. Both sides fired from behind trees and the desperadoes fell back.

A fusillade of fire by the officers pinned the trio on a ridge.

Crosby and Wilhelm took to the horses and circled around behind the ridge. Moving in close, Wilhelm cracked down on Dewey Battershaw with a six-shooter slug and ended the fight.

West German Share Of Expenses Boosted

BONN, Germany, March 16 (AP)—The Allied High Commission notified the West Germans today their bill for occupation cost and defense is being boosted a fifth in the new fiscal year to 6,595,000,000 marks (about $1,560,000,000. That's 6.3 per cent of the estimated national income.

West German spokesmen didn't like it, though the commission explained:

The increase results from the Allied security guarantee to West Germany.

firm in making contacts, drawing up plans, obtaining a suitable site and getting financial backing, he mentioned that over 1,000 man hours of Frostburg residents were utilized.

Richardson Wood and Company recently completed a six month temporary contract with the County and City and during this test period has revamped the Berkowitz development in Frostburg and acquired various contracts which offer possibility of successful conclusions.

Yesterday morning Wood signed a contract with the Cumberland Allegany Industrial Development Company for one year beginning February 15, 1951. William C. Walsh, president of the company and Harold W. Smith, secretary signed the contract on behalf of the city-county company.

Purpose Of Firm

The purpose of acquiring the services of the New York firm is to get the industrial advantages of Cumberland and vicinity into the hands of prospective businessmen. The firm makes contacts, checks resources, man power, location and finances and compiles these for industrial men who plan on expansion.

He said that Cumberland aggressiveness in obtaining new industry is well established. The willingness to work and further the encouragement of new industrial development in the area is well known in Washington and firms as far west as Chicago have heard of the prospects of this area.

A short question and answer period followed Wood's talk prior to the closing of the meeting.

highways in Pennsylvania would come through this area to get to the new parkway thus increasing the Cumberland Valley's importance to east-west travel and trade."

Would Increase Work Here

Patrick J. Carroll, manager of state department of employment security, indicated the increase in employment here would be tremendous if the plans for the parkway are approved.

"It means many improvements," he said, "and the work required would be beneficial to the entire area. Rebuilding of historical sites would bring Cumberland back into the limelight as it was in the past when the canal was a useful mode of transporation and the gateway to the east. A good part of the work for more than 25 miles of the estimated 180 miles of roadway for the national route would be provided by Cumberland labor.

"It's a mighty fine project," Carroll continued, and would mean a great deal to the city and the entire area. The project would employ large numbers of persons of skills and trades which are abundant in this area. The movement of certain railroad crossings would help alleviate the tremendous traffic problem confronting the city of Cumberland and the work plans would utilize the great surplus of labor here."

Wonderful Peacetime Plan

Arthur B. Gibson, city auditor, at first planned to attend the Annapolis hearing on Senate Bill 183 for the state to purchase necessary lands for the right of way for the new highway but the press of duties in Cumberland caused him to cancel the trip.

"It's a wonderful peacetime project," Gibson remarked, "and would certainly stimulate the flow of business through this area, something the city is in dire need of right now. New business here might help to tide the city's finances over also," Gibson went on, "thus not necessitating too much use of additional taxing powers now being sought by our local government."

EQUITY CASE FILED

Wheeling Cops Opening Game Of Playoffs

"Pug" Heinz Gets 24 Points; Play Second Game Here Tomorrow

WHEELING, W. Va., March 16—Wheeling's Blues drew first blood in their All-American Professional Basketball League series with Cumberland tonight, defeating the Spas by the score of 91-78.

The second game of the playoff semi-finals is scheduled for Sunday night at 9 p. m., on SS. Peter and Paul court, Cumberland.

Beaver Falls and Erie will tangle in the final of the best-of-three-games series Sunday at 3 p. m., in Erie, Pa.

Cumberland outplayed the Blues in the first half of tonight's game, leading 22-21 at the quarter, and 42-36 at intermission, but the home team put the game on ice in the third period when it outscored the Marylanders 32-18 to enter the final stanza on the long end of a 74-54 count.

Ralph (Pug) Heinz, playing his first league game for Wheeling, led the Blues in scoring with 10 goals and 24 points. Andy Tonkovich and Bob Pelaez registered 19 points each. Bob Pence and Jack Murphy were high scorers for the Spas with 16 and 15 markers.

The officials called 41 personal fouls—22 on Wheeling and 19 on the visitors, also three technicals on the Blues.

Wheeling could sew it up by winning Sunday's game. Tonight's victory was the 6th in seven starts against the Spas this season. Cumberland won the playoffs last season. Lineups:

Thomas C. Ferguson, State Physical Ed Leader, Dies

Headed State Athletic Program For 14 Years; Military Rites Set

BALTIMORE, March 16 (AP)—Thomas C. Ferguson, supervisor of health, physical education and recreation in the State Department of Education, died today at Bon Secours Hospital. He was 59.

Ferguson was a four-star athlete in his undergraduate college days at the University of South Dakota. He took part in football, basketball, baseball and track.

He received a bachelor's degree from South Dakota in 1915, a master's degree from Harvard in 1930 and a doctor's degree from George Washington University in 1941. He was a native of Adams, Mass.

Allegany county will be seeking two of the three championships when six schools tangle today in the finals of Maryland's Class A, B and C scholastic basketball tournaments at the University of Maryland's gymnasium at College Park.

Barton's Average 61.7

Coach John Thomas' Bartonites copped the title last year by scoring four straight wins. In 1947, 1948 and 1949 the Braves were eliminated in Class "D" tournaments. Boasting a 20-3 record and a scoring average of 61.7 points per game, the Braves have knocked off Friendsville, 79-33, Hancock, 66-27, and Sherwood High of Sandy Spring, 84-42, to date in the state tourney. Ocean City advanced to the finals on Tuesday by defeating Clarksville, 1950 finalist, 52-41.

Barton's starting lineup is expected to be Bob and Bill Kirk at the forward posts. Arnold Tichnell, center, Don Bean and Tim Clark, guards.

Central High School, coached by John Meyers, is also the defending champion in today's Class "B" final. A year ago the 'Coney school won four straight in the tournament, climaxing its drive with a 50-37 decision over Elkton.

The Tigers have a season's record of 17 wins and 6 losses and they're now in a five-game winning streak. In the state tourney the Orange and Black has taken the measure of Oakland 61-37, Williamsport 66-42 and Gaithersburg 39-25.

Central Faces Aberdeen

Aberdeen High School of Harford county is Ceneral's opponent tonight at 7 o'clock. Aberdeen knocked out Cambridge on Wednesday by the score of 51-50. The Lonaconing quint has averaged 49.7 points per game for 23 contests.

Hagerstown High will be the third Western Maryland quint in tonight's finals. Coach Mel Henry's Hubs will meet Wicomico's High of Salisbury in the Class "A" final at 8 o'clock.

NOTES ON THE CAMPS

REDS LOSE TO CARDS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 16 (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals, powered by Stan (The Man) Musial, edged out the Cincinnati Reds 7 to 6 in the final inning of their exhibition game today.

Cincinnati was one run ahead when the Cardinals came to bat in the last of the ninth. Musial drove in his fourth run of the day to tie the score at 6-all. Then Leftfielder Bill Howerton broke his third bat of the day, but he broke it on a single that drove in third baseman Don Richmond with the winning run. Score:

The free-hitting Bosox were coasting along with a 10-1 lead in the fifth when Stephens twisted his ankle and fell while fielding a drive off the bat of Tiger Al Federoff.

Stephens was carried off the field. Red Sox officials said X-rays would be taken at Sarasota to determine the extent of the injury. Score:

Fairview Wins Class B Title

Green Bank Beaten In Finals, 42 To 40

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., March 16 (AP)—A faster, ball-hawking Fairview quintet beat down jittery Green Bank's last-ditch rally today to capture the state Class B basketball title with a 42-40 decision.

A crowd of 4,940 spent most of the last quarter on its feet as the losers, unbeaten in 27 games this year prior to the finals, stormed back from a 13-point deficit.

Behind 40-27 after three periods in which they appeared hopelessly out of the contest, the Green Bank forces outscored the Indians 13-2 in the final eight minutes and had them on the ropes.

With but five seconds remaining, Bruce Bosely dropped in the first of two free throws awarded him to pull the Eagles within two points. But the losers, after waiving the second foul toss and taking the ball out of bounds, saw their last chance to force play into an overtime fade as Ken Shears' last-second shot was wild.

Mike Marko of the ball-hawking, faster Indians and the losers' Bill Sutton shared scoring honors with 17 points each. Green Bank appeared tense and jittery through the first three periods.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 16 (INS) — The State Senate, acting to prevent "chaos" in New York horse racing, rammed through a bill late today giving the state racing commission authority to license horse owners, trainers and jockeys.

The vote was 34 to 21.

Boston College Wins

MEDFORD, Mass., March 16 (INS) — Boston College defeated Trinity College of Hartford, Conn., 82 to 72 in an overtime game tonight at Cousens gym, Tufts College, to win the first New England College Invitation Basketball Tournament.

SPORTS GRILL

by Pat Robinson
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, March 16 (INS) — St. Patrick's Day is with us again tomorrow and it was on that day 28 years ago that the biggest mistake of all time in boxing took place.

For that was the day that Battling Siki, the Singular Senegalese, laid his world's light heavyweight title on the line in a bout with Mike McTigue, an Irishman, in Dublin, Ireland.

You may recall the result: Siki blew his title by a dubious decision at the end of 20 rounds.

Siki was by all odds the strangest character the world of sport has ever known.

He was a little fellow only 10 years old roaming the jungles of West Africa when he fell into the hands of the French. His Tribal name was Baye.

A wealthy French woman took charge of him, brought him to her home in Nice, France, and renamed him Louis Phail. He acted as a messenger boy and did odd jobs around the chateau for three years. During that time he discovered that his amazing strength and endurance was more than any little tough French boy could handle.

When his patroness died, Siki got a job washing dishes in a bar which gave him further opportunities for street fighting, which he loved, and a chance to pick up a little more of the French language.

Somebody advised him to become a professional fighter and so he did. He won his first three fights for which he got a total of 80 cents.

However, money never bothered Siki. So long as he had enough to eat and drink, especially drink, a place to sleep and a chance to fight, he was happy.

World War I came along about that time and Siki had a chance to do some real fighting in the French army. He fought so well that he was awarded the Croix De Guerre and the Medaille Militaire.

After the war a manager got him and took him on a tour of Europe during which he met all comers and belted most of them out with great regularity.

Gorgeous Georges Carpentier then was world's light heavyweight champion and the idol of all France. He accepted a title match with the half civilized Siki on whom Georges looked with contempt.

The result: Siki knocked out Georges in six rounds which was unfortunate for both men. Siki became the toast of the boulevards and, like many a more intelligent man, he couldn't stand prosperity.

His escapades brought about his exile from Europe. The next heard of him he was raising Cain in Canada and Hallujah in Havana where he broke some ribs jumping out of a hotel window.

He got into more street brawls as well as bouts in this country, for which he never trained, and finally was stabbed in a row. Sent to a hospital, he escaped clad only in a pair of pale pink pajamas and went back to his hotel, where he lived with his wife, a monkey, a big dog, two cats and 12 parrots.

The government tried to deport Siki. Deportation proceedings ended when Siki made his worst and final mistake. He got into a saloon brawl and wound up with two slugs in the back which killed him.

The best grasslands in Europe are in northern France.

Dayton Flyers, Brigham Young Meet In Finals

Invitation Tourney Will Close Tonight

By JOHN BARRINGTON

NEW YORK, March 16 (INS)—Dayton and Brigham Young will bid tomorrow night for the championship of the first National Invitation Basketball Tournament in which either ever has played.

And reserve strength—or lack of it—may be the key to the success or failure of these two tournament novices.

Brigham Young's third-seeded Cougars have been ultra impressive in a 75-to-58 rout of St. Louis and a 69-to-59 defeat of Seton Hall.

Unhearlded Dayton has defeated Lawrence Tech, 77 to 71, fourth-seeded Arizona, 74 to 68, and top-seeded St. John's, 69 to 62, in an overtime.

But neither the Cougars nor the Flyers has shown a strong bench. BYU has depended almost solely on six men—Roland Minson, Joe Richey, Mel Hutchins, Hal Christensen, Jerry Romney and Dick Jones.

The Flyers, too, have shown only six men who can operate at with full efficiency—Pete Boyle, Gene Hickey, Don Meineke, Dick Campbell, Leland Norris and Chuck Grigsby.

Nevertheless, the Cougars wrecked Seton Hall's three-platoon system, while Dayton—although it blew a ten-point lead against St. John's—managed to rip the Redmen apart in overtime with Meineke and Norris out on fouls.

Another important facet of the Cougar-Flyer duel will be the personal battle between Hutchins and Meineke. The 6' 7" Flyer center has scored 78 points in three games, although St. John's Zeke Zawoluk stopped him with 11.

If Hutchins, only 6' 5" but one of the most graceful big men in basketball, can handle Meineke the way he did Seton Hall's 6' 10" kingpin, Walt Dukes, then Dayton's chances will be much impaired.

St. John's and Seton Hall meet in a preliminary game for third place.

KANSAS CITY, March 16 (AP) — Twice champion Hamline University of St. Paul moved into the finals of the National Intercollegiate (NAIB) Basketball Tournament for the third time by defeating Baldwin Wallace, Berea, O., 78-62 tonight.

Regis College's Rangers of Denver, beaten by Hamline in the 1949 finals, and James Millikin of Decatur, Ill., met in the second game.

O'Brien Chalks Up 45 Points In Albany Tilt

ALBANY, N. Y., March 16 (AP)—Five-foot-nine John O'Brien dumped in 45 points tonight to lead Seattle to a 102-85 victory over Mount St. Mary's (Md) in the semi-finals of the National Catholic Invitation Basketball Tourney.

LeMoyne of Syracuse faced St. Francis of Brooklyn in the other semifinal.

O'Brien, from South Amboy, N. J., shattered the individual scoring record of 40, and his 18 field goals broke the old mark of 16. Les Cosgrove of Mount St. Mary's held the old marks.

Seattle's total cracked the team scoring record of 95 held by Lemoyne.

The teams tied six times in the first half before the West Coast cagers took over for good. Seattle led 56-42 at intermission and kept control the rest of the way.

Cosgrove scored 30 for Mount St. Mary's.

Legislators Agree Wrestling "Goons" Should Be Probed

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 16 (AP)—Maryland's House of Delegates agreed today that the State Athletic Commission should do something about the "goons" of professional wrestling.

A favorable report on a resolution urging the commission to look into "the sham and pretense" of wrestling was adopted by the delegates.

Two Democrats, Leroy Pumphrey of Prince Georges and Mrs. Leona M. Rush of Montgomery, sponsored the resolution.

Pumphrey did so after attending the bouts in Baltimore last week.

"I'm not trying to hurt wrestling, I'm trying to save it," he insisted. He confessed to a love of sports, but "one goon swinging at another goon" is not athletics in his opinion.

Gehrmann And Wilt To Race At Chicago

CHICAGO, March 16 (INS) — Don Gehrmann hopes to make a comeback in the Bankers' Mile at the Chicago Relays tomorrow night to wipe out three straight losses.

The former Wisconsin distance runner won 39 straight races before going into his recent slump.

He was beaten first this year by FBI-agent Fred Wilt in New York on March 3. Len Truex then defeated Gehrmann at the Knights of Columbus meet in Cleveland. Wilt outran Gerhmann a second time in the Milwaukee Relays last Saturday.

Wilt, Stewart Ray of the New York Athletic Club and Denis Johansson of Finland will be Gehrmann's opposition tomorrow night when he seeks his fourth straight victory in the Bankers' Mile.

Worsham Leads By One Stroke

Oakmont Pro Posts 67 At Jacksonville

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 16—Lew Worsham of Oakmont, Pa., shot a five under par 67 for the first round lead in the $10,000 Jacksonville Open Golf Tournament today.

Worsham, 1947 National Open Champion, birdied five holes and stuck to par on the other 13 of the 6,508-yard course. He sank one long putt—a 40 footer—but the rest of his birds he credited to accurate wedge shots from 100 yards or so off the green.

Lew Worsham

Jim Ferrier of San Francisco, the big Australian who won the Miami Beach Open last Sunday and the St. Petersburg Open a week earlier, was tied with Jack Shields, 30-year-old professional from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, one stroke behind Worsham with 68.

Ferrier played steady golf and birdied the last two holes for his 34-34. Shields flashed a 32 on the par 36 front nine but couldn't better par 36 on the second nine.

As Ferrier remarked "it's a tricky course." And Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, the leading money winner of the year, proved it by shooting a 77.

"I hit the ball well but I just can't score on this Florida sand," Mangrum explained. The Seminole Country Club at Palm Beach, where Mangrum won $2,500 earlier this week, is a different type course, he said. It doesn't have the sandy fairways of most Florida courses, he added.

Ed Furgol of Royal Oak, Mich., Dave Douglas of Newark, Del., Jimmy Clark of Laguna Beach, Calif., Max Evans of Detroit, Doug Ford of Yonkers, N. Y., and defending champion Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn., were tied at 70.

Beckley, Charleston Advance To Finals

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., March 16 (AP) — Beckley crushed Clarksburg Victory 67-43 and Charleston trampled Morgantown 78-60 tonight en route to a meeting tomorrow in the state Class A basketball meet's title clash.

A turn-away crowd of 6,800 saw 6-5 Willie Bergines engineer the skyscraping Beckley five's triumph with 32 points. Charleston's height and balance proved too much for the almost single-handed, 38-point effort by Morgantown's Charles Huggins.

Huggins' performance, certainly one of the most brilliant in recent tournament history, was believed also to be at least a modern tournament point record.

Bob Murphy KOs Danny Bucceroni

San Diego Battler Wins In 5th Round

NEW YORK, March 16 (AP)—Stout hearted Bob Murphy took everything young Danny Bucceroni could throw tonight and then wore down the Philadelphia butcher boy to win on a technical knockout in 51 seconds of the fifth round of a bloody battle in Madison Square Garden. Murphy, a 2 to 1 favorite, weighed 177 to Bucceroni's 172.

Blood gushed from every pore on the 23-year-old Bucceroni's face as the San Diego sailor battered his helpless foe in a corner of the ring. Referee Ruby Goldstein pulled the relentless redhead away from his victim and stopped the fight. There was no protest from lanky Danny.

This was the Philadelphia stringbean's bid for the big time. He had scored 30 victories in 31 fights, and had won his 18 in a row, the final eight by knockouts. The opposition had been pushovers.

It was a strong comeback for Murphy who, only two weeks ago in this same ring, absorbed a shellacking from Harry Matthews. It was Murphy's 56th victory against four losses and put him in the running again for a title shot with Lightheavyweight Champion Joey Maxim.

A crowd of 6,726 paid $22,835. Millions of other fans tuned in via television and radio network broadcasts.

THINGS LOOKIN' UP, CINCINNATI WAY

'We're Improved Over '51,' Promises Red Boss Sewell

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the fifth of a series of articles on the 1951 prospects of the major league baseball teams.

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor

TAMPA, Fla.—James Luther (Luke) Sewell, beginning his second year as manager of the Cincinnati Reds, sees red when he reads the pre-season polls and finds his club has been relegated to the cellar in the National league.

"Worst of all," says Luke, "they not only put us in last place, but deep in the cellar."

Needless to say, Luke and his band of Reds plan to show 'em, the same as they did last year when the club, given a low rating, played terrific ball in the second half of the season and finished in sixth place, ahead of both the Cubs and Pirates.

"We're definitely improved since last spring," he says, "but how much we have improved over the second half of the 1950 season remains to be seen.

"We're much better. In fact, I'd say we're a great deal better. If we can get some breaks, get some help from one of our young pitchers and from one of our young outfielders, we can do a lot of damage in this league."

Speaking about his pitchers, Alabama Luke says: "I think we have a better staff than last year. Certainly it's not the worst staff in the league."

THE REDS' pitching is headed by "the Whip," Ewell Blackwell, one of the standouts in the league.

Blackie, after long months of ailments in 1949 when he dropped down to 145 pounds on his 6-foot 6-inch frame, came back last year with 17 victories and has looked even better this spring. He weighs 200 pounds now.

The other Redleg starters are the 33-year-old veteran, Lefty Ken Raffensberger, who won 14 last season; Herman Wehmeier, big righthander with a world of stuff and a guy who won 10 games in 1950; Howie Fox, another righthander who had a 11-8 record with Cincy, and Willard Ramsdell, a rightie who spent part of last season with Brooklyn.

Among the newcomers, the best appears to be Jim Blackburn, who won 21 games for Tulsa last year and has drawn praise from most of the Red staff. Luke says the guy can pitch and always had a good curve ball and now has added a slider.

Other rookie flingers up who may help are Bud Byerly, who won 17 for Syracuse and Eddie Erautt, who has been up before but who has looked the best he ever has in spring camp this year.

The Redleg catching could be very good. Bob Scheffing, who spent several years with the Cubs, came to Cincinnati last year and failed to help because of a dead arm. But he underwent an operation last September for removal of bone chips and if he comes through the Reds may find him to be their No. 1 receiver. If not, the job probably will go to big John Pramesa, who hit .307 in 74 games in his sophomore year last season.

THE REDS have a power boy in the infield. He is Ted Kluszewski, the former Indiana university athlete who finally reached good heights last year. Ted thumped 25 homers, drove in 111 runs and batted .307. He was the first Redleg in nine years to have 100 or more RBI's, the last fellow being Frank McCormick, who played first for the Reds for many years.

At second the fight is between Bobby Adams, who played a fine brand of ball in the second half last season, and Connie Ryan, for years a reserve infielder with the Braves.

Virgil Stallcup is the shortstop and a good-looking prospect here is Roy McMillan, a 20-year-old glove man who played with Tulsa last season.

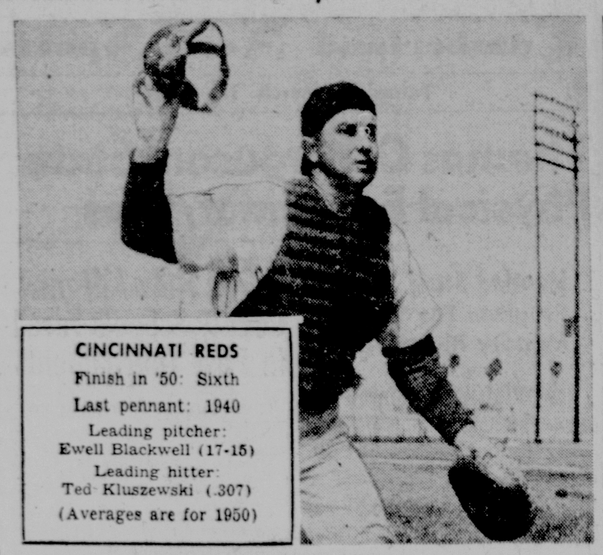

Grady Hatton had one of his weaker years at third for the Reds last year but Sewell says he has looked good this spring. Grady also has been worked at second with Adams at third.

A little more power in the outfield would help. The fly chasers are Johnny Wyrostek, who batted .285 in 131 games; Joe Adcock, a sophomore who started out as a first sacker last year and wound up in the outfield and did a fine job; Bob Usher, and Lloyd Merriman.

Among the hopefuls here are Walter Post, who hit .294 for Tulsa, and Bob Hazle, who batted .313 for Columbia.

Last year the team started with several oldsters in the lineup and they failed to come through. When younger men were inserted the club began to click.

Sewell has installed several mechanical gadgets this year to help in the training program. A "sweat box" which permits the pitchers to warm up without any cold breezes blowing on them is the most talked-about gadget in camp. Sewell also has a control pitching contraption and an "Iron Mike" pitching machine.

in Formosa, and in Tibet and cannot indefinitely keep up the fight in Korea and that, before the end of 1951, another negotiation will develop on Chinese initiative and that then a settlement which will vindicate the UN will be forthcoming. But, until that time, it is important that no obstacles be placed in the way of General MacArthur's forces to move up and down across the 38th Parallel and even beyond within safe range of his protecting air support.

Irish Will Continue Their Efforts To Liberate Country, Minister Says

(Sean McBride, Irish minister for external affairs, charges in the following exclusive St. Patrick's Day article that Britain has no claim to sovereignty over any portion of Ireland.

(At the same time, the Irish minister serves notice that the Irish will continue their efforts to "liberate and unify the whole" of their country, despite "Britain's undemocratic interference in our affairs.")

By SEAN McBRIDE, S.C., T.D.

WASHINGTON, March 16 (INS)—I am very glad to have this opportunity of extending through the International News Service the greetings of the Irish people to the people of the United States.

St. Patrick's Day is not merely the national feast day of Ireland but it is also the symbol of the spiritual and moral values for which the Irish people stand throughout the world.

The spread of Christianity throughout Europe after the fall of the Roman Empire was one of the tasks undertaken from Ireland. Through the centuries the Irish people have maintained the faith and idealism which originated in that era of her history.

It was that faith and idealism which enabled Ireland to survive in the centuries of conquest and to preserve in her determination to achieve complete independence.

Many of you who may read this message have been born in Ireland or are descendants of people who came from Ireland and will therefore want to know how Ireland is faring. Economically tremendous progress has been made in recent years. The task which the Irish people faced when they obtained control over their own affairs (in that portion of Ireland which is free) was a tremendous one; in effect, it was the task of reconstructing the Irish economy.

This would have been a difficult task in normal times but it was rendered far more difficult by reason of the civil war and of the enforced unjust partition of our small island. Nevertheless, it is now possible to register progress in every field of economic activity.

In the political field the main objective of the Irish people remains the achievement of complete liberty for the whole of Ireland. This is a matter on which there is complete agreement between all parties in the portion of Ireland that is free. In this sphere, too, we are hopeful that this strange anomaly cannot survive for long in the present day world.

To put it very simply we are merely seeking to establish the right of the Irish people to determine their own affairs freely and by democratic means without interference by any outside power.

This I think cannot be said to be an unreasonable claim. It is the right which you and the people of any other free country enjoy.

Of all democratic rights the right to national self-determination is the one which is the most fundamental, as it is on the assertion of this right that all other democratic rights ultimately rest. There is no country in the world which can claim to exercise the right of national self-determination more justly than Ireland can.

The natural boundaries of our nation are clearly defined by the seas that surround our island. Few countries can claim a more clearly defined and age-long national history dating back to before the days of St. Patrick than Ireland can.

Likewise, few countries can claim a more homogeneous population than Ireland: They are the same color and they speak the same language.

In these circumstances what justification can Britain claim to the exercise of sovereignty over any portion of Ireland?

He have no feeling of emnity or hostility towards Britain based on past wrongs. Our desire is to live on good terms with a neighbor that insists on squatting in a portion of your house against your will.

I know that a section of opinion in Britain likes to suggest that this is a problem to be settled by Irishmen and that Britain merely plays the part of the "honest broker." I only wish this were true but I am afraid that it is not.

In accordance with the facts it is merely the convenient way of seeking to justify Britain's undemocratic interference in our affairs.

We are grateful to the people of the United States for the sympathy and support they have always extended to us in our struggle for independence and we know that they will continue to watch with sympathetic understanding our struggle to liberate and unify the whole of our country.

Effects Of Decisions

Lost The Peace

Ten years of history can be summarized, with excess of condensation of course, in two sentences; our military decisions, as such, were for the most part sound, we won the war. Our policy decisions, however, made by Roosevelt during the war, and after the war by Truman or in his administration, have been in large part disastrous, we lost the peace.

This judgment, carefully stated and clearly explained, is held by military historian Hanson Baldwin in "Great Mistakes of the War." He says it is a national American trait about war: "We have fought for the immediate victory, not for the ultimate peace." Dwelling on decisions that resulted in disaster after the recent war was over, Baldwin specifies and emphasized two: "In February, 1945, at Yalta, and on June 6, 1944, the date of the allied invasion of Normandy, it might be said that we lost the peace."

It has come to be that military decisions and policy decisions are at once distinguished from each other and inseparable from each other. In this condition Congress has come to have a permanent duty, quite regardless of the momentary discussion about the merit of sending troops to Europe. It has a duty to itself and to the people, to take a part in decisions related to war that are likely to affect long-term decisions.

ing of chief committee counsel Rudolph Halley.

The three Senators presented an interesting study in entirely different temperamnts. Kefauver was kind, mild, eminently fair and judicious, and seemed intent only at getting the facts on the record. O'Conor, the lawyer, had a lawyer-like zest for picking holes in the testimony. Tobey, I should say, seemed the personification of the public conscience. A sort of Ephraim Tutt of a person, his New England morality led him to frequent outbursts that these things should exist. The idea that Frank Costello should be called to clean out the bookies at Roosevelt Raceway when the track's own police failed at it shook him from head to toe.

Even without Mr. Costello's head it was one of the best shows television has yet put forth.

ance to localities which can be timed and channelled so as to concentrate upon areas where unemployment is heavy without sacrifice of general national objectives. This principle of wise selectivity is particularly applicable to procurement and construction activities, but it is also relevant to other grant or loan programs designed to stimulate private enterprise or to effect public improvements. Toward this end, I am directing that a continuing review of such activities be undertaken within the Executive Office, in order to coordinate planning, to keep the various types of activity and their geographic distribution in proper balance and readiness, and to focus emphasis upon alleviating unemployment in particular areas where it becomes serious before it has a chance to spread."

The President followed this statement by a memorandum and press release on July 14, 1949, designating a presidential assistant, Dr. John R. Steelman, to coordinate this program.

Dr. Steelman forthwith contacted various agencies of the government requesting them to give preferential consideration to areas of heavy unemployment.

On December 1, 1949, Dr. Steelman informed you that various government agencies had taken cognizance of those directives and releases. For example, the then Secretary of Defense, Johnson, directed all branches of the Armed Forces to take into consideration relative labor market conditions when scheduling civilian employment ceilings.

On February 22, 1950, the report of the subcommittee on unemployment of the Joint Committee in the Economic Report to the Congress of the United States stated that, "When there are only a relatively few distressed areas, (as now), this type of solution (preferential consideration) to an unemployment problem should be attempted, and probably will result in a net overall improvement."

On April 24, 1950, in reply to a joint plea from Mayor Post of Cumberland and The Board of County Commissioners of Allegany County, Dr. Steelman stated: "We are doing, and will continue to do everything possible to aid areas of heavy unemployment".

On May 16, 1950, The Presidential Train stopped at Cumberland. You made a well-received speech to a large audience. The newspapers reported that speech as follows: Baltimore Sun Streamer — "TRUMAN IN MARYLAND, VOWS JOB AID."

Two thousand greet Truman, Cheer Aid Pledge—"President Truman drew cheers from about 2,000 residents of this unemployment stricken city today when he promised them Federal help in getting jobs.

"The Federal Government is going to do all it can to help out," the President said, "That's the object."

Cumberland Times: "The government will continue working to remedy the unemployment situation in Cumberland, President Harry S. Truman said this afternoon."

Baltimore Labor Herald: "In his tour back and forth across this country, the President of the United States gave a whistle-stop talk to some 5,000 people in the railroad yards in Cumberland. The President let it be known that he was aware of the critical unemployment situation at Cumberland, and that it is marked as a critical area in line for Federal aid.

"The President gave his uncritical sympathy to the jobless, and promised aid for it as a critical area. This is the first expression of uncritical sympathy from the White House, and the second promise of aid for the critical area of unemployment."

On July 27, 1950, you stated in your "President's Mid Year Economic Report" to Congress — "Our task now is to help restore and maintain the peace of the world, and to protect our economic strength. These two purposes are inseparable."

On December 1, 1950, Policy Series No. 1 was issued by the U. S. Department of Labor, Office of Defense Manpower. This followed an inter-departmental conference on defense manpower. The release was entitled "Relation of labor supply to Federal Government Activities affecting manpower".

"In keeping with the provisions of the Executive Order the departments and agencies of government concerned have agreed on the policy that available labor supply, and particularly surplus labor wherever it exists, should be utilized to the full before additional employment requirements are created in areas of labor stringency or labor shortage. Experience during World War II amply demonstrates the need of adherence to the principle of bringing the work to the worker in order to avoid needless migration, minimize excessive strains on community facilities, and reduce loss of efficiency in defense production. The adoption of this policy today will assure that all of our citizens will make a maximum contribution to the common cause equally. It will avoid the creation of areas of extreme labor shortage and community congestion alongside localities of relatively heavy unemployment and economic depression. By utilizing as far as possible all of our workers, the implementation of this policy will also assure full utilization of housing, transportation, and all of the other community facilifies already available to workers.

"In implementing this policy the Federal departments and agencies agree that insofar as possible under existing legislative authority, Federal activities with respect to procurement of goods and services, the scheduling of production and employment in government-owned or controlled establishments, the building of new facilities and the reactivation or expansion of existing ones, location of camps, cantonments and supply depots, the establishment of priorities or allocation of materials or components, guarantee and loan activities, and related programs will take full account of the adequacy of labor supply in specific localities and the impact of each such activity upon the loal manpower situation. In addition, these agencies of government will request and urge those private employing establishments and individuals with which they work to also implement this policy as far as possible in the placement of subcontracts, in the ordering of materials and in the securing of services."

On December 18, 1950, General Marshall of the Department of Defense released a directive (No. 1538-50) that the military departments should pay particular attention, among other matters, to the availability of manpower in distressed employment areas, or in areas of manpower shortage.

On January 17, 1951, you as President, implemented that policy on manpower by a memorandum directive to all department heads entitled, "National Manpower Mobilization Policy".

Scrutiny of that policy is warranted. In Section 4, it is stated: "While recognizing the very high priority of the armed forces' requirements for certain numbers and classes of manpower, the needs for mobilization also require a vigorous civilian economy. The manpower necessary to defense production, to civil defense, to agriculture, and to the production of essential civilian goods and services, and to sustain our commitments of aids to other nations must be considered as integral parts of a balanced mobilization program.

Elsewhere Paragraphs 60, 70 and 71 of that policy states:

"60. The Government will develop and administer manpower programs designed to enlist to the fullest possible extent the support and resourcefulness of individuals in the achievement of the mobilization program."

"70. All manpower progress will be geared to the needs and problems of specific geographical areas."

"71. Production will be scheduled, materials allocated and procurement distributed with careful consideration of available manpower. Whenever feasible from an economic and security standpoint, production facilities, contracts, and significant subcontracts will be allocated at the sources of labor supply in preference to moving the labor supply."

It would certainly seem that this memorandum, if adhered to, would rectify the conditions of which we speak, and would take advantage of our surplus manpower, while improving our economy.

Thus, with these pronouncements, promises and policies stretching out before us, we were confident that if increased employment opportunities could be given by the government, that we, as an "E" area, with many natural advantages, would be given priority and preferential consideration.

We watched with growing uneasiness as the expanding mobilization effort apparently ignored those expressed precepts and principles. Defense plants were erected, military installations located, government establishments placed, federal facilities and activities expanded and initiated without any significant sign of the awareness of our existing unemployment, and the contribution which our idle labor surplus and manpower could make to the civilian economy and to the even more important defense effort. A flood of employment opportunities by way of government defense activities has occurred, but none of those activities have been directed to our area.

The ultimate realization, that practically all we were getting by way of federal aid were promises without performances, came to us in three crisply worded news dispatches which arrived on successive days, March 7, 8, and 9, 1951. Those dispatches were bitter pills to swallow for those of us who had insisted from the very start that the federal government properly felt an obligation to participate in the solution of this problem and would implement a genuine program.

On March 7, 1951, we were informed by newspaper dispatches that a huge site in an adjoining county (with practically no employment problem) was being purchased by the Real Estate Division of the Army Engineers Washington District for a defense facility.

On March 8, 1951, we were informed by newspaper dispatches that 90 units of 15 agencies employing 5,183 persons, varying from 1 employe to 597 employes per unit, were listed for early transfer from Washington in a program to decentralize federal activities. (The program is separate from proposals pending in Congress for dispersal of strategic agencies to new sites within 20 miles of Washington).

Neither Cumberland nor any other "E" area (as listed in January, 1951 Labor Market Report of U. S. Dept. of Labor) received a single employe or unit, despite the helpful effect it would have on the economy of such areas. In many instances, the units were listed for areas of tight and stringent labor supply — in direct contradiction of announced defense manpower policies.

On March 9, 1951, we were informed by newspaper dispatches that the site of a new Quartermaster Research Corps Research Laboratory for Cumberland was "being given every possible consideration" would be located in Massachusetts, in an area which did not have one-half of our unemployment ratio, the area apparently receiving preference over Cumberland because of its excellent "cultural institutions". As if this were not a flimsy enough differentiation to explain to many unemployed people who are literally having difficulty feeding, clothing and sheltering themselves, the site is near a vital military target eastern seacoast area, unlike our uncongested mountainous terrain which is a far better military risk, and is located more than three times farther away from Washington than our location. Yet accessibility to Washington was listed as a proposed criteria for the site selection.

The cumulative impact of these three news items has most forcefully demonstrated to us that either the knowledge, or the desire, or the ability to help the distressed economic area of Cumberland and Allegany County is almost completely lacking within the present framework of the Federal agencies. Our experience indicated the situation probably could be attributed to lack of coordination and lack of a single agency to implement the pledges, promises, directives and law. In almost every contact we have had with various Federal agencies, concerning the pronouncements made, they usually either are unfamiliar with the "E" area and manpower problems, except as vague background, or they give evasive reasons why they cannot be of assistance.

It is proper to point out that various federal policies and programs incidentally do help our community —this is true of surplus foods (now virtually exhausted), flood control, Savage River Dam, social security, unemployment compensation, public housing, etc. But these are things which, almost without exception, were part of the regular procedure of the government and not designed to help "E" areas or solve the manpower problem. Many federal programs incidentally hurt our community, such as the federal rubber control policy, which has caused severe cutbacks and furloughs at one of our major plants, and the decision to forego projects not essential to defense which has stalemated the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Parkway Project, which offered job opportunities by way of the recreation and tourist industry.

We should also like to emphasize that in the tradition be believe best, we are devoting the major portion of our efforts to the community level, looking forward to effective action by cooperation among our individual citizens; but, in our complex modern economic picture, it is equally right for the national government to address its attention to the question of aiding those, who, through no fault of their own, are unable to obtain employment.

The Department of Labor and Commerce are conducting a helpful community industrial and economic survey of our area; but, surveys, however valuable, do not produce jobs.

Moreover, Cumberland continues to be ignored as a possibility for placement for government activities, even while some other communities ask the government to refrain from such activities in their area, because of the strain it places on their facilities, such as housing, water, schools, sanitation, etc.

The continued advocacy of government measures to improve the lot of our area is now reinforced by cogent reasons of military security, over and above the desire to improve the civilian economy. Military considerations decry the waste of manpower by the failure to utilize the labor supply in Cumberland and other distressed employment areas.

It is only fair to say that our rate of unemployment is dropping. It may even come to pass that with further intensive recruitment by outside groups, we may drop from the "E" area listing within the next six months to a year; but, what a Pyrrhic victory this will be to Cumberland and Allegany County, for this drop in the unemployment rate is occasioned not by increased employment here, but by out-migration; and out-migration means decreased population, decreased business, decreased revenues, scattered families, increased taxes on those staying here, a stagnant and sterile community. In addition, it marks dislocations which make heavy loads on all types of community facilities where those migrants go to obtain work, while the community facilities of the high labor surplus areas are wasted. Thus, if we leave the "E" area class without the aid of accompanying employment, we will have lost far more than we rightfully should have gained.

Every citizen of this nation must realize the tremendous burden which is cast on the Chief Executive of the United States in this period of stress. We would not add to the burden if we did not believe that you sincerely wish to help our unemployed; for in helping our unemployed, you help the nation.

We urge you, therefore, to use your executive office in this grave matter and to remove the inertia and inaction of the many departments and agencies who either ignore the question, or who can find dozens of so-called reasons why they cannot help Cumberland, but not one reason why they can.

We reiterate our previous suggestion that a specific agency should be named and held accountable for the work concerning the Distressed Area Policy and the National Manpower Mobilization Policy.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, March 16 (INS)—Don't be fooled by the rumors of who's going to do "Ivanhoe." Robert Taylor stars in the Sir Walter Scott classic right after he finishes "Westward, The Women." I'm so sure of this I'm forgetting all the hints that Michael Wilding will do it.

Robert Taylor

"Ivanhoe" makes two big spectacles for Bob—he spent eight months in Rome last year filming "Quo Vadis."

I don't know whether Bob is happy or not in his private life since his divorce from Barbara Stanwyck. But his career has never zoomed along in higher gear nor has he ever been cast in more costly productions.

Richard Thorpe directs "Ivanhoe" which is scheduled to start early in June.

Over the long distance telephone in a seven-minute conversation from Biloxi, Miss., Charles Laughton agreed to play the role of the corset manufacturer in "The Blue Veil" opposite Jane Wyman.

Laughton is on tour with Charles Boyer, Agnes Moorehead, and Sir Cedric Hardwicke doing one-night stands with "Don Juan in Hell," a ninety-minute excerpt from Shaw's "Man and Superman."

Laughton was told the story over the telephone by Director Curtis Bernhardt and accepted then and there without tests, without reading the script, and without any more fanfare. He and the other Hollywood actors open at the Philharmonic March 30, and on April 1, Laughton checks in at RKO.

Here's a little secret: The co-producer back of "Another Man's Poison," the picture Bette Davis and Gary Merrill are making in London, is Douglas Fairbanks, Jr!

It was Doug who took the script to Bette and Gary and who signed Irving Rapper to direct and then turned over his "package" deal to Major Daniel Angel, the British producer.

For a while Doug planned to operate as just a silent partner—but now he's to receive full co-producer credit. I don't know whether this means he'll go to London for the filming—or not.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Gary Cooper is in New York for a few days before taking off for Puerto Rico, where he plans to fish until Warners need him.

Sonja Henie is back in town with a bad cold. She's going to Palm Springs to get rid of it, and will return the last of this month to give one of her famous dinner dances.

Nat "King" Cole arrives Sunday to move his children out of the house the government seized a few days ago for taxes.

Next week Billy Wilder flies to Paris to confer with Maurice Chevalier about the forthcoming picture they'll do together.

Z. Wayne Griffin, producer of the current Clark Gable movie, is down with the flu.

Bob Stack escorted Barbara Stanwyck to dinner at La Rue.

Is there trouble over the Roy Rogers' contract at Republic, which is only 60 days away? Roy is holding out for his TV rights I hear tell.

Bobbie and Bill Perlberg were dining with their handsome son, Billy, at the Wilshire Seacomber's. Billy soon goes into the service. I can hardly believe he's old enough.

Ann Richards gave birth to a ten-pound boy at Queen of the Angels Hospital, her second baby. He'll be named Mark Richards. She's married to Edmond Angelo.

That's all today. See you Monday.

A combination of Elizabeth Taylor and Gene Tierney in the beauty department sounds okay. That's the way Charlie Feldman describes Jane Wurster, whom he has just put under contract.

Jane is the lovely who was elected queen by the New York photographers at their annual ball, and my friend Mr. Feldman was so impressed he offered her a contract. Perhaps I should explain that Jane is really not a discovery since she played the ingenue role in "Goodbye, My Fancy."

Two stolen vehicles have been reported to the City Police this week.

Elmer W. Schurg, 90 West Main Street, Frostburg reported a 1941 blue 2 door Chevrolet sedan bearing Maryland license plates 416-197 taken from a Frostburg parking lot.

Delegate Rogers Blasts W. Va. Legislature

Calls It Worst In His Memory

KEYSER, W. Va. — John I. Rogers, Mineral county representative in the West Virginia House of Delegates, told the Keyser Rotarians Thursday, that the recent session of the West Virginia Legislature was the worst taxing Legislature he had ever attended.

"In my opinion it was the worst —the rottenest Legislature I ever sat in," he assented.

He told the Rotarians that the legislature passed 218 bills for a new record. In the hopper were placed 803 bills for action in the early days of the session.

"The bodies constantly explored new fields for taxation to balance the budget, always seeking new fields where taxes could be obtained. They went into every field possible for money. It wasn't unusual to hear somebody remark 'There's a new field we haven't taxed yet.' "

The speaker said the budget is $165,000,000 now, "exactly eight times the size of the 1931 budget, at that time, 20 years ago, the budget, which was the last the Republican legislature passed, was only slightly in excess of $20,000,000."

Rogers explained his vote on the proposed West Virginia Medical School bill, saying he opposed turning the matter of selection of a place for the school to the governor alone. He said he believed the selection should have been left in the hands of the West Virginia University board of governors, as it is the body that will have the legislature authority for conducting the school after it is in operation.

He said that he believes that about the best thing that came out of the legislative meeting was the State Education Association program, in which the school teachers benefitted.

Rogers told the Rotarians that the legislature raised the salaries of every top official in Charleston with the excuse "we are apt to lose good men if we don't raise their salaries. I voted 'no' on increased salaries for all top officers on the ground that they had forgotten that no office went by the board at election time without having sufficient candidates for the offices."

He plans to move to Anne Arundel county and operate a large farm, which he and Mrs. Langeluttig ran for five years before coming to Frostburg. He purchased the farm, located along the shore of the Chesapeake Bay, from his father, Harry Langeluttig.

Mr. and Mrs. Langeluttig, who reside on Frost Avenue, will remain here until July 1, after the commencement exercises of Beall High School, where their daughter, June, is a member of the graduating class.

The Headless Costello

OUT IN ST. LOUIS, James Carroll, the widely recognized betting commissioner, refused to have any part of him on television and walked out on the Kefauver Committee hearings. In New York, Frank Costello, conceivably aware of the contempt proceedings in store for Mr. Carroll, agreed to let the cameras play over his torso from the neck down, the least interesting part of Mr. C. and certainly the least important.

John Crosby

Just what was gained by this diffidence is pretty hard to understand. In the first place both Carroll in St. Louis and Costello in New York were on television from head to foot while their lawyers wrangled over this invasion of their privacy. In the second place, photographs of both men are not hard to obtain. While the headless Costello was testifying before the committee, "Time" magazine, which sponsored the TV show on WJZ-TV, occasionally interrupted with a shot of their cover picture of Mr. Costello, a not altogether flattering portrait.

• — • — •

Far as I can see, Mr. Costello just whetted the public appetite for a view of his features and no one will have any trouble at all satisfying his craving for a glimpse of the great man. His photograph has been in all the papers and in lots of the magazines. On television, though, the truncated Costello was only a hoarse, high, frequently exasperated voice and pair of eloquent hands which toyed with a pair of glasses, mopped at the invisible face with a handkerchief and drummed impatiently. Costello, incidentally, seemed the most nervous and easily the wettest of the parade of witnesses.

While the face was veiled like a Moslem woman, we were permitted to hear a rich collection of Mr. Costello's vocal mannerisms. "Why don't you refreshen my memory?" "I prolly met him two three times." "Not to my knowlish." "I wutn't remember. I wutn't remember."

The most popular phrase yet heard is that classic old line, "I refuse to answer on the grounds it might tend to incriminate me." In general, Costello handled that line with the ease of long practice. The preceding day, Frank Erickson had a lot of trouble with the same line, despite the fact that he's had a lot of practice, too. "Might intend to criminate me" is the way it came out of Erickson—just like a small boy who hadn't quite got the sense of it.

• — • — •

Altogether, the procession of bumble-mouthed gamblers and their truculent lawyers made quite a TV carnival and the question as to whether the Kefauver probe is too much carnival, too little investigation will be thrashed around for a long time. There's no doubt in my mind but that the public gets a deep insight into a matter of grave public concern on a five-hour telecast, with its infinite detail, gets a chance to hear not only what the gambler has to say but how he says it and how his mind works.

The acting, I should say, ranged from fair to pure ham—the hammiest of all coming from the witnesses who haven't had the Kleig light experience of the Senators and their counsel. Charles Morton Levy pretty well ran the gamut from cockiness to truculence to nervousness under the searching question-

Yesterday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

M W W T D W X A H K D W K E H J U A J ' K S V M V S H W G K U H J L K, H J W G T K, H E R H D D K G M V D D E N A T W W U H E R H J L K — S T W F J A.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: HE HATH NOTHING DONE THAT DOTH NOT ALL—DANIEL.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear husband and father William Karnes who passed away 2 years ago, March 17, 1949.

Father, long years you bore
The burden of our care;
Now may our love your strengthening be
To help you . . . Over There.
And when Twilight Hour has come.
Help us, our Father, lead us home.

GET RID OF A BUNCH

A SUIT declarer's first action, after the dummy is faced and he sees his total assets, is to count up the number of losing tricks in the several suits. Usually they are more than he can afford, if his contract has been reached soundly, assuming a logical amount of risk, but not too much. So next he looks for ways whereby he can get rid of some of those losing cards, in order to reduce the number of tricks dropped to what he can afford. He has a lot of standard tools for this process, including finesses, ruffs, discards on high cards of other suits and suit-establishment plays. Sometimes all of these are used on a deal.

South saw a bunch of losers in spades, hearts and diamonds, and had to get rid of all but three. He got a free finesse from the lead of the heart 7, the 9 going on and the J winning. Instead of trying to find a way to finesse trumps again, South laid down his A and then gave up the 4 to the K. East returned his diamond 3 to the A and the 5 came back the K. Now the J was established, and it was used promptly after the spade Q came back to the A. In fact the diamond 10 was felled by it, establishing the 9, and on these two diamonds the dummy's spade 6 and 10 were discarded.

Now the spade 9 was covered by the K and ruffed with the dummy's last trump, the Q. The club A and K then enabled South to discard his last two spades, the 5 and 7. He followed by ruffing the club 9 with the heart 8 and then scoring the established spade J for the final trick.

In this quite ordinary deal, South used all of the standard tools to reduce his number of losers to the maximum which he could afford.

Your Week-end Question

Do you know the present Laws applying to an "insufficient" bid? Do you also recall the previous Laws on the subject? Can you think of a very costly result that might come from your failure to know the very equitable Law now in force?

Eight property owners on Winchester Road have been notified by the Allegany County Health Department to eliminate bad sewage conditions resulting from seepage onto the road from their septic tanks and other sewer facilities.

A list of the eight property owners was presented to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday by J. Byron Dowling, senior state sanitarian with the Health Department. The board approved the action taken by health officials in granting the property owners 30 days to correct the sewage situation.

An application was received by the board from Millard T. Reckley, 39, this city, for one of the two registration positions which will be available upon starting of the continuous registration of voters in this county. The volume of trading was limited to 1,660,000 shares as compared with yesterday's 2,070,000 shares.

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

May grown-ups be "tattle-tales"?

Answer: Certainly, if they are emotionally childish. The child who delights in "telling mother on" his brothers and sisters when he does not like the way they treat him has his counterpart in the adult who is always complaining to his friends of the fact that no one in his family understands or appreciates him. Both are trying (a) to win love through being pitied, and (b)—to punish indirectly someone they do not dare to stand up to through the disapproval or perhaps the intervention of a stronger person than themselves.

Do insincere parents make neurotic children?

Answer: Yes, says Izette de Forest in the Psychoanalytic Review. A child who has reason to doubt the sincerity of his parents' love for him becomes unable to believe that anyone will ever value him for himself and thus is held back by neurotic anxiety from making friends or feeling secure in love and marriage. The psychotherapist who is sincerely interested in such a person and desires him to be well and happy may become the "true friend" whom he has always longed for and thus help him to overcome his distrust.

May an alcoholic resent those who love him?

Answer: The typical alcoholic in his sober moments is extremely grateful for his family's kindness and forbearance, but becomes bitterly hostile toward them when intoxicated. For alcohol frees him for the moment from his sense of guilt at being "unworthy to be loved" and leaves him conscious only of the rage which being made to "feel like a heel" inspires. In general, the more guilty you make a compulsive drinker feel, the more he will be "driven to drink" to escape his self-reproaches, and at the same time will hate you for the pain you cause him.

Parkway Bill Kept Alive By Senator Kimble

Sent To Committee For Recommendations

The bill to enable the State Roads Commission to acquire land to be turned over to the Federal government for the C&O Canal Parkway project has been kept alive by action of Senator Robert B. Kimble who had the measure referred to a sub-committee for study and possible revision.

W. Earle Cobey, Cumberland's city attorney, who endorsed the plan for the parkway and sought passage of Senator Kimble's bill at a Senate Finance Committee hearing Wednesday said last night Kimble's action had saved the bill from being killed by an unfavorable committee report.

Arguments Are Suspicious

Speaking in behalf of the bill Cobey said arguments of Washington, Frederick and Montgomery County representatives were suspicious and weak. The claim that industry would have no access to water if the lands were acquired by passage of the bill was ridiculed by Cobey. The government owns most of the land now, Cobey stated, and industry doesn't have access to it right now.

"I advocated making a deal with the government whereby permanent access be acquired to water across lands owned by the Federal government. A deal of this type would require Congressional action," Cobey went on, "but I think it could be arranged."

Western Maryland residents have repeatedly sought to have the parkway plan put into effect with the thought of opening this end of the state to industry, tourist trade and securing a potential military transportation route to the nation's capital.

Cites Defense Angle

In a trend toward defense Raymond F. Whitehair, commander of Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, said, "The highway from a standpoint of defense is excellent. It would speed commodities, war supplies and troops over the route and would be a tremendous aid for the evacuation of property and personnel from Washington and other eastern cities during an atomic attack by a foreign power.

"In addition," Whitehair continued, "the proposal would increase business in Cumberland and the surrounding territory which are now being by-passed. It would be wonderful for the city in another respect. Improvement of the slum sections of Cumberland is proposed in the plans and if nothing else it will help beautify the city. Besides the heavy traffic which flows over super

This is the day for the wearing of the green.

For today, St. Patrick's Day, the sons of Erin and their friends will wear a shamrock or a touch of green in their costumes in honor to the patron saint of the Emerald Isle.

According to legend, when St. Patrick was preaching the gospel to the pagan Irish, he illustrated the doctrine of the Trinity by the use of a shamrock.

Authorities disagree on St. Patrick's birthplace, except that he was not of Irish descent.

He was born, legend says, toward the end of the Fourth century in a small village at the mouth of the River Clyde in Scotland or near Glastonbury, England.

During his lifetime, he founded hundreds of churches in Ireland and converted virtually all of the then pagan people to Christianity.

It was he, according to legend, who drove all the snakes out of Ireland.

Incidentally, today is a good time, old farmers say, to plan Irish potatoes and in years past the spuds were always placed in the ground on that day, barring only freezing weather.

Chamber Hears Industrial Expert

Federal Government Criticised Sharply By Steering Committee For Its Failure To Help With Employment In This Area

Eight-Page Letter Forwarded To Truman

Sharply criticizing the Federal government for failing to carry out its announced program to reduce unemployment in distress areas, the Steering Committee for Economic Development of Allegany County has forwarded a letter to President Harry S. Truman complaining of the inaction of government agencies.

The eight-page letter, written over the signature of David Kauffman, steering committee chairman, points out that the Department of Defense decision to locate the new Quartermaster Research Laboratory in Massachusetts "is the latest and sharpest disappointment the citizens of Cumberland and Allegany County have had in the failure of the Federal government to meet its responsibilities...."

Text of the letter to President Truman follows:

Dear Mr. President:

We should like to thank you for your reply of March 8, 1951, sent by Dr. Steelman from Key West, Florida, stating that careful consideration was being given Cumberland's application for the new Quartermaster Research Laboratary by the Department of Defense.

On that same day, however, the Department of Defense announced that the laboratory would be located in the Natick and Framington area of Massachusetts, near Boston.

The decision, as made, is the latest and the sharpest disappointment the citizens of Cumberland and Allegany County have had in the failure of the Federal Government to meet its responsibilities for a Federal program of participation in reducing unemployment in distressed or "E" areas. That "E" or heavy unemployment designation for the Cumberland area still exists, despite the overall prosperity of the state and nation.

The bald fact of the matter is, Mr. President, that the agencies of the Federal government, to whom you have issued directives, and policies, and instructions, have almost completely failed to implement your instructions. They have in particular, ignored the announced program to put the work where the workers are, rather than forcing the workers to move to the work. In short, instead of complying with the duties incumbent upon them, they have been absolutely ineffectual or absolutely insincere in complying with the distressed areas policy and the National Manpower Mobilization Policy.

In August, 1949, Cumberland was one of 13 "E" areas.

On January, 1950, Cumberland was one of 42 "E" areas.

In July, 1950, Cumberland was one of 14 "E" areas.

In September, 1950, Cumberland was one of 11 "E" areas.

In January, 1951, Cumberland was one of 5 "E" areas.

A review of the records reveals the following:

The Employment Act of 1946 states "The Congress hereby declares that it is the continuing policy and responsibility of the Federal Government to use all practicable means with the assistance and cooperation of industry, agriculture, labor and state and local governments to promote maximum employment production and purchasing power."

In his mid-year economic report to the Congress on July 11, 1949, President Truman stated that—

"While unemployment is not now at a very high level for the country as a whole, there are many localities, and even some states where it is serious. These pools of heavy unemployment need to be treated before they spread, and the responsibility is in part national.

"There are a number of Federal programs of direct action or assist-

County Farmers "Kill Two Birds" By Town Trips

Farmers generally don't make trips into town just for one purpose.

Allegany county farmers, being typical, have found a way to "kill two birds with the same stone," according to Miss Elizabeth Hoover, clerk of the County Production and Marketing Administration Committee.

Aware that farmers have been coming to her office at 37 Washington Street in relatively large numbers to file for the 1951 Agriculture Conservation Program, Miss Hoover became curious. They told her that they stopped at her office to enroll in the program and then walked across the street to the Court House and purchased their new automobile license plates from Tax Collector Ernest F. Treat.

Miss Hoover said that about 150 farmers have filed for the new program. The deadline is April 15 and about 400 are expected to file by then.

Meanwhile, Treat reports that 375 more sets of Maryland automobile license plates were sold at his office yesterday. That brings the total obtained locally to about 6,400 sets. Treat has received about 10,000 sets here. His office will be open from 9 a. m. until noon today.

Area Industry Developments Appear Bright

Wood Signs Contract With Local Group

Richardson Wood said yesterday that prospects for industrial development in Cumberland and immediate area appear bright and many contracts have been made for getting industry interested in locating in Allegany County. He said that over 40 prospective industries have shown concern and as time goes by other contracts are continually being made.

The occasion for Wood's address was the Chamber of Commerce luncheon meeting held yesterday at 12:15 p. m. in the Green Room of Central YMCA. Prior to Wood's introduction to the group of 80 persons Joseph M. Naughton, president of the Chamber of Commerce introduced Mayor Thomas S. Post, the City Council members and Allegany County Commissioners William H. Lemmert and James Holmes.

"Cumberland residents and the Cumberland Allegany Industrial Development Company are to be congratulated for their cooperative manner in striving to get new industry into this area. Their continual hard work shows merit in its accomplishments," Wood told his audience.

Assets Given

"Among the assets Cumberland has to offer the encouragement of new industry," Wood added, "are its surplus of available man power and its ideal location along the main line of two railroads linking the city with the east, northeast and midwest."

Wood remarked that included among prospective industries are such concerns as General Motors, Kaiser Frazer, Westinghouse, Bendix Aviation, Ford Motors, and U. S. Steel. He said that even though Cumberland did not acquire the recent Quartermaster Laboratory that it has advantages over larger areas.

During the meeting Wood cited the newly planned addition to the Michael Berkowitz Company in Frostburg, manufacturers of shirts and pajamas. He explained the amount of work involved in getting new addition plans working smoothly.

He said that an enlargement of the plant would not only increase the number of employes but also jobs created by the increase outside of the industry. He also said that local merchants would profit by the addition and that the turnover of wages is a healthy economic factor.

In an illustrated chart showing the amount of work done by the

TWUA Panel Will Act On Expulsions

A three man panel of the Executive Board of the Textile Workers Union of America (CIO), will conduct a hearing here Monday at 10 a. m. on the expulsion appeal of three members of Local 1874, TWUA.

Playford Aldridge, Local 1874 president, said the panel headed by George Baldanzi, will report back to the union's executive board of the TWUA, which will make a decision.

Aldridge said the appeals were filed by William Boyd Coleman and Arthur M. Schusterman, who were dropped from membership in the union last September 22 by a unanimous vote of the executive board because of membership in the Communist party.

At the time, the union said the action was taken on charges that their membership in the party was detrimental to the Local 1874.

The third appeal was filed by Clair R. Mease, who was expelled from Local 1874 on October 5, 1950, by a full Executive Board.

Aldridge said the union charges against Mease listed acts detrimental to the interest and welfare of the local union.

Flood Control Work Discussed At Meeting

Shift Of Utilities Near Completion

Progress in Cumberland's flood control work and the Savage River Dam were discussed recently at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Flood Control Committee.

Albert Paye, liaison engineer between the City of Cumberland and the U. S. Army Engineer Corps, outlined the projected plan for completion of the existing contract for pressure conduits on Frederick and Lehigh Streets.

He said that public utility companies are completing advance work for rearranging their services along Mechanic Street from Bedford to Frederick Street from Centre to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

E. E. Donaldson, area engineer for the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, who has jurisdiction over the local flood control project and the Savage River Dam construction, remarked that he is in hopes the Frederick Street conduit will be completed in September. He said work is being held up at present due to a delay in getting some of the construction equipment transported to Cumberland from the sub contractor in Philadelphia.

The Philadelphia sub contractors Thomas Earl and Sons are specialists in excavation, sheeting and shoring and will work with local contractors Lynch and Pugh. The actual pouring of the conduit will be done by the latter.

Donaldson also said that precautions are being taken to give protection to buildings along the line of construction. This is being done through special sheeting methods. Also outlined was the manner in which traffic would be accomodated and how fire department lanes would be kept open by use of movable bridges across the excavation at various points.

In conclusion a few remarks were made concerning the completion of the Savage River Dam.

Attending the meeting were Harold W. Smith, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, Edward L. Ewald, commercial manager of the Potomac Edison Company, Harry Beneman and Joseph Klawan.

Servicemen Killed In Korea Will Be Listed At City Hall

The Allegany County Honor Roll Committee has made plans to include area servicemen killed in the current Korean conflict on the memorial plaque in the City Hall rotunda, Thomas F. Conlon announced yesterday.

Conlon, Cumberland Postmaster and a member of the committee, said the present memorial contains the names of some 12,000 Allegany County soldiers who were in the armed services during World War II.

The names are listed in alphabetical order, Conlon noted, except those who died while serving their country. These names are listed in the order of the date of their deaths, he stated.

The committee now plans to add only those county servicemen who have died in service since the Korean conflict began June 24, 1950.

Relatives of servicemen, whether Marines, Army, Navy, Coast Guard or Air Corps, who have been killed in service, are requested turn in the name of the deceased serviceman to the Honor Roll Committee at the Cumberland Post Office, listing the date of death as well as name, branch of service and rank.

The committee has hired John G. Fleishhauer, a Post Office employee who trained under the G. I. Bill of Rights, to paint the names on the slides to be placed on the plaque.

The memorial now contains an empty column, Conlon said, which will be headed "Deaths, June 24, 1950, Korea." The names will be added in the order of the date of death, Conlon reported.

The committee spent five years and $7,600 accumulating the names on the present memorial.
